Midde-Aged Men Sought in Kidnaping

OAKLAND, Calif. — Police now say they believe two older men were the masterminds behind the plot to kidnap 26 children and their school bus driver in Chowchilla. Investigators also believe the group planned to demand a ransom of $5 million for the children's return. Composite pictures assembled from the children's descriptions show two men about ages 45 and 50, one with gray hair, police say.

Meanwhile, a coast-to-coast search for two young suspects, Frederick Woods, 24, son of a prominent California podiatrist, and James Schoenfeld, 24, continues.

Police are watching a 500-acre estate on Martha's Vineyard owned by the Woods family.

Fighting Is Worse In Lebanon War

BEIRUT — Despite heavy fighting and a new attack on his troops Sunday, the head of the Arab League peacekeeping force said he is determined to set up a disengagement line.

As the shooting in the capital worsened during the weekend, more and more Americans and other foreigners registered with the U.S. Embassy for a Navy evacuation scheduled for Tuesday. The Palestine rebels reportedly have promised once again to guarantee the security of the naval evacuation operation and safe passaage for those who consent to leave.

Man Shot at White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A cab driver climbed a fence at the White House Sunday night and was shot to death by a police guard as he ran toward the executive mansion with a steel pipe in his hand.

President and Mrs. Ford were in the family quarters of the White House at the time and were informed of the incident shortly after it occurred.

The intruder, identifed as Chester Plummer Jr., 30, was shot shortly after 9:30 p.m. He died in emergency surgery at George Washington University Hospital an hour and a half later at 11:05.

Officials said the man climbed over the spiked sixfoot-high iron fence at the northeast corner of the White House grounds on Pennsylvania Avenue and moved some 60 feet toward the residence, carrying a steel pipe three or four feet long.

It was the first time an intruder had been shot, although sources said "jumpers," as the Secret Service refers to them, attempt to scale the fence at least once a week.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said the intruder approached Executive Protective Service officer Pvt. Charles A. Garland, who repeatedly ordered him to halt.

"I understand he had the pipe over his head as he advanced toward the officer. The officer was between the man and the White House," Warner said.

He said Garland fired one shot, hitting him in the chest.

EPS guards saw Plummer earlier in the evening on the sidewalk in front of the White House, but a Secret Service spokesman said he "did not make any overt attempt at that time" to enter the grounds.

He returned later and scaled the black wrought iron fence.

The pipe was examined for explosives but, Warner said, "I understand it was just a plain pipe."

Warner, asked if there was any indication of motive, replied "none."

A police investigator said Plummer, who was not married, had shown his family "no signs of animosity against the President."

Sgt. Robert Sharkey of the D.C. police gave this account of the incident:

"At 9:34 p.m. Chester M. Plummer Jr., black male, 30, no fixed address, climbed over north fence of the White House, entered the grounds with a pipe in his hand. He was ordered to stop ... He refused to do so. When the police officer attempted to stop him, he attempted to assault the police officer and the officer fired one shot, which took effect."

He said Garland, 25, had been a member of the EPS since January, and now is on administrative leave pending investigation.

Plummer was identified at the hospital by his father, Chester Plummer. The intruder's last-known address was 5031 H St. S.E., but police described him as a drifter. There was no money in his wallet.

MARKET BASKET

City Food Prices Up Again

KINGSTON — Food prices in Kingston rose last week for the third time this month, according to figures released by the Ulster County Consumer Information Service.

The cost of feeding a family of four rose .4 per cent bringing the monthly increase to 1.8 per cent.

The 41-item market basket cost $66.74 for the week ending July 23. The same foods were priced at $66.46 the week before.

Of the five areas in the county sampled, Kingston was the third most expensive followed by Saugerties-Woodstock where the same items cost $68.02 (up 2 per cent) and the Marlboro-Lloyd dsitrict totaling $68.12 (up 2 per cent).

The cheapest place to buy food in the county was the New Paltz-Rosendale-Port Ewen area. Warwarsing and Ellenville market basket came in next, at $66.73.

The market basket price index is based on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Moderate Cost Family Food Plane which lists the various amounts of food which should be consumed in order to provide a nutritious diet for a family of four.

On an overall countywide level, the average market basket costs for the week were up .3 per cent over the July 16 figures.

Catskill Water Bill May Get Carey Veto

BINGHAMTON (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey indicated today he was considering vetoing legislation that would regulate the discharge of water from New York City's reservoirs in the Catskills.

Carey said, "I'm still awaiting some reports" before making a final decision on the bills. He said his decision would come in the next few days.

However, the governor said, a compromise on the discharge of waters into Catskill streams and rivers was possible without legislation.

Carey made the comments at a news conference at the Broome County Airport as he began a day-long tour of the Southern Tier. He was greeted by local officials and a a halfdozen Right-to-Life demonstrators.

Later, he met the staff and patients at the Broome County Developmental Center, where he pedged that the state would have "the best mental hygiene system in the nation" within five years.

He also announced the appointment of Mrs. Jean Kennedy Smith, sister of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as chairman of the newly created state Council for Mental Hygiene Planning, which will formulate statewide goals for the treatment of mentally disabled persons.

The legislature passed the water discharge bill after supporters charged New York City officials were unwilling to compromise on a discharge plan.

Catskill residents have complained that the city arbitrarily damaged the ecology of Catskill streams by letting them run dry or discharging so much water they flooded.

New York City opposed the bill, claiming it infringed on the city's sovereignty.

However, Carey said, "I have already secured agreement from the mayor (Abraham Beame) that he will cooperate extensively with the Environmental Conservation Department" to work out a waterrelease timetable.

"There is no inconsistency between an adequate water supply for Southeastern New York" and a release-schedule which would protect the Catskill streams, Carey said.

He added that, "We've had a complication. The watershed serves an interstate region." He said federal officials have "threatened litigation if this bill is signed."

Elderly Man Dies After Lying Injured 10 Days

WALLKILL — A 72-year-old Wallkill man died this morning in St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, after police crashed through the door of his 12-room house Saturday afternoon and found him lying injured and unconcious in a pool of blood, guarded by his German ahepherd dog.

Richard Grabiel, who apparently had fallen and broken his leg, may have been lying in his living room as long as 10 days, police said. A newspaper dated 10 days ago was found under his body.

Shawangunk police officer Jerry Doolittle and Ulster County Sergeant Richard Bockleman broke down the front door of the house in Wallkill after neighbors reported they hadn't seen Mr. Grabiel for three weeks.

The officers found him unconcious and severely dehydrated but still alive. His German shepherd, a K-9 Corps veteran, at first refused to let the officers near her master and refused food until Mr. Grabiel was taken away in an ambulance.

"We thought we'd saved him," commented one saddened police official this morning after hearing of Mr. Grabiel's death.

Drive to Stop Kingston Arterial Is Swelling

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — The proposed Kingston north-south arterial, a 2.4-mile downtown bypass dubbed as the road that "starts nowhere and goes nowhere," all at a $35 million cost, has driven itself into the minds of at least 1,000 people now as an idea that should be stopped.

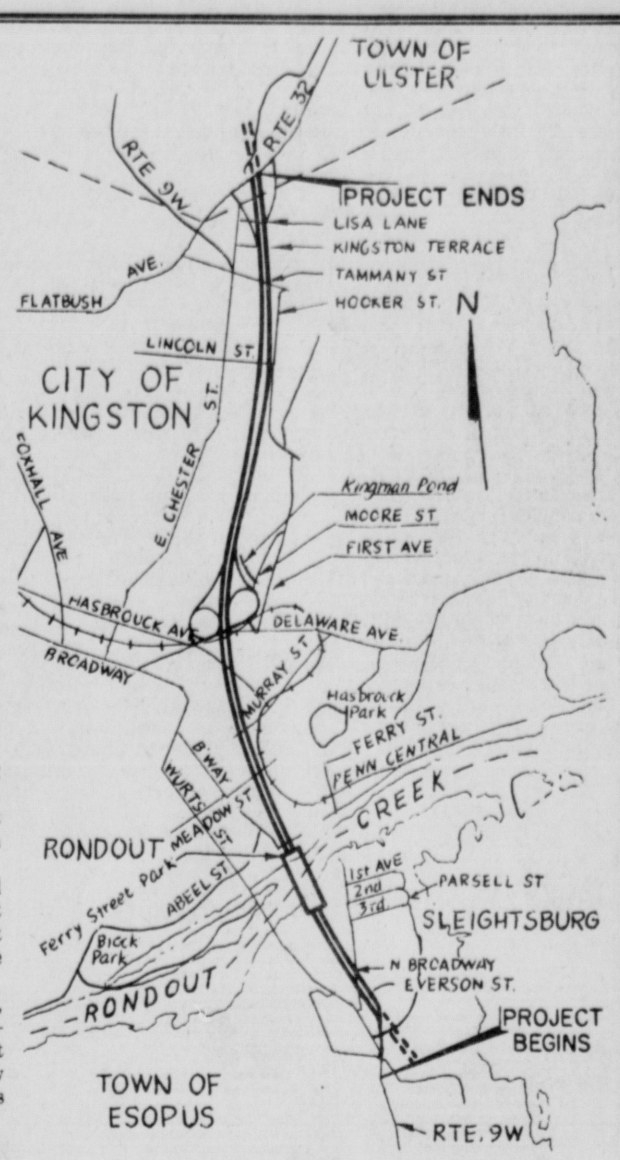
Despite the 1,000 signatures on a sheaf of petitions, however, no one in the latest anti-arterial crusade knows how to stop a plan so long in the works. After nearly two decades it seems to have a life of its own.

The "bypass" lives on, in fact, even though it appears that whatever new road it was to have carried through Kingston has long since died. The arterial has become a a bypass to and from nowhere.

"This is silliness. I'm not signing off my house. I'm going to wait for the bulldozer," said Elizabeth D. Heitzman, chairman of the group of bypass opponents whose latest name is Citizens Concerned with Total Impact of Kingston North-South Arterial (CCTI).

Mrs. Heitzman's house, bordered with trees, flowers and a white picket fence, is one of a number of Moore Street properties that sit where federal and state engineers want to put a cloverleaf intersection midway along the four-lane arterial.

Some $2.4 million in other properties — 97 parcels in all, including 60 residences and four commercial buildings — also will have to be taken for the arterial, originally part of a much larger plan for a new road from Rockland County to Albany. Little has been heard in recent years about plans for the sections of this road outside Kingston.



Clyde D. Realyea, his wife, and CCTI chairman Elizabeth D. Heitzman don't want a four-lane cloverleaf where they're standing.

The Kingston arterial would start in the Town of Esopus near Rt. 9W at North Broadway, cross the Rondout Creek into Kingston via a new $6 million bridge only a few hundred yards downstream of the present bridge, pass new city hall and the downtown urban renewal area, cross Delaware Avenue into the new cloverleaf, then head north through more residences before winding up on Rt. 32 in the Town of Ulster, a dog-leg turn and about 1,000 feet east of Rt. 9W again.

Even without any new roadway on either end, the arterial has picked up official support over the years and is now being promoted for two main reasons — reduced traffic congestion downtown and a federally funded shot in the arm for sagging area construction trades.

"Yes, we do need employment," Mrs. Heitzman said, "but if it has to be roadwork, there are plenty of other projects that need help — rebuilding Rt. 209, for example."

Because so much property must be taken from the tax rolls for the arterial, the CCTI, whose predecessors were mostly residents to be uprooted and those concerned about the environment, has gained some important allies from the fiscally conservative side of the political spectrum.

It was William A. Jackson, county chairman of the Conservative Party, who in a May 17 letter to State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-40, coined the phrase about "a 2.48-mile road starting nowhere and going nowhere with the adverse effect on the tax rolls of the City of Kingston and the displacing of residents from their homes."

Reduction in the city's tax base also has brought support to CCTI from the We've Had It Taxpayers Association (WHITA).

Not to mention the Sierra Club, worried about the loss of "irreplaceable" wetlands at Kingman Pond, and local small-fry sports fans, whose Little League field at Kingman Park would be bulldozed for the cloverleaf.

CCTI member Clyde D. Realyea, whose Tammany Street home also would go, said he "could live with" an arterial built east of the proposed route, perhaps through the acres of Hudson Cement Co. woodlands he can view from his front yard.

Union Challenger Wants In Too

KINGSTON — The Service Employees International Union (SEIU), embroiled in a battle for representation of the county's 900 civil service employes who now belong to the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA), wants to be included in pre-contract bargaining talks between the county and CSEA.

In an early morning press conference at the county office building front door, SEIU organizers released a letter sent to Legislature Chiarman Peter J. Savago demanding that he set up a meeting to go over "ground rules and timetables for negotiations" on the new contract which ordinarily wouldn't be discussed until after results of the August election are in.

CSEA chapter presidents Thomas Phillips called the move another attempt to put on a veneer of acceptability that just doesn't exist.

"They have no right to do anything of the sort until after the election and I'm quite certain that the county won't sit down with anyone until then," he said.

SEIU field representative Carmine Ruberto insisted the request was being made "in the interest of county employes. "Similar negotiations are dragging around the state and we feel that it would be to the benefit of the employes to get this preliminary work out of the way early."

The challenging union, an AFL-CIO affiliate, will also be holding a "secret on-site ballot" this week to determine whether or not the employes approve of their recommended $5 per month dues with no initiation fee.

"The whole thing is just a show," commented Phillips "They keep trying to hoodwink the people into believing they are already accepted and all that's left is a vote on dues."

Phillips said that he feels the vast majority of employes won't vote on the issue because they are already members of CSEA.

SEIU Chapter head James Whelan, a social services department worker, says all his union is trying to do is make the elections "more democratic".

"We want to show the workers that they can get local representation...and that they're money will stay here and not be sent up-state to Albany (base of the statewide CSEA)."

Both sides also expressed regret that and "unfortunately bitter mood" has developed within the campaign, with literature from the two camps "flinging personal and unfounded" attacks against the opposition.

Ballots for the mail-in election will go out July 31. Final count will be released August 13.

SEIU has recently lost two similar elections — one in Sullivan County and another for representation of the New York State Thruway workers.

Flood Control Opponents Meet

ULSTER — Opponents of the Army Corps of Engineers' plans to build levees and dikes along the Kingston side of the Espous Creek have been invited to a strategy planning meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Ulster Town Hall.

Local legislator Richard D. Nace and town supervisor Carmine Sabino have organized the meeting in protest to the recently announced Espous Flood Control Project that would build more than 1,500 feet of levees and flood walls along only one side of the Creek.

"Any resident who lives along the Ulster side of the Creek and who has been affected by flooding is invited." said Nace.

He added that the purpose of the protest in not to stop the project completely, but to "get equal protection for everyone on both sides of the Creek."

The two will also meet today with an attorney to examine the possibility of seeking a court injunction to halt the program until they can negotiate further with the federal agencies involved in the project.

The Sierra Club has proposed another alternate route, also east of the present one.

The Ulster County Planning Board, while agreeing generally with the concept of the arterial, also said it should be pushed eastward through less populous areas.

However, the chief local support for the arterial as planned comes from Mayor Francis R. Koenig and the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency (KURA), who point to the fact that the entire downtown urban renewal project was built around the supposition that the arterial would go through it.

"The whole downtown plan was designed to bring commercial development there. In fact, the arterial was supposed to have been completed before we even started urban renewal construction," Koenig said.

He said the city is "definitely locked into" the present arterial plan, the loss of which would have "very serious economic impact" in an urban renewal area that now has only subsidized housing and municipal construction, neither producing much tax revenue.

"If they put the arterial in," countered retired teacher Mary Kelly, facing the loss of her Hasbrouck Avenue home of 50 years, "they won't have any room for commercial development."

The city government should have let Grand Union build a supermarket there two years ago and forgotten about the arterial, Mrs. Kelly said.

A preliminary study on the arterial project cited the "continuing trend toward development of rural lands surrounding urban areas and subsequently greater traffic volumes" toward the country as a major reason the arterial and the larger Rockland-to-Albany plan were needed.

Realyea pointed to businesses now for sale along Rt. 9W as evidence that Kingston's traffic is diminishing, not increasing.

On a more general level, the CCTI petition calls for shifting new highway money to a "sounder national, regional and local transportation policy, replacing inordinate reliance on private cars and trucks with that of rail and mass transportation."

"Yes, but look at it this way," said Patrick J. Moloney, State Department of Transportation project manager for the arterial. "If they ran buses from where you live in Kingston right to the door of the Daily Freeman, you'd still take your car to work."

"That's what the American public wants, and that's what we're trying to deal with," Moloney said.

Moloney still expected contracts on the arterial to be awarded next spring and the project completed in late 1979.

She Tops Listing

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Chicago woman with nearly $1,000 in summonses is at the top of the latest list of scofflaws issued by the city's Bureau of Parking Violations.

According to the bureau, Sharon L. Annes owes the city $990 for 24 summonses she received.

Transportation Administrator Alexander J. Mautner said Saturday the Chicago woman is among 2,128 parking violators in 18 states who will be receiving $1,128,930 worth of bills mailed out by the bureau.

"We are cracking down to the full extent of the law on out-ofstate motorists who persistently and outrageously abuse our parking regulations," Mautner said.

Harry W. Voccola, acting director of the bureau, said his agency intended to "enter civil judgements and use various other methods to collect" on the unpaid fines and penalties.

"We anticipate a good rate of debt recovery," he said.

Death Plot To Collect Insurance

TOKYO (UPI) — Nobuko Sato, 51, committed suicide and arranged with her son to make it look like murder, so her children could collect $400,000 in insurance, police reported Sunday.

The death of Mrs. Sato, president of a fish products company, had been under police investigation since discovery of her body in her apartment June 18.

Police quoted Mrs. Sato's son, Yasuke, 29, as saying his mother strangled herself with a cord, and that he later moved the body to make the death look like murder. Police said Mrs. Sato's apartment had been ransacked to make it look like a burglary.

Mrs. Sato took out the insurance policy last November naming her family as beneficiaries. Police said at the time of her death she owed about $66,000.

Police also said about three weeks before her death Mrs. Sato visited another son, gave him some of her insurance papers, and told him she did not expect to live long.

Mormon Pageant Continues

PALMYRA, N.Y. (UPI) — Another 70,000 spectators are expected to watch the final five performances of the annual Hill Cumorah Pageant of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints this week.

About 30,000 persons watched the first two performances of the religious spectacular on a hill outside Rochester Friday and Saturday nights. Performances continue Tuesday through Saturday.

A 10-minute Bicentennial salute by the cast of 600 volunteers highlights this year's pageant depicting the history of the Mormon church.

The extravaganza has been described as "the nation's most elaborate religious spectacle."

License Deadline Extended

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — All drivers' licenses and vehicle registrations which are due to expire July 31 are extended until midnight Monday, Aug. 2, Motor Vehicle Commissioner James P. Melton announced Sunday.

Such an extension is automatic when a month ends on a weekend or holiday, he said.

Melton urged all motorists to check the expiration dates of both their drivers' licenses and vehicle registrations. A motorist who finds that one or both is due to expire July 31 should renew immediately at the most convenient motor vehicle issuing office, he said.

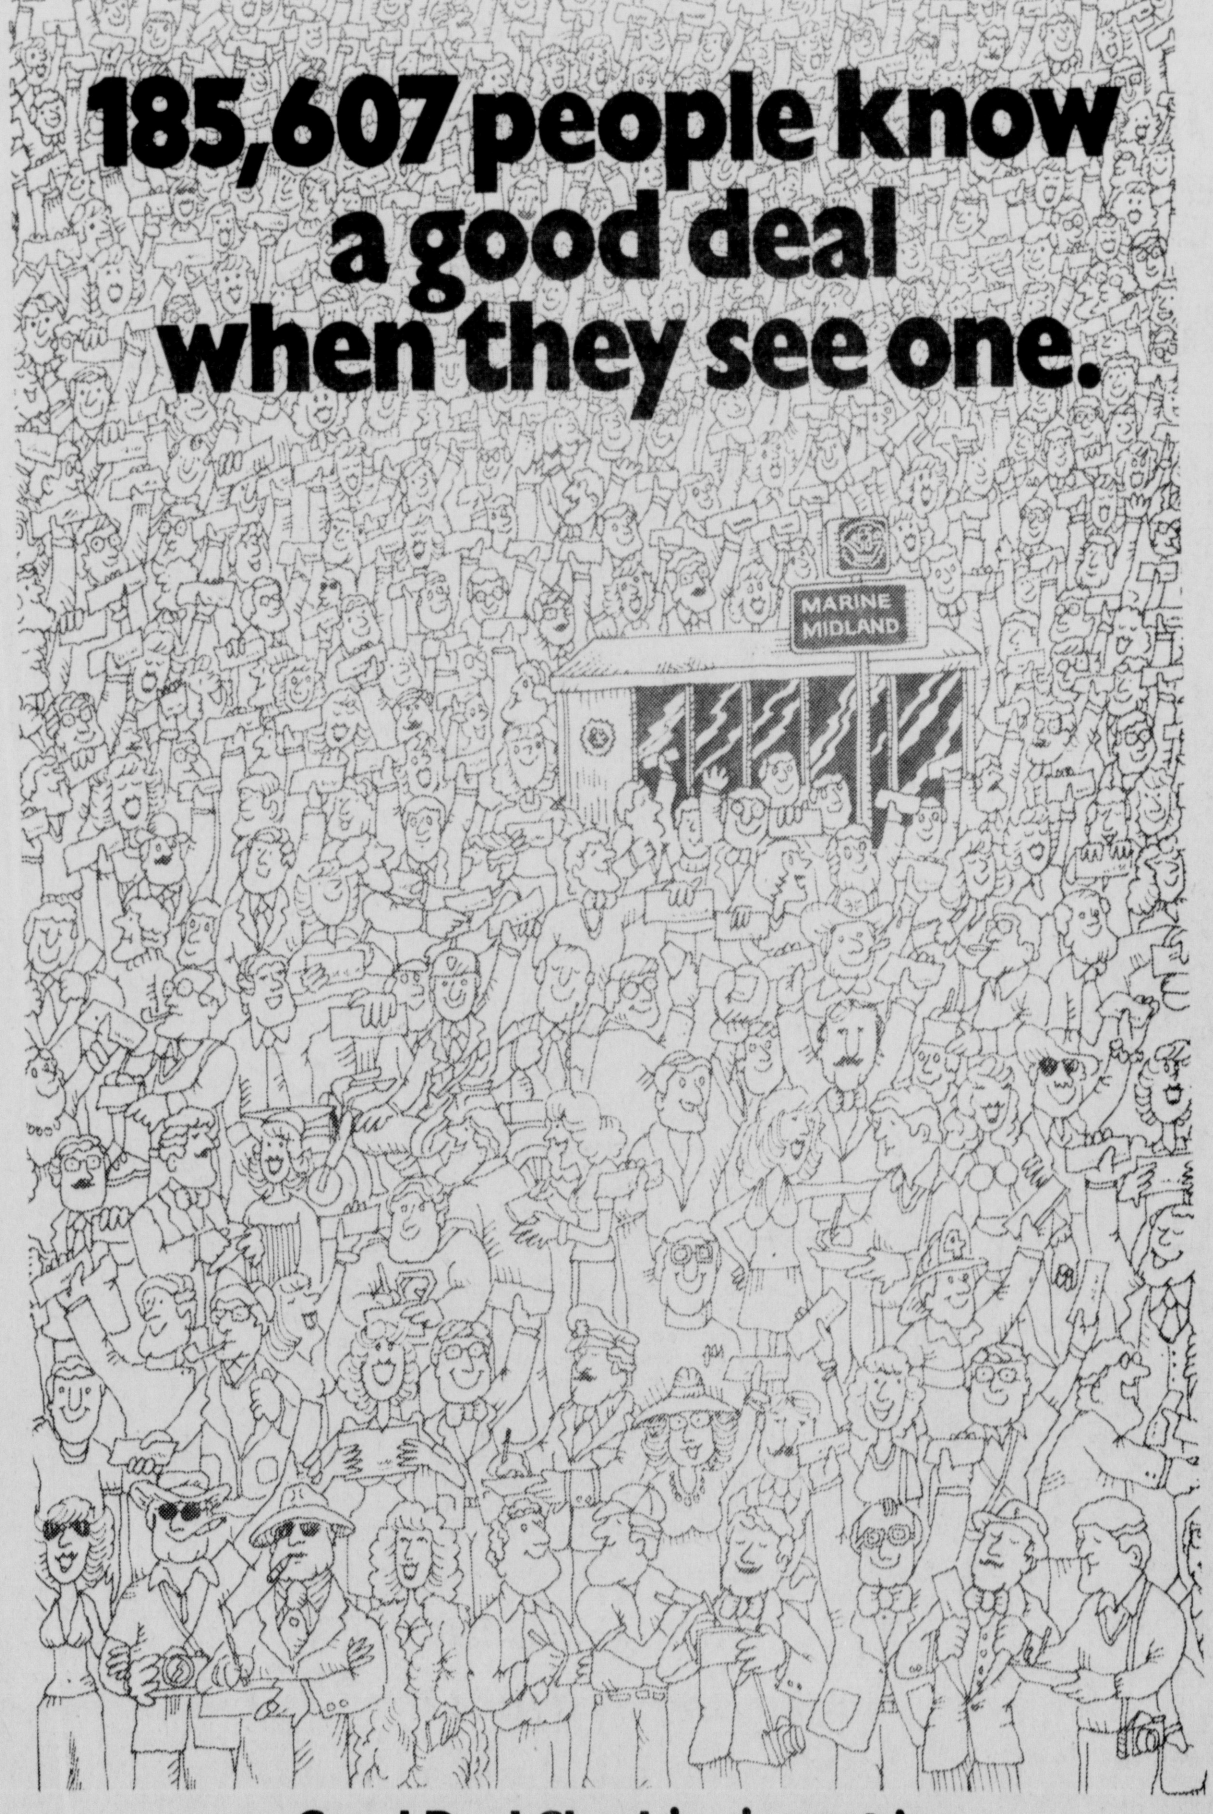
185,607 people know a good deal when they see one.



Good Deal Checking is working.

From the day we started Good Deal Checking, people stopped paying monthly maintenance charges. They also stopped paying a charge for each check they used. No matter how many checks they wrote. That's a good deal.

To get that, people keep at least $200 in their checking account. Or $200 in a savings account, which earns the highest interest allowable. That's a good deal, too.

When you get right down to it, people keep switching to Marine Midland because Good Deal Checking is a good deal.

Kenya Urges Its Nationals To Flee Uganda for Lives

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Kenya has urged its citizens to flee for their lives from neighboring Uganda following another threat by President Idi Amin to launch a major war in East Africa.

Amin coupled his warning against Kenya Sunday with an appeal both to the United Nations and the 48-nation Organization of African Unity to intervene because the situation was a danger to world peace.

The Uganda leader said an economic blockade by Kenya has left his landlocked country with less than a week's supply of gasoline reserves. The Nairobi government denies it has imposed a blockade.

For the second time in as many days Amin threatened to attack Kenya. He said the deteriorating situation "may force Uganda to resort to desperate action."

In a related development, a Kenya newspaper said today Amin narrowly escaped a weekend assassination attempt by soldiers who burst into his command post firing their weapons. It said he has been in hiding since then.

As the dispute between Nairobi and Kampala worsened, Kenya urged its citizens in Uganda — believed to still number several thousand — to flee for their lives "and not wait to be butchered by Uganda troops."

The plea came from Kenyan Provincial Commissioner John Mburu, who said the government was working around the clock "trying to save as many Kenyans still subjected to brutal murder in Uganda through every possible means."

Kenyan sources claim nearly 300 Kenyans in Uganda already have been killed by rampaging troops.

Amin sent telegrams Sunday to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and OAU Secretary General William Eteki saying: "I call upon the U.N. and the OAU to verify the alarming situation which is threatening world peace and order by urgently sending fact-finding missions to Uganda and Kenya."

Kenya Foreign Minister Munyua Waiyaki said Amin was "just looking for an excuse" to go to war and warned:

"If he attacks Kenya, Kenya will be bound to use all her energies to defend herself."

Amin accused Kenya of illegally halting more than 300 oil trucks bound for Uganda. Already most international flights have been cancelled, industry has halted and private motoring has been banned although the army is believed to still have some gasoline reserves.

Probe Stabbing in Woodstock

WOODSTOCK—The Detective Division of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department is investigating a stabbing in the Town of Woodstock.

Police say George Cannata, a Woodstock artist, was allegedly stabbed in the chest with a steak knife early Sunday morning following an argument at his Mead Mountain residence. He was reportedly transported by friends to Kingston Hospital's emergency room where he was treated and released.

Deputy Christopher Jones conducted the initial investigation and turned the matter over to the detective division.

Rock Throwers Arrested

A CB Marine call to the Ulster County Sheriff's Department resulted in the arrest of three area teenagers who were allegedly throwing rocks at boats in the Rondout Creek from the 1903 railroad bridge.

Police say the call came around 6 p.m. Sunday. Town of Esopus Police were notified and came to one end of the bridge while sheriff's deputies covered the other. Conrail investigators also assisted in the arrest.

Arrested were Ronald Mendock, 16, and David Foster, also 16, and a 14-year-old girl from the Town of Ulster. The three were brought before Esopus Justice Andrew Aurigemma. Mendock was charged with criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree and violation of probation. He was remanded to the Ulster County jail for an appearance August 2. Foster was released in the custody of his parents and the girl was turned over the the Ulster County Juvenile Aid Bureau.

Sheriff Thomas Mayone praised the cooperation of the Town of Esopus Police and the Conrail investigators.

Two Robbers Sought

New Paltz Police are looking for two men who broke in to a New Paltz residence and attempted to rob a 69-year-old woman who was living there alone.

Police say two men smashed through the screen door of the residence and forced the woman to the floor. One of the men then tied her hands and feet and gagged her with a pillowcase. Police say the men then used another pillowcase to collect pewter, silver, and jewelry. The woman reportedly heard the men leaving through the front door, but heard no vehicle. Both men wore ski masks and leather gloves with knitted fabric between the fingers. The pillow case with the items in it was recovered inside the house.

Store Fire Investigated

Saugerties Town Police are investigating the cause of a fire which destroyed the inside of the Quarryville Grocery Store early Monday morning.

The 35 fire fighters of the Saxton-Katsbaan Fire Department brought the blaze under control within 15 minutes, according to Fire Chief Richard Balk who reported that the damage was confined to the inside of the store and a plate glass window at the front of the store which was cracked by the heat.

Marbletown Accident

State Police report a personal injury auto accident in the Town of Marbletown Saturday evening.

Police say Jack Goldberg, 47, Long Beach, slowed his vehicle to avoid an unknown car making a left turn into a gas station on Route 209 in Marbletown and was struck from behind by a car driven by Lyndon Vannornan, 20, High Falls.

Injured were David Warren, 10, and Andrew Warren, 8, passengers in Vannornan's car. David suffered a lacerated knee and Andrew suffered a laceration to the forehead. Both were taken to Kingston Hospital by the Marbletown Rescue Squad where they were treated and released.

Spots Bogus Bill

An alert pari-mutuel ticket salesman at the Monticello Raceway spotted a counterfeit hundred dollar bill and alerted Ferndale State Police who arrested the man who had attempted to pass the bill.

Police say Angelo Ferrugia, 31, Rockville Center, was taken before Acting Justice Gerald Briggs and charged with possession of a forged instrument. Several other bogus bills were found in the suspect's car.

Anyone with information about the counterfeit hundreds is requested to call the Ferndale State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

Burglary in Ulster

Town of Ulster Police report a burglary at the Sunset Gardens apartment complex sometime over the weekend.

Police say the residence of Steven Snyder was burglarized while Snyder was away over the weekend. The burglars reportedly entered the apartment by forcing the sliding doors in the rear. A total of $900 worth of stereo equipment, watches and jewelry are reported missing.

Issues Alert on Siphoning

Ulster County Sheriff Thomas Mayone has cautioned residents of Ulster County about a rash of illegal gas siphoning.

The latest of a series of gasoline thefts occurred Sunday night when a gas tank of a private car was emptied while it was parked outside a residence in Port Ewen.

Prostitution Arrests

City detectives Saturday night arrested two women for prostitution and one man for patronizing a prostitute. Detectives also arrested four men at the same address on drug charges.

Kingston Detectives James Riggins, Joseph Feraca and Charles McCullough raided a residence at 143 Pine St. at 10 p.m. Saturday night and arrested Carolyn Galante, 22, and Jill-Roni Sutton for prostitution and Edward Taxter, 53, 17 Dubois Road, New Paltz, for patronizing a prostitute. Both women gave their addresses as 143 Pine St.

Detectives also arrested four men for criminal possession of a hypodermic needle, criminal possession of drug paraphernalia, and criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree. They were: John A. Walker, 23, Route 2, Box 296A, Saugerties; Stephen M. DeChirico, 17, 1844 Coney Island Ave., Brooklyn; Robert Friscia, 23, 2394 Pine Tree Lane, Saugerties; and Lance A. Budesa, 19, 1198 Ocean Ave., Brooklyn.

All seven were scheduled to appear in City Court this morning

Documents Show MacArthur Lenient Toward Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese leaders met secretly with General Douglas MacArthur in the days following World War II and persuaded him to abandon plans to assume direct military rule over the defeated nation, according to secret documents declassified Sunday.

The 40,000 pages of documents released by the Japanese Foreign Ministry revealed meetings between MacArthur and high Japanese officials never disclosed to newsmen covering the seven-year Allied occupation after Japan's surrender in 1945.

They contrast sharply with the American history book image of MacArthur as the "Yankee Emperor of Japan" during his tour as high commissioner of the Allied occupation forces.

The papers said the late Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu met with MacArthur in Yokohama 17 days after the end of the war and persuaded him to drop a plan to put Japan under direct American military rule.

MacArthur agreed to rule through the existing Japanese government after winning a promise that Japanese officials would carry out his orders.

Among the papers was a draft of the proclamation MacArthur never issued. It would have abolished the Japanese government, put the country under Allied military rule and established English as the official language.

The newly declassified documents also showed that the famous visit of Emperor Hirohito to MacArthur six weeks after the war ended was suggested to MacArthur by another Japanese, Shigeru Yoshida, who had replaced Shigemitsu as foreign minister.

At a meeting with MacArthur on Sept. 20, 1945, Yoshida found MacArthur perplexed about how to deal with Emperor Hirohito, then regarded by the Japanese public as a divinity.

He warned MacArthur that removal of the Emperor might spur resistance to the occupation.

Yoshida suggested that the Emperor call on MacArthur when the general arrived in Tokyo. MacArthur had a friendly meeting with Hirohito a week later and allowed him to stay on the throne as a constitutional monarch.

Yoshida also argued successfuly that introduction of democracy in Japan should be delayed until the country started to get back on its feet. A new constitution making Japan a parliamentary democracy did not go into effect until almost two years later.

MacArthur was in charge of the Allied occupation of Japan from the war's end until he was dismissed by President Harry S. Truman in April 1951.

Pill Safer Than Pregnancy

CHICAGO (UPI) — Despite an increased risk of blood clots and heart attacks in women using birth control pills, the death rate from the pill is lower than pregnancy itself, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists says.

The organization's recent technical bulletin, distributed to more than 18,000 obstetricians and gynecologists, said despite some recent controversy, the benefits of oral contraception far outweigh its possible risks.

One of the main points in favor of the pill, the bulletin says, is that the death rate from the pill is lower than from pregnancy itself.

"No known contraceptive at the present time has a death rate comparable to that of pregnancy," the bulletin said.

The bulletin, a comprehensive compilation of the latest thinking on oral contraceptives, includes information on the pill's side effects, major complications and risk-benefit ratio. It also includes advice to physicians on matters like choice of dosage and patient counseling.

The bulletin reports that an increased risk of thromboembolic diseases — blood clots — has been established with the use of the pill. Also, recent studies have shown an apparent increase in the risk of myocardial infarction, or heart attacks, in women taking the pill.

The bulletin also warns that possible risks of birth defects may be increased in babies born to women who became pregnant shortly after discontinuing use of the pill. It advises that women change to a different type of birth control after going off the pill, await the time when the regular menstrual cycle is re-established and then try to become pregnant.

Women over 40 years old are especially susceptible to the possible dangers of pill use because of the increased risk of heart attacks at that age. However, such women are also more susceptible to complications in pregnancy, the bulletin said.

The conclusions drawn in the bulletin earlier were submitted to the Food and Drug Administration, which is drafting new labeling for oral contraceptives.

The college is the largest national spokesman for obstetricians and gynecologists and is headquartered in Chicago.

FAA Favors Tower Light

KINGSTON — The Federal Aviation Administration is in "complete agreement" that a proposed 150-foot telephone tower off Broadway should be topped with an aircraft warning light, Alderman Titus B. Sims, R-13th Ward, confirmed today.

Sims and the Kingston Zoning Board of Appeals were notified of the FAA position by letter Saturday from the New York Telephone Co., which had taken the matter to the federal agency after Sims brought up the light when the tower proposal was discussed with the ZBA last week.

Sims noted that the tower, to be erected atop the phone company building, could endanger helicopters using the emergency landing pad at nearby Benedictine Hospital.

Viking Set for Life Search

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1's crucial soil sampling arm has been repaired to start the long-awaited quest for life but officials today all but wrote off the robot's locked $2 million seismometer.

The spacecraft began its day today with orders to take a color picture of the American flag painted on it.

Project director James Martin said there was some objection from scientists, who would rather use the time for another scientific picture, "but I'm pretty proud to have an American flag on Mars and it just dosn't look the same in black and white."

Martin said new commands will be radioed to Viking 1 Tuesday morning in a "long shot" attempt to release electronic locks keeping the marsquake meter from operating, but he said he was pessimistic.

"I don't believe that will be successful and we are, in fact, planning now on how to use the data allocation that had been assigned to the seismometer," Martin said. Engineers believe a broken wire caused the problem.

The instrument was designed to magnify ground vibrations 1 million times to detect marsquakes. Scientists hoped the device would have given them an idea whether Mars is an active or dying planet internally.

Also coming up Tuesday is the final course correction maneuver for Viking 2, which carries an identical seismometer. It will swing into Mars orbit Aug. 7 and land in early September.

Martin said scientists have calculated that Viking 1 landed only 22.5 miles from its Martian bullseye after a curving, 440million mile journey from Earth.

Viking 1's life search begins Wednesday when the gold-colored digger will reach out 85 inches, plow into the red Martian soil, scoop up a total of two ounces of dirt and deliver it to the open hopper of Viking's three life detection instruments.

Acting in methodical slow motion, the robot then will extend its reach another five inches and pick up a handful of soil for an instrument designed to look for organic molecules. Still another scoop of soil will go into an inorganic chemistry analyzer.

Engineers had to wait until afternoon before pictures came back from the spacecraft confirming that it indeed had been repaired. It showed not only that it had been done, but one shot showed the pin half buried in the Martian soil where it had fallen.

"We all are very pleased," Martin said. "The boom appears to be working just exactly as it should. I've very happy."

Three separate biology experiments will search the Martian soil for evidence of metabolic and photosynthetic processes of micro-organisms.

One instrument introduces carbon dioxide and carbon monoxide and incubates the sample under artificial sunlight. Another will add a nutrient-rich "chicken soup" solution. The third uses a simpler nutrient to see if anything releases carbon dioxide.

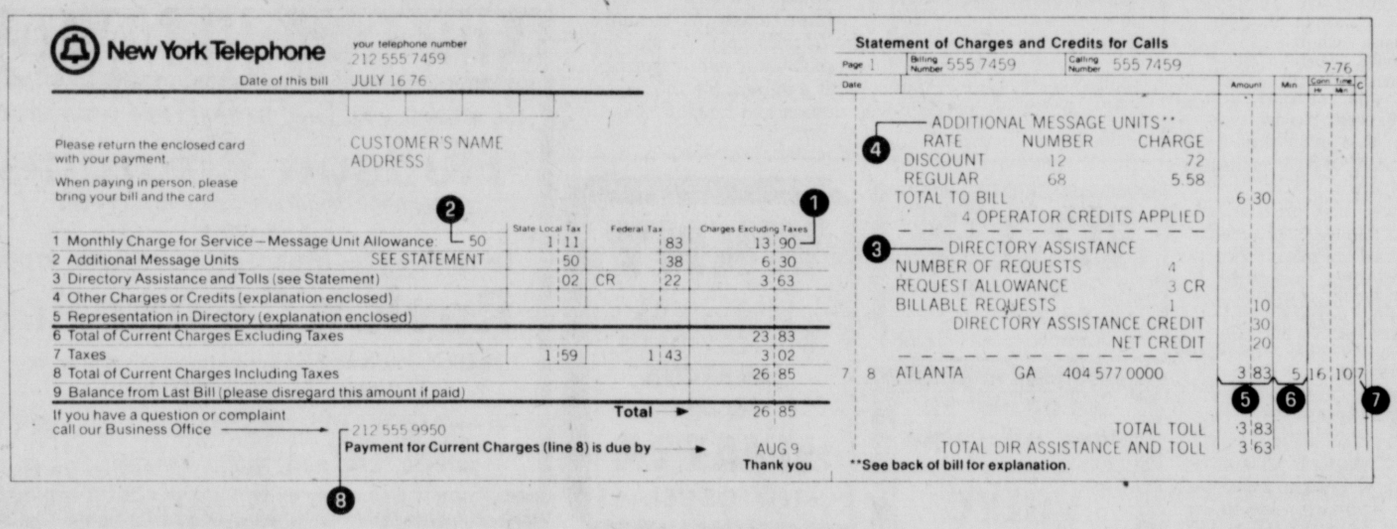
NEWSPAPERS SELL THE MOST!

The more you know about this month's phone bill, the more you can control next month's phone bill.

Your phone bill is full of information about your service and how you use it. Why not take a minute to study it? You may just discover ways to save money, or to get more for what you spend. It pays to know.



1 Combined total of the charges for basic monthly service and any equipment you may have (extensions, etc.). In this case, the basic service charge is $7.34, and the customer has one extension ($1.68), and 2 Trimline® phones ($4.88), which comes to $13.90. An itemization of the charges on line 1 is included with your bill once each year.

2 The number of message units included in your basic service charge—50—if you have message rate service. There is no message unit allowance if you have Basic Budget Service or flat rate service. If you have Basic Budget or flat rate service you are billed for all message units on line 2.

3 Directory Assistance Charges are explained here and on the back of your bill. If you don't make more than 3 requests for the month—and most customers don't—you get a 30¢ credit. In this case, the customer made a net of four billable requests, and the credit dropped to 20¢.

4 If there are additional message unit charges on your bill (line 2), they are explained here. The Discount price (6¢) applies between 9 PM and 9 AM on weekdays, and all day on weekends, Christmas, New Year's, July 4, Labor Day and Thanksgiving. That's a saving of 27% a unit over the Regular rate of 8.2¢. (For message rate customers, the saving applies after you exceed your 50-message unit allowance each month.) We have a free folder to help you keep track of your message units. Just fill in the coupon and mail it to us.

5 This is the cost of a 5-minute daytime, weekday person-to-person call to Atlanta. Person-to-person calls always cost more than station-to-station calls you dial direct without operator assistance. If the same call had been dialed direct, the cost would have been $1.86. We also have a 20¢ rate for direct dialed calls to Atlanta, but that's for only 1 minute, and between 11 PM and 8 AM on weekdays, or on weekends before 5 PM Sunday. Why not take our "Short Course in Long Distance." It's yours for the asking. Just fill in the coupon and mail it to us.

6 The length of each long distance call appears in this column. If you want to keep track of how long you talk, keep a timer near the telephone. Also, know what you want to talk about and you'll cover more in less time.

7 The numbers in Column "C" are explained on the back of the bill. They tell you how you made your long distance call, and the rate in effect at the time. Keeping an eye on Column "C" should remind you that night and weekend rates are lowest.

8 Your business office number appears in this space. Please call us if you have any questions about your bill.

Carey Signs Streamlined Welfare-Medicaid Package

By UPI

A package of bills aimed at modernizing and centralizing the state's welfare and Medicaid programs has gained Gov. Hugh Carey's signature, it was announced today.

The most far-reaching of the measures authorizes and appropriates $1.9 million for the development of a computerized "welfare management system", for storing data on eligibility of applicants for social service aid.

Funding for the system was included in the recently passed supplemental budget, with implementation scheduled for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The central system is to cooperate with, and provide information to, computers operated by local social service districts throughout the state. Bill sponsors claimed it would reduce mismanagement and help detect fraudulent aid applications.

The new law prohibits the distribution of any information to unauthorized sources, to protect the confidentiality of information gathered by a local district and stored in the central computer bank.

A similar measure, recommended by the Temporary State Commission to Revise the Social Services Law, authorizes and appropriates $1.85 million for a Medicaid Management Payment System, to centralize processing of medical assistance payments.

Funds for developing the system in the 1976-77 fiscal year were also included in the supplemental budget.

The bill requires the state to make direct payment to Medicaid providers, such as doctors and hospitals. Local social services districts, which had made such payments in the past, would continue to determine an individual's eligibility for Medicaid.

The measure's sponsors argued a statewide set-up for reviewing Medicaid applications and payments was necessary to better control Medicaid costs and reduce administrative error and payment duplications.

Another bill requires the Social Services department to disregard federal income tax refunds to "working poor" families in determining eligibility for public assistance.

Included in the welfare package was a bill authorizing local social service officials to contract out the operation of work relief programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 (CETA). It was argued many counties were not equipped to develop work slots and screen applicants.

Other measures signed into law would:

— Authorize the use of a publicly or privately owned snowmobile by peace officers on official duty, including for civil defense purposes.

— Require that private proprietary homes for adults provide 30 days notice of increased rates due to higher maintenance and operation costs.

— Require the Board of Social Welfare, in consideraing an application for an adult proprietary home, to weigh public need for the facility against relative concentration of such homes in the area to be served.

— Prohibit discrimination in the granting of credit. Creditors would be barred from determining credit worthiness by making inquiries regarding race, creed, color, national origin, sex, marital status or disability. The liklihood of a woman becoming pregnant is also ruled out as a legal credit consideration.

— Authorize state savings and loan associations to pool together in writing a high-rish mortgage, to encourage investments in run-down inner city and rural areas — so-called redlined districts which have in recent years been unable to attract capital for rehabilitation.

— Require the refund of unearned interest or unused credit insurance premiums upon the default or death of the borrower.

Mayor Beame Still Undecided on Second Term

NEW YORK (UPI) — Close associates of Mayor Abraham Beame insist that the mayor, despite reports to the contrary, has not yet decided whether to seek a second term in office.

The official response from the mayor's press office to queries about Beame's political plans is that he has not yet made a decision. Beame himself has said he has been too busy in recent months to give the matter serious thought. Highly reliable sources close to Beame insist that this is so.

However, sources close to the local leadership of the Democratic party report that Beame, while technically not yet a candidate, has embarked on a program of campaign-like activities designed to leave the option open to him or strengthen the chances of his personal choice as a successor.

That choice, the sources say, is Manhattan Borough President Percy Sutton, who has shaved his goatee, divested his interest in a Harlem newspaper and begun making a political and social circuit in an effort to boost his visibility.

Sutton, if he runs and is elected, would be the city's first black mayor. He has said he won't be a candidate if Beame elects to run again.

"Whether he's running or not, he looks like a candidate," says one city councilman. And that, according to the party sources, is exactly the plan.

They say the timetable calls for Beame to keep up the appearance of running, at least until next summer, when he will either declare or choose Sutton.

Beame, who is 70, is now in his third year as mayor. If he were to seek re-election, he would face a primary in the fall of 1977.

Party sources say Beame's pleasure at being mayor has increased dramatically in recent weeks with the easing off of the fiscal crisis and the success of the Democratic convention, Operation Sail and other city-related summer activities.

He also is said to be enthusiastic about his active role locally in the Jimmy Carter presidential campaign.

On the other hand, Beame's family — and particularly his wife, Mary — are reported not too happy with the prospect of another four years in Gracie Mansion. Too fresh is the memory of too many nights of three hours sleep or less last fall as the city nudged official bankruptcy.

Cubans Caught with Bomb

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three Cubans believed to be members of a militant anti-Castro group have been caught planting a powerful pipe bomb outside a Manhattan theater where a proCastro musical festival was scheduled.

Authorities said the three suspects, all aliens living in New Jersey, were believed to be members of Omega 7, a right-wing group opposed to the Castro regime.

The organization previously claimed responsibility for bombing the Cuban mission to the United Nations last month, and the Venezuelan U.N. mission on Feb. 1, 1975, authorities said.

Police said officers arrested the trio Saturday morning, just as they were attempting to light the fuse of a pipe bomb near the box office of the Academy of Music.

The Academy was scheduled to host a Saturday night musical and dance program, "In Concert with Cuba: Break the Blockade," sponsored by the July 26 Committee, a pro-Castro group.

Police described the bomb as an eight-inch long, galvanized pipe containing one pound and five ounces of C-4, a high order explosive. "It would have blown out the whole front of the theater," a department spokesman said.

Police said the suspects were spotted by officers of the department's Intelligence Division and the Arson and Explosion Squad who were staking out the theater in anticipation of trouble on July 26, the commemorative date of the Cuban revolution.

The department spokesman added police had "established surveillance on several locations as possible targets of pro-Castro or anti-Castro groups."

A spokeswoman for the July 26 Committee said, "Tonight's show will go on in spite of any form of terrorism." Police would not say whether they had any plans to beef up security but only that "adequate protection would be provided."

The bombing suspects were identified as George Gomez, 28, of Union City, N.J.; Armand Santana, 25, of West New York, N.J., and Alfredo Chumanceiro, 22, of Union City.

A loaded, 9-mm automatic pistol was found tucked in the waist of Santana's trousers, the spokesman said, and it was learned that the men had driven to New York in a stolen car with a New Jersey registration.

The three were charged with attempted arson, reckless endangerment, criminal possession of a dangerous weapon and possession of a stolen car.

Jobless Fund Minus

MONTPELIER, Vt., (UPI) — Vermont Employment Security Commissioner Madelyn Davidson says the state's jobless compensation fund is now about $36 million in the red.

Mrs. Davidson noted Saturday the unemployment compensation tax paid last year by the state averaged almost $265 per covered worker. She said the average tax paid by employers for each covered worker was about $94.

"Obviously, you can't keep this cost-benefit ratio going for long without being deeply in debt," she said.

Mrs. Davidson also noted the smallest gain in average weekly wages from 1972 to 1975 was recorded by state employes.

According to figures released by her office, the average wage for state workers climbed only 8.3 per cent during that threeyear period.

It rose from about $144 in 1972 to about $156 in 1975, increasing wages an average of $4 a year.

The largest percentage increase occurred in the agriculture and forestry services industries. The average pay in those two industries climbed from $94 a week to $131 a week over the three year period covered by the survey.

Workers in the retail and trade industries received the lowest average weekly pay last year. They received an average of almost $123 a week. That was an increase of about $17 a week compared to their average pay in 1972.

More Money Possible

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An audit released Sunday reports that pari-mutuel tax revenues from on-track betting are being effectively monitored by the state, but that if taxes were submitted more promptly and immediately invested, the state could earn an estimated $1.5 million more in interest annually.

The report from the State Department of Audit and Control said that tracks operated by the New York Racing Association (Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga) were permitted to defer paying pari-mutuel taxes 35 days after they were due, to help NYRA maintain its cash needs.

However, this practice has deprived the state of an estimated $800,000 in interest in 1973 and 1974, according to the report. Auditors recommended any tax deferral requests be carefully evaluated and monitored.

The report also said a delay in transferring funds from a non-interest bearing Department of Taxation account to the state's General Fund resulted in a potential loss to the state of $700,000 annually. The audit report said the Department had corrected this problem.

The report criticized Taxation Department examiners for spending "an inordinate amount of time" verifying that racing associations were submitted the proper tax and recommended the department spend more time following up on off-track betting operations.

"In contrast to the on-track examinations, the pari-mutuel revenue unit has done only very limited auditing to verify that the State is receiving its proper share of the betting pools in the off-track area," the report said.

The pari-mutuel tax, levied on all amounts wagered on horse races, in 1974 produced $158.9 million and the racing admissions tax raised $811,000. In that year, off-track corporations remitted $14.2 million — or 9 per cent of the revenue produced by on-track sources.

Crime Strikes Home

FREEPORT, Ill. (UPI) — Sherry King, 21, news director at a local radio station, may find it uupsetting to give another editorial on the increasing rate of theft and vandalism.

She delivered an editorial on radio station WFRO about the increasing crime rate early Sunday and then returned home to find that someone had broken into her house and had taken about $700 in stereo equipment.

Favors Israeli-Palestinian Cooperation

A strong sense of justice inherent in his Jewish faith leads Rabbi Jerome W. Grollman to believe Israel should help the Palestinians set up their own state in the Middle East. "I cannot deny to another what I ask for myself," he says. He looks back at the obstacles Zionists had to overcome to establish Israel, and he thinks Israel should work with the Palestinians including the PLO if necessary.

U.S. Scenario of Death for North Koreans

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The United States last year scripted a saber-rattling scenario for quick victory should the Indochina debacle tempt Communist North Korea to invade South Korea.

The scenario, given wide press coverage 13 months ago at the time of the 25th anniversary of the start of the Korean War, was made public for a dual purpose.

The United States wanted to warn North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung against military adventurism and, at the same time, reassure South Korea of America's military support if the Communists from the north invaded.

Some of the top American military brass here warned that the invaders could be crushed by massive air and artillery strikes in just nine days.

The main killing zone, according to the scenario, would be in North Korea, where hordes of Communist troops presumably would be massed for the push toward this capital city, just 24 miles south of the Demilitarized Zone, which separates the two Koreas.

Once the invaders hit the DMZ, the American strategists said, all hell would break loose and the fate of the Communist aggressors would be sealed.

Lt. Gen. James F. Hollingsworth, then commander of I Corps, boasted that it would take just five days to repulse and cripple the invasion force. The tough-talking Texan said another four days would be needed to "tidy up" the battlefield.

There were even dark hints from Washington, if not threats, of the possible use of the tactical nuclear weaponry the United States has deployed in South Korea.

The United States now considers that it has successfully imparted the message to both Koreas, so it has toned down its war rhetoric.

However, it also believes that the basic threat from the north remains, so it does not want to withdraw its 42,000 troops based in South Korea.

But retaining U.S. forces in South Korea has been complicated by increasing criticism here and in the United States of the authoritarian rule of President Park Chung Hee.

In recent week more than a dozen church leaders have been arrested causing fear among Western diplomats that the detentions may signal an all-out government crackdown on the clergy under Park's tough anti-Communist laws.

The clergymen arrested had been ministering to slum dwellers.

The government, which already has put down student opposition, is known to fear an uprising among the poor.

There is no question that the South Korean economy has boomed and the nation appears ready for an industrial takeoff. But clergymen who oppose Park contend that despite the boom the economic gap between the rich and the poor has widened.

The government maintains that acts which foment social disorder must be dealt with forcefully in the face of threats of aggression from North Korea and to protect the rights of the majority.

There is evidence that the United States is officially displeased with South Korea, where even to criticize the government is an illegal act.

The United States has this to say for the record: "Our unhappiness with the human rights situation has been stated publicly and privately to the Korean government."

That, say critics of the Park regime, is a Milquetoast position.

Some of them hope to see Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential hopeful, in the White House.

Their reasoning is that Carter, a man who has spent a lot of time in Sunday school, would take a dim view of a government that evidently has a penchant for jailing preachers.

Queen Goes Home

MONTREAL (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth departed for home early Monday, concluding a 13day visit to Canada, which included presiding over opening ceremonies of the XXI Olympic Games.

The Queen and her two youngest sons, Andrew, 16, and Edward, 12, left Dorval Airport at 12:20 a.m. EDT aboard a Canadian Armed Forces Boeing 707 jet for London.

The royal party arrived in Canada July 13 after a twoweek tour of the United States to participate in several American Bicentennial celebrations.

While here, the Queen attended several Olympic events, including each day her daughter, Princess Anne, competed as part of Great Britain's equestrian team in the three-day event.

The team failed to place, two of its four horses being forced to pull out due to injuries. Anne was 24th in the final individual rankings.

Boosts Rabin

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Israeli rescue raid at Entebbe, Uganda, has boosted Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's political fortunes, but the question is for how long.

Rabin's stock had been falling before the raid and his colleagues in the Labor party were questioning his leadership and chances for survival. The airborne commando rescue of more than 100 hijacked persons in Uganda seems to have changed all that.

Rabin's associates report the 54-year-old prime minister has been loudly cheered on entering public functions. But political observers say his new popularity may not be enough for him to overcome Israel's domestic and international problems.

"It's a long way to the 1977 national elections," commented one veteran observer.

Sadat Again?

CAIRO (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat will almost certainly be nominated to succeed himself when parliament meets Aug. 17, despite previous statements by him that he will not run for another six-year term.

What's more, Arab diplomats said they fully expect Sadat will accept the nomination. The nominee of parliament will be endorsed by the people in a nationwide vote Oct. 2, and new parliamentary elections will follow Oct. 25.

Sadat, who succeeded the late Gamal Abdel Nasser, will complete his first term in October.

Defensive Pact?

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — The joint defense pact which Egypt and the Sudan concluded July 15 is directed against Libya. What remains to be seen is whether the pact is purely defensive, or whether the two countries will resort to the same tactics they accuse Libya of trying against them.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry signed the pact after accusing Libyan ruler Moammar Khadafy of organizing an abortive coup against Numeiry July 2. They also blame him for a series of bombing incidents in the Egyptian cities of Alexandria and Mersa Matrouh.

Egypt formally committed itself in the pact to rush to Numeiry's assistance should he face trouble again. But Arab diplomats are now waiting to see if the pact means more than this — specifically whether the two countries decide to borrow a leaf from Khadafy's own book and organize trouble for him at home.

Good Timing

BEIRUT (UPI) — Arab League officials insist the current illness of league Secretary General Mahmoud Riad is not diplomatic. Nonetheless it came at a fortunate time for him.

Riad went to Zurich for treatment of an eye disease right after an Arab foreign ministers conference had called on him to implement a cease-fire in the Lebanese civil war, reconcile the Palestinians and Syrians and get peace talks started.

Riad's plea to the conference — "do not overburden me" — went unheeded. The former Egyptian foreign minister, who had twice before visited Lebanon but failed to end the civil war, felt his distinguished career might be threatened by another failure.

His illness has enabled him to postpone a mission he never wanted to undertake.

May Broaden

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel's "good fence" policy with Lebanon may conceivably develop into an open bridges policy such as exists with Jordan.

In the last four months, Israeli medical teams have treated 3,000 Christian and Moslem Lebanese patients at two border stations. Now Lebanese are being allowed to buy fuel, food and water inside Israel.

Although southern Lebanon has served as a base for Arab guerrilla strikes into Israel, relations with the villagers have been good over the years. Israel may now want to solidify that relationship should the time become right for an Israeli move into that part of Lebanon.

STAFF'S CHANCE

Hurray for Zena Store

A number of Zena residents are dismayed at the general store and restaurant proposed for construction across from the Zena Elementary School. They seem to be convinced there is no need for commercial development in the area.

As a ten-year Zena resident, I welcome the new market. Although the stores on Route 28 and in West Hurley may be close enough for some of my neighbors, others, like me for instance, would enjoy being able to walk to buy our household goods.

The existing establishments are not within practical walking distance for most area residents. It would be a real time-saver if parents could send the kids out for a quart of milk despite the fact that they are under driving age. Families could chase the spiders away from their bicycles and pedal to the local market.

At last! A neighborhood general store! I hope it's ready to open as soon as possible.

Press Is Hidden By Paper

Dear Editor:

I have subscribed to your publication since moving to Hurley two years ago.

I remember when you moved into your new facilities on Hurley Avenue, but I have just been appalled to learn of the total disregard for aesthetics perpetrated at that address. As I understand it, the architects had this fantastic idea to build a giant window on the pressroom so that passers-by might view the presses in action and marvel at the spectacle.

Having paid for the creativity and ingenuity of these men, you have the nerve and audacity to place huge rolls of ugly paper in the window. How insensitive and ridiculous. This problem has plagued me since I learned of the great idea and your total disregard for it.

I hope that being aware of the problem will lead you to move towards a solution promptly.

Esopus Had Bicentennial Fun

Dear Editor:

Hats off to the Bicentennial Committee in the Town of Esopus! They gave us a fun-filled, long to be remembered birthday celebration.

Young and old gathered around to enjoy the festivities. The parade was so colorful with its many original floats. Towards evening, everyone received a piece of the gigantic birthday cake. They also had dancing waters, a soothing sight indeed. The firemen's pub on a bucket exhibition and, to end perfect day, a band played for all to enjoy.

I'm sure it was a labor of love for all the people who worked so hard. However, it showed in the results.

I don't like to sound repetitious, but this was just one more reason I'm so proud to be a part of the Town of Esopus.

Watch Out for Mail Fraud

Dear Editor:

I'm writing concerning mail fraud and suggesting you print this letter to prevent other people from making the same mistake I did. The Treasure Baby Shoe Company of 5673 Selmaraine Drive, Culver City, Calif. has a "satisfaction guaranteed" sign on their envelope but, in fact, do not refund if you are not satisfied. Their processing is a spray paint job with auto primer. The shoes come back soft and on cheap plastic bases. Mothers, beware!

Why Subsidize Central Hudson?

Dear Editor:

I was appointed by the Plattekill Taxpayers Association to attend the public hearing held July 8 in Poughkeepsie and to speak out against such a raise. My message follows:

I am not a speaker, not a college graduate like the attorney for Central Hudson, but I have a great deal of personal experience; as such I will do my best to express my feelings.

The Bicentennial we are celebrating is a mockery of our democratic system. We are witnessing the rise and fall of our community because of the great conspiracy on the part of Central Hudson, Con Ed, Lockheed, etc.

The attorney for Central Hudson pleads poverty. Why must we subsidize Central Hudson with higher rates? Why should we guarantee a profit to such a corporation? Who guarantee us profit? Central Hudson says, "subsidize." Our slogan will be, "nationalize." If Central Hudson is not able to operate on the present basis, let them close business and follow the example of the small businesses.

Our America of 1976 is in distress, suffering from unemployment, recession, depression, and bankruptcy. We are suffering, let the big sharks suffer also.

I came here not to plead for mercy, but to accuse. I regard the commissioner not as a public servant, but as a proven tool of the corporations. We cannot recognize the commissioner as our protector, but as a hangman.

ANGELO DELEWIS
Exec. Board member,
Plattekill Taxpayers Assn.

Kill Game, Not Babies

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on David Stalzer's letter of July 19.

I am the mother of four beautiful children — and as such have had four pregnancies. Would Mr. Stalzer have any idea what it is like to feel life inside of you (and sometimes as early as two months!? I am Catholic, but just the thought of abortion hurts me, more as a mother than as a Catholic. There are many other religions and non-religious groups that condemn abortion.

As for hunting, there are people in this area who depend on hunting to supply meat for their families in the winter months. There are, and will always be, people who abuse any facet of life.

Please explain one thing — how can anyone so adamantly condemn the hunting of animals and so valiantly applaud the murder of babies?

Another Moral President: Hayes

WASHINGTON - A governor, a man almost wholly unknown outside his own state before his nomination, a non-Washington, anti-Eastern Establishment candidate: Rutherford B. Hayes. It will be 100 years this autumn that Hayes was elected the 19th President of the United States.

It would be deceptive to push the comparison too far, but the similarities between the man from Freemont, Ohio, and the man from Plains, Georgia, are close enough so that the past may give us a small insight into the present.

Carter and Hayes were nominated for much the same reasons. The major figures in their parties who wanted the designation were either too closely associated with the mess in Washington or were too divisively controversial. An unknown of impeccable probity, a person absolutely unconnected with scandals involving both the White House and the Congress, a man free of the taint of "Grantism" was what the Republican Party and the nation needed. Hayes was to do for the presidency what Carter is offering to try to do, restore respect for it.

So here we have that much-spoken-of individual, the honest man trying to function as such in politics. Here we have a test of the proposition that the moral man can be a restorative to the body politic. It is a fair test because Hayes' virtues weren't cooked up by his press agents. By the standards of his age or ours, Rutherford B. Hayes was a good man.

He was a good man in a bad situation. The 1876 campaign was by all odds the crookedest, most violent, most dishonest, most venal election in our history. By comparison the sins of Watergate are trifling. So many votes were stolen that Hayes' election by the margin of one electoral vote could not be decided until the challenged results from four states were determined by a special commission composed of five senators, five congressmen and five Supreme Court justices.

Hayes had no part in this massive dishonesty - presidential candidates often had little control over their campaigns in that era - but he was the beneficiary of it. "Rutherfraud B. Hayes," his enemies called him, but what does the good man do in these circumstances? He could have retired from politics or he had to suffer being connected with some of the worst blackguards in our history.

The good man also had to be fuzzy on many of the issues, including the most important one, the question of continuing to have Federal troops occupy the states of Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana. We know from Hayes' diaries that he always intended to put the Civil War behind us, and when he actually entered office he appointed a Southern Democrat to his cabinet. But if he was perhaps the first president to appoint a member of the opposite party in the modern sense to a cabinet position, he would have lost the election had he said what he was going to do before taking the oath of office. Is this duplicity or does Hayes' example tell us that, past a certain point, you can't demand specificity of a campaigning politician if he is to practice his trade?

How did Hayes show people the kind of man he was? He didn't do it by a public religiosity. He supported churches the way he supported the Odd Fellows, his fraternal lodge, but never pretended he was a Christian. The Episcopal Bishop of Ohio once wrote him saying, "While I am sure that in your private thoughts you bow submissively to God... is there not the highest of all reasons that your allegiance should be openly made known?" (As quoted from "Rutherford B. Hayes and his America," by Harry Barnard, Bobbs-Merrill, Indianapolis, 1954.) Hayes thought not.

He made few specific promises, but those he kept. Having run on a platform of civil service reform and ending the patronage spoils system, he made good on his word. When powerful members of his own party would come into his office demanding appointments for people in their political organizations, Hayes would pull a copy of the Republican Party platform out and read it to them. This caused one miffed Senator to walk out and exclaim, "He thinks he's George Washington!" The rumor got around, however, that there might be an honest man camping out in the White House.

But honesty can appear to be nothing more than a device for ambition. That sort of dishonest honesty can percolate through the public facade and produce a feeling of uneasiness whereby people feel uncomfortable with a politician but can't exactly put their finger on why. This may be a problem for Jimmy Carter but it wasn't for Hayes, who had an immense and thoughtful but not visionary concern for the people of this land.

It wasn't a feigned thing to be put off after having attained office, as his diaries attest. While in office he had favored such measures as federal aid to local public schools, and out of office his continuing concern moved him to write things that none of the three current presidential contenders would probably care to say into a TV camera: "We ought not to allow a permanent aristocracy of inherited wealth to grow up on our country... Vast accumulations of wealth in a few hands are hostile to labor. Their tendency is to break down fair competition, to build up monoply, to corrupt politics, to bribe conventions, legislative bodies, courts and juries, to debauch society; and churches are not beyond the reafh of their baneful influence."

Not bad, Rutherford, and better yet is that this founder of the Republican Party promised in his campaign that if elected he'd never run again. He kept that promise too.

Execute Murderers in Public

He was young and fair. He glanced shyly at the principal keeper and the P.K. nodded. He sat in the awkward oaken chair and closed his eyes and sighed as two men whirled the straps. He was dead in three minutes, a mass of swollen, bursting flesh and smoking hands.

The name is pointless. The young man was the first of a dozen and a half men whose deaths I was assigned to cover. I recall his face when I don't want to remember.

Now the legal killing is about to start again. The Supreme Court said that capital punishment "is an expression of society's moral outrage at particularly offensive conduct... an extreme sanction suitable to the most extreme crimes."

There are 592 condemned prisoners on death row. Of these, 310 are black, 12 are women. Some will die. Some will win new trials. Some will win commutations to life imprisonment.

No one knows which or why. All are doing a bit of dying each night when the lights go out. They deserve no sympathy. You snuff a life; you get snuffed.

I fought against capital punishment. No more. This nation is drenched with violence. If we cannot stop it, the least we can do is make crime expensive.

My quarrel with the law is its hypocrisy. Our prosecutors ask juries to believe that capital punishment is a deterrent to others. The Supreme Court said that this has never been proved.

How can it stop future murders when the killer is executed in secrecy? Kill him in public. Come one, come all - watch a man fry. Let everyone see what can happen if you take a life.

As a first step, we should make five-minute color movies of each execution. Copies should be sent to all federal, state and county jails.

Show it in the mess halls. All prisoners should be forced to watch it. In the main, these are the future killers. Give them a closeup of what the end of the road looks like.

My suspicion is that while the execution of a murderer is no longer regarded as "cruel and unusual punishment," the movie would be called cruel and unusual punishment.

And there, my friend, is the heart of the hypocrisy. We want the right to kill, but we don't want to be caught bragging about it. Newspaper stories about executions, as deterrents, cannot hope to match the impact of watching the law exact the final price for crime.

I do not cry for blood. Our prison system smells. Our parole boards are not competent to judge which felon is rehabilitated, and which one is not. If a convict is sentenced to 10 years, the judge is part of the deceit if he knows the prisoner will be out in seven.

The reason we have law is to protect the citizenry from its criminal element. It is obvious to everyone but the lawyers that we do not get sufficient protection.

One who is convicted of a premeditated crime of violence should be as easily identified as the biblical leper who wore a bell. Tattoo a red circle on the tip of his nose and the backs of both hands.

When he gets out of jail, he will carry his warning red light wherever he goes. Is this too "cruel and unusual"? Hardly. The menace to society is the violent person. It is cruel, I feel, not to give law-abiding people an opportunity to identify him on sight.

You've heard the word recidivist. It means repeater. Our recidivism rate is 35 per cent. Put the tattoo marks on all of them. It will make it difficult for them to find work, but they don't want work anyway. Most of them are certain that crime does pay.

I sound callous. And yet, after many years of covering trials, I am convinced that the law must punish swiftly and relentlessly, or movd backward to the submissive suspended sentence syndrome. Find him guilty and give him free psychiatric treatment. He didn't commit a crime; society did it to him.

We cannot move halfway. A police captain said, "I'm glad I'm a cop today. Somewhere out there is a nut with a gun. I have a gun. This gives me a little edge over the rest of you."

Think about it.

FTC Bows To Big Oil Interests

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission is supposed to protect the public from rigged prices. Yet it has dropped a case that its staff says would have brought down the prices of automobile accessories.

The staff developed evidence that Amoco, Exxon, Sohio . and Standard Oil of California were restraining competition. The four oil giants jointly own the Atlas Supply Co., which sells tires, batteries and accessories.

Through Atlas, the oil companies allegedly were able to manipulate prices. They accomplished this, according to confidential FTC memos, by restricting the distribution of Atlas accessories and keeping them out of the hands of discounters.

The FTC staff wanted to break the tight hold of the four oil companies on Atlas products. This would have increased competition, resulting in "lower prices to comsumers on the two largest volume products, tires and batteries," states one confidential memo.

Yet the FTC, despite the strong objections of staff investigators, refused to take the four oil companies to court. Instead, the FTC filed a "Part II" complaint against the quartet. This was a cozy backroom procedure which permitted the companies to conduct secret negotiations and to seek an out-of-court settlement without painful publicity.

The closed-door negotiations dragged on for several months, but the FTC staff was unable to bring the oil companies to terms. One FTC proposal would have made Atlas products available to independent wholesalers, who could then compete with the four oil giants for the business of retail dealers.

Another proposal would have barred the four companies from assigning their chief marketing officials to serve together on the Atlas board. The board is now dominated by the Big Four's marketing specialists, who have developed and implemented anticompetitive practices.

But the oil barons, in the secrecy of the FTC backrooms, refused to cooperate. A confidential memo, summarizing the negotiations, reported bluntly: "The respondents' final settlement offer includes only token concessions ... and would fail to prevent Atlas from continuing to be a medium for collusion."

Frustrated over the oilmen's unwillingness to compromise, the FTC staff broke off negotiations. A sharply worded memo, signed by several high-level staff members, recommended that the FTC file a formal complaint in court to break up Atlas.

"On any scale," declares the memo, "the anticompetitive aspects inherent in this combination outweigh any possible benefits ... Divestiture is an essential remedy."

But the FTC, like other regulatory agencies, is overrun by the lawyers and lobbyists of the corporations that are supposed to be regulated. The commissioners, their actions hidden from the public, refused to file suit against the four oil giants.

This made the staff so angry that it recommended dropping the whole matter and the FTC voted to close the file on the case.

Footnote: An FTC spokesman said he couldn't comment. A spokemman from Atlas also refused to comment because of the case's confidential matter.

ARMY VS. INDIANS: Classified Army documents describe an attempt by the Army brass to take 757 acres from the Nisqually Indians.

Ironically, the leader of this landgrab, Maj. Gen. Volney Warner, was a leading participant in the 1973 Wounded Knee crisis.

There is an even deeper irony. The land Warner wants is the former hunting ground of the famed Nisqually hero, Chief Leschi. He led the gallant Nisqually tribe in its last uprising against the Army in 1850. For his heroic but futile stand, Leschi was hanged by the Army.

Subsequently, the tribe was confined to a 4,700-acre reservation in Washington state. All but the 757 acres were grabbed by the Army in 1918. Now the Army wants the remaining Nisqually land for a training area and firing range.

The classified documents show the Army wanted to expropriate the acreage in 1972 and 1973. The move was postponed, however, "in view of the Wounded Knee controversy." The memo, signed by Maj. Gen. John Henlon, then commander of Fort Lewis, Wash., suggested: "We should await a more propitious time."

Again this year, the Army Engineers in another classified memo cited the "controversial nature" of the takeover and postponed it "at this time."

But Gen. Warner of Wounded Knee fame has now assumed command of Fort Lewis. He not only wants to confiscate the Indian acreage but he wants to negotiate with federal officials rather than talk directly with the Nisquallys.

The Indians have complained to us that they are being harassed, meanwhile, by the Army. They charge the Army has lobbed live artillery shells over their reservation, has buzzed Nisqually fishermen with helicopters and has invaded the reservation in tanks and trucks.

Footnote: Gen. Warner confirmed to us that he wants the land but says the Indians' protests mean he probably will fail. He swears he has cut off artillery firing over the reservation. His tanks and trucks crossed Indian land only once, he said, during an emergency. He denies completely that his helicopters have buzzed the Indians.

Former Interior Boss Strong Advocate of Pipeline

Hickel has no retirement plans in sight

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — A consummate businessman, astute politico and articulate spokesman on energy and the environment, Walter Hickel is a one-man microcosm of the key issues besetting the 49th state.

As Secretary of the Interior from 1969 to 1970, Hickel built a nationwide reputation as a conservationist.Most Alaskans, however, know him as a millionaire developer.

One of many drawn to the "last frontier" for its wide-open spaces and wilderness, Hickel stayed on to make a fortune developing that land.

He arrived in Anchorage in 1941 with 37 cents and a firm belief in the free enterprise system.Today, he commands Hickel Investment Company, an empire of hotels, motels, shopppng centers and real estate.

Despite his longtime residence, some "sourdoughs" view Hickel as an interloper, out to further his fortune at the expense of the landscape. They cite his enthusiastic support of the trans-Alaska pipeline, a project that has brought people, congestion — and dollars — to Anchorage.

While Hickel is concerned about Alaska's unique environment, he parts from some conservationists in his support of the pipeline. He doesn't think sound conservation and good business are mutually exclusive. Copies of "National Wildlife" magazine vie with "Alaska Industry" on Hickel's coffee table.

"They should build three more pipelines," he says. "The pipeline is notjust good for Alaska. It's a necessity for America.

"We can depend on other countries for TV sets and watches," he says, "but when you're talking about energy. you're talking about the one nation in the world that must maintain its freedom."

Oil played a big part in Hickel's two-year stint as Secretary of the Interior when an oil drilling platform blew out in the Santa Barbara Channel in 1969. Offshore drilling regulations were tightened as a result.

Looking back, Hickel says his proudest accomplishments in the Interior post was "not anything I did for the environment but clearing up the relationship between government and big business."

The governor of Alaska from 1966 to 1969, Hickel says the principles of business can be applied to government "although government's role is different.It doesn't have to make a profit — although it does have to be managed well."

Two years ago Hickel made a second bid for the governorship but lost the Republican nomination to the unorthodox Jay Hammomd. The bearded former hunting guide, a study in contrast to Hickel, was elected.

Does Hickel — a prolific speech maker who sends copies of his script to the media — -have further political aspirations?

"None that are apparent to me," he hedges. "Nothing clear."

Yet, he admits he "thought about running for president in 1976, but we have a presidential candidate." Hickel will be a Ford delegate at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City.

In his mid-50s, Hickel has no plans to retire soon. "It's not any fun," he says, wide-eyed at the suggestion. "To retire without doing anything couldn't fit my temperament."

Hickel spends his days now meeting whqt he calls "my social, political and financial obligations."

He likes "the movement of travel," but gets restless in one place. Cruising his boat in Prince William Sound with his wife, Ermalee, is a favorite pastime.

A self-described homebody, Hickel enjoys working in his yard and visiting with any combination of his six sons who are in and out.

But surprises still pop up in the orderly existence of Walter Hickel. When he resigned as Secretary of the Interior in 1970, Hickel criticized the White House staff that blocked his access to Richard Nixon. Last week, "out of the blue," he received a novel autographed by it's author. The inscription read, "With warm affection, John Ehrlichman."

Solitary Union Man Seeking Profit Sharing

DETROIT (UPI) — Jack Stariha is persistent but patient. Most of all, he's frugal.

The 77-year-old retired auto worker has been a strong union man for the better part of his life. Since 1945, he's been trying to convince the United Auto Workers and the auto companies that workers should share in company profits.

In that whole time, he's used the same sign — first fashioned in the year World War 2 ended.

It reads: "Hey Leonard — A just share of the profits for the auto worker."

The sign used to read: "Hey Walter — A just share of the profits for the auto worker."

The Walter mentioned in the sign was Walter Reuther, the fiery labor leader killed in a plane crash in 1970. He was succeeded by Leonard Woodcock.

Rather than printing a new sign, Stariha simply stapled a piece of paper reading "Leonard" over "Walter."

Wherever Leonard Woodcock, president of the 1.4 million member union, shows up, Stariha shows up, too.

Often, he's a solitary figure.

Recently, he alone greeted Woodcock as the UAW president arrived at Chrysler Corp. to open contract negotiations.

DEAR ABBY

Mother Has Been on Both Sides of Adoption Table

DEAR ABBY: Many parents are disturbed because in some states it is now possible for adult adopted children to "unseal" their records and find out who their biological parents are.

This is an answer to my prayers because somewhere in the world is a 21-year-old girl I gave up for adoption because I was an unwed mother who wanted my child to have a better life than I could give her at the time.

I hope my daughter wants to know her "real" mother. I want her to know that I have no desire to replace the woman who raised her. I just want my daughter to accept me as her "other mother." I wonder if she realizes that I could have done what many other girls in my position have done—had an abortion. Instead I chose to risk my own life in childbirth in order to give her life.

Perhaps my daughter would like to meet me just to say, "Thank you."—HER OTHER MOTHER.

DEAR OTHER: Please read on for a letter from a mother who has been on both sides of the adoption table. DEAR ABBY: When I was 17 I had a baby girl out of wedlock. I gave her up for adoption because her father couldn't marry me. (He was married.)

I became a registered nurse and subsequently married a very fine physician. We seemed unable to have children, so we adopted a baby girl. Within a year I gave birth to a baby girl. Two more children followed.

I have never forgotten the baby I gave away, but I hope with all my heart she does not seek me out. The woman who adopted her and raised her from infancy is the only mother she's ever known and is her "real" mother in every sense of the word.

I know, because I am also the mother of an adopted child whom I love every bit as much as my biological children. If my adopted daughter were to seek out her biological mother, deep down I would be crushed.

If my biological daughter were to suddenly locate me, I can see nothing but problems for her, my family and the parents who adopted her.

I realize that all adopted children are curious about their biological parents, but in satisfying their curiosity, they are bound to open up a lot of wounds and create many problems.

I think one set of parents is enough for any child. What do you think, Abby?—BOTH SIDES.

DEAR BOTH: I agree.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "INFORMATION, PLEASE" IN RENO: It is not necessary to sign your name or include an address to have your letter appear in my column. And yes, all letters are held in the strictest of confidence. A personal reply will be sent to those who enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. My address: P.O. Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

PREPARATIONS ARE UNDERWAY for Heritage Day in New Paltz August 7. Gathering at the old French Church are colonial garbed troops and womenfolk. The New York Second Regiment will be encamped at the end of Huguenot Street and will drill throughout the day. Heritage Day honoring Huguenot Street, the oldest street in America, circa 1678, and the French ancestors will be part of Red Carpet Week activities in New Paltz.

Phi Delta Kappa Lists Discussion

NEW PALTZ—Phi Delta Kappa, New Paltz Chapter, will hold a luncheon-panel discussion meeting July 28 at 1 p.m. at the Student Union Building with Dr. Ray Snider, chairman.

The three-speaker panel will enlarge the theme, "Special Education: Extending the Concept of Individual Differences."

Ms. Peggy Taylor, director of Migrant Education at the van den Berg Learning Center, will speak on aspects of the education of the migrant child.

Dr. Joseph Eulie, professor of Education, will speak on the education of the gifted child.

Dr. Joseph Castellano, chairman Department of Educational Studies, will speak on education as a rehabilitative measure.

Discussion with the audience will be featured following brief opening presentations by the panelists.

The public is invited. Luncheon reservations may be made by calling Dr. Ray Snider, Department of Secondary Education, SUNY at New Paltz.

Dr. Stephen Pauker Writes on Heart Surgery

BOSTON — The physician's role as a decision-maker in weighing the benefits of coronary bypass surgery against conservative medical therapy is critically examined by Tufts cardiologist Dr. Stephen Pauker in the July issue of the "Annals of Internal Medicine." Dr. Pauker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pauker, 17A Stony Run, Kingston.

He notes that simple, straight forward decisions by the physician are appropriate in clinical situations such as appendicitis. In that case surgical risks are low, potential benefits are high, and the optimum decision is determined largely by the medical facts.

"Unfortunately," Dr. Pauker points out, "such is not the case with coronary artery surgery, where pain relief (at least in the short run) is highly likely, but where operative risks are significant and where long-term benefits on life expectancy and pain relief remain unproven. Thus, in an individual patient, the selection of optimal therapy is not straight forward; consequently, both the skill of the prospective surgeon and the preferences of the individual patient strongly influence the choice of therapy."

Truly informed consent, contends Dr. Pauker, requires that the patient has all options explained to him in a format he can both comprehend and use. Using his experience with patients with well-documented coronary artery disease at New England Medical Center Hospital, Dr. Pauker analyzed several factors which influence the decision to operate or not to operate.

The major factors are: The extent of the coronary artery disease; the patient's attitudes about life expectancy and chronic disability; the past results of surgery at the physician's hospital on similar patients.

Using a "decision-tree," Dr. Pauker is able to tailor the surgical decision by providing — and explaining — the possible outcomes to the patient. The basic principle of decision analysis is to break apart a complicated decision into a series of simple decisions, and then to recombine them in an ordered way to derive a logical answer.

"Informed consent," in the Tufts cardiologist's opinion, "does not come cheaply. It requries the physician to spend more time with the patient and requires the patient to answer several soul-searching questions. On the other hand, the patient's attitudes toward the procedure are very positive since they are actually participating in the choice of therapy."

In each case, the decision to operate or not to operate is reached by consideration of the medical facts, the past surgical results of the prospective surgeon, and the patient's own values.

Beef Barbecue Scheduled for Aug. 8

Tivoli—The annual Beef Barbecue sponsored by the men and women of St. Paul's Church, Tivoli, will be held Sunday, Aug. 8 with servings at 3 and 5 p.m. Mrs. Ethel Block, chairperson, has listed her committee: Ann Block, co-chairman; Fred Gruntler, tables; Dora Gruntler, tickets; Burt Coons, pit; Mary Rosenquest, kitchen; Marjorie Saenger, hostess.

This will be the 25th annual Barbecue, according to the Rev. James Elliott Lindsley, rector, of the Tivoli church.

Tickets at $7 for adults have already been mailed to past patrons. Further reservations may be made through Mrs. Rodford Holsapple in Germantown or Mrs. George Woolsey in Tivoli.

COMING FROM GERMANY's BLACK FOREST to play every day, July 28 through Aug. 8, at the fourth annual German Alps Festival in the Catskills will be Luggi's Black Forest Brass Band of Schopfheim. The fesitval will be held at Hunter Mountain in Greene County. Seven other bands are scheduled including the 30-piece Foehrer Musik Freunde of Long Island. Free music schedules and color folder will be supplied by writing German Alps Festival Box 297, Hunter, N.Y., 12442

Special Courses Are Open at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ—Enrollment is still open for several courses in the innovative Studies Department at the State University at New Paltz.

Colonial cooking, taught by Cathryn Baskin, will meet at the Homestead Site of Ashokan Field Campus, Thursdays, Aug. 12, 19, 26 and Sept. 2. Using fireplaces, hearth and dutch ovens and colonial utensils, students will prepare traditional recipes. Ingredients for the meals are included in the $27.50 fee. An added aspect of the course will include review of the proper techniques for preserving foods.

Also open for enrollment at the Homestead Site is Homesteading Skills, which will meet from noon to 3 p.m., Saturdays, July 31, Aug. 7, 14 and 21. Included among the skills to be taught are animal care, vegetable gardening and methods of preserving food. The course will cover foraging of edible plants and medicinal herbs. Basic woodworking skills also will be explored.

Instructors will be Cathryn Baskin and Howard Schechtor.

Students enrolled in either of these courses must provide their own transportation.

Work and Play Program Planned For Teachers of Foreign Languages

SARATOGA SPRINGS—Teachers of foreign languages have the opportunity to combine a professional workshop with a mini vacation at the Fifth Annual Workshop sponsored by the New York State Association of Foreign Language Teachers August 13 through 15 at Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs.

The theme is "Hand in Hand — Learning Styles and Teaching Strategies." The program will include an orientation to learning styles conducted by Drs. Charles Hancock, Anthony Papalia, and Joseph Zampogna and five workshop sessions on various aspects of learning styles and teaching strategies.

Spouses and families are welcome and a variety of social events are planned. Participants may live on campus or commute.

Further details are available from Robert Ludwig, 1102 Ardsley Rd., Schenectady, 12308 and Maryalice Seagrave, 350 Warwick Ave., Buffalo, 14215.

'Bribe-a-Bride' Blonde Sought

LONDON (UPI) — Police today sought an oft-wed blonde who made $9,000 in seven months "marrying" 50 illegal immigrants in a "bribe-abride" racket that was supposed to guarantee the men permanent residence in Britain.

Police said the woman, described as slim and in her early 40s, used false names and addresses when she "married" the immigrants in civil weddings at various registrar offices in the London area.

Checks at a number of registrar offices showed the "bride" walked away without another glance at her "groom," who believed he was legally married to a British wife and had evaded the immigration laws.

The "husbands" included Turks, Cypriots, Egyptians, Indians and Pakistanis. Police said some of the 50 have been located and now face explusion from Britain.

It was believed to be the biggest bigamy case in British history.

Police said the woman received $180 after each ceremony and another $450 was paid to the gang that arranged the "weddings."

She was believed to be only one of several dozen women being used by a gang to extract money from illegal immigrants.

"I suspect this lady is not the only one engaged in this kind of racket," said Conservative Member of Parliament Mrs. Jill Knight. "There is obviously a bribe-a-bride racket going on."

A sharp-eyed Scotland Yard detective uncovered the racket while making a routine check of letters from women applying for their foreign husbands to be allowed to live and work in Britain.

He noticed a number of letters had similar handwriting and experts confirmed that the letters, although with different names and addresses, had been written by the same person.

Immigrant leaders are concerned that the revelations about marriages of convenience will provide propaganda for right-wing groups opposed to immigrants entering the country.

"This will prejudice the whole case of immigrants, and the government should suppress this sort of racket mercilessly," said Vishnu Sharma, general secretary of the Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants.

Moves to a Cave To Beat the Bills

ARMINGTON, Ill. (UPI) — Andrew Davis, fed up with the high cost of utility bills, has decided to move his family into a cave.

Davis, a 47-year-old electrician in this central Illinois town of some 400 persons, said he first started thinking about living in a cave two years ago. He decided to go ahead with plans to build one last winter when he got a $167 heating bill one month and heard of the construction of a nuclear power plant nearby.

"I just decided to go underground to get away from all that," he said.

Davis, who has a wife and five of nine children living at home, bought two lots against a hillside a few blocks from his present home and began digging last spring.

The cave house, which has attracted hundreds of spectators, is 12 feet underground and consists of a large living room with fireplace, kitchen, three bedrooms, a den and two baths — one with a sauna.

"I'm constructing it out of concrete and rocks," Davis said. "About the middle of October I'll be done. In my opinion, I think it's the only way to go with the way the fuel bills are anymore."

He said the cave will remain a constant 58 degrees.

"As far as heating and cooling, that's no problem," he said. "I'm going to have a fireplace and a circulating fan and I'll circulate the heat through the rest of the rooms through the fireplace. That's going to be the only heating cost. I'll get my fresh air from a double-lined flue in the fireplace.

"In the summer if the house gets stale, I can turn the fan on and pull fresh air down from the top."

Davis said he plans to use electricity only for the lighting in the cave. He estimated his utility bills would be about $15 a month.

As far as the interior goes, he said, "everything's going to be natural." The kitchen appliances have been recessed into the walls and covered with imitation leopard and zebra hides and the countertop is made of stone. Cattle rib bones and antelope horns will be used for bookshelves and faucets.

Davis set the total cost for the 2,000 square feet of living space at $30,000.

"There will be absolutely no maintenance," he said. "The only maintenance I can foresee is mowing my roof."

Mystery in Lion Country

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Investigators said today they were puzzled about what events preceded the death of a 20-year -old "Lion Country Safari" park ranger, who apparently left his protected jeep and was mauled by lions Saturday.

"We have to assume he was attacked by the lions," said Dan Aylward of Kings Island amusement park, where the 1,000-acre animal preserve is located. "These lions are wild and if given a chance, they probably would take advantage of a human."

"But," Aylward added, "we don't know why he left his jeep, which was protected by iron bars. We're investigating, but we may never know."

Dead was John McCann of nearby Morrow, Ohio, who had worked at the park 14 months.

McCann's body was found at 1:15 p.m. Saturday about 20 feet from his jeep in a 14-acre section of the preserve that is roamed by 50 lions and no other animals. Several of the 350 -pound lions were within a few feet of the body when searchers arrived and chased them away.

Too Fat, Too Old To Talk?

TOKYO (UPI) — The Nippon Television Network has been ordered to put Setsuko Murakami back on the air, despite TV officials contention she is too old and too plump for the job.

Miss Murakami, 39, won an injunction in Tokyo District Court against her employer, which hired her as an announcer 17 years ago when she was younger and lighter.

Murakami sued for an injunction, contending that her employment contract as an announcer did not mention weight, age or personal appearance.

The court upheld her contention.

Field Opened Up for Oil Burner

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman Staff

MONTICELLO—Ben Webster may have been the most surprised person of all at Monticello Raceway Sunday afternoon when his colt, pre-race betting favorite Oil Burner, lived up to his billing and captured the second running of the $300,000 Monticello New York City-OTB Classic in 1:59.1.

Webster found himself where he didn't want to be,about three-deep from the rail, for much of the race. "I was in desperate trouble,"he said as he visited the press box after a television interview. "It was only because of the misfortune of someone else that I won."

That misfortune almost caused a major collision. At the three-eighths mark, the horse who earned the most vocal support of the 9,895 fans, Wolf Pack, broke stride at the rail and caused Speedy Romeo and Crafty Rival to go off stride. Crafty Rival also hit Webster's sulky.

"He hit my left wheel and bent it, and I finished the race that way. But I got a break when Wolf Pack broke. It opened up the field for me."

At the time just before the break, Webster was trying to manuever Oil Burner behind Mandate, the leader for most of the race. Oil Burner finally caught him at the seven-eighths pole and barreled down the stretch to beat Atashy by two lengths. Webster, who never before hit his colt, tapped Oil Burner twice and stung him once down the stretch.

Oil Burner paid $3.60, $3.20 and $2.60. Atashy (Del Insko) finished in 1:59.2 and paid $7.60 and $4.60, and Mandate (Merrit Dokey) paid $4.20. Behind the leaders were: Precious Fella (Del Cameron), Speedy Romeo (Bill Haughton)' Wolf Pack (Eldon Harner), Scuba Diver (George Sholty), Fulla Spark (Rick Kuebler), Crafty Rival (Marvin Maker) and Armbro Roger (Joe O'Brien).

The victory, which did not approach Silk Stockings' then-world record of 1:57.3 in the first edition of the MR-OTB Classic, was worth $118,125 to Oil Burner's owner, William Brooks of Wilmington, Del. Ironically, the top nominating prize of $23,125 went to Stanley Dancer, celebrating his forty-ninth birthday. It was Dancer, dissatisfied with the performance of Oil Burner, who sold him and a second horse to Brooks in May for $80,000.

"Stanley didn't think the colt was aggressive enough," said Webster. "He hasn't got a good lick from the gate. That's why I was three deep most of the race. I tried to get behind Atashy but I couldn't, and I was really worried. Then Eldon's horse broke, and it turned out to be a break for me."

Still, Oil Burner had to run down Mandate. "My horse can grind and grind and grind. When we got to the backstretch, I knew I had it."

The bump from Crafty Rival bent the left wheel of Webster's sulky. "I was up out of my seat pretty well after the hit," he said. "I almost had him in my sulky with me."

How did it feel to win the world's richest harness race?

"Fantastic," said Ben. "No question about it, this was my biggest thrill."

The total purse was $262,500 with the raceway contributing $100,979 and another $15,941 from its share of the OTB handle. When money from the eliminations ($22,500) and consolations ($15,000), added in, the grand total of $300,000 was reached. The rest of the money came from eligibility payments.

The previous richest harness races were the 1975 Hambletonian ($232,192), the 1975 classic($230,521), the Prix d' Amerique 1976 ($223,723.65) and the Prix d'Amerique 1975 ($233,000).

The classic was the seventh of a 10-race card. The fifth race, the classic consolation, was won by Boehm's Eagle (Bill Haughton) in 2:00, the horse's best time, with Pastabyrd second and Stephen O. third.

Sawyers Take Legion Series To Game Three

KINGSTON—There will be a third game for the Ulster County American Legion baseball championship after all.

Kingston Post 150 had a chance to wrap it up Sunday at Dietz Stadium after winning the series opener 3-2 Saturday at Cantine field in Saugerties.

But the Sawyers jumped all over starting pitcher Jay Foust, who was relieved by Kevin Jordan after allowing three runs and leaving the bases loaded in the second inning, and went on to romp, 11-2, evening the best-of-three set at a game apiece.

Saugerties erupted for six runs in that inning, all it would need, as Kingston could respond with only two in the same inning. The Sawyers added two in the third and solo runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh to lengthen the margin of victory.

The third and deciding game will be contested tonight beginning 6 p.m. at Dietz Stadium.

Winning pitcher Nick Malgieri, who left the mound with an injured finger in the fourth inning, opened the Saugerties second with a triple. Marc Becker walked and John Spiers singled home Maligeri. Barry Mayday's single scored Becket and Spiers. Jay Harris, the leadoff batter, singled and Steve Martin walked to load the bases and it brought Jordan to relieve Foust.

Tim Cole's single brought home Mayday and Harris, and Martin also scored when the throw home went wild. Karl Lezette's groundout ended Kingston's misery.

Kingston responded with two runs in the second when Dave Loeffler singled and Joe Kelderhouse tripled to bring home Loeffler. Kelderhouse later stole home on the front end of a double steal.

The Sawyers added two in the third when Spiers got on via a fielder's choice, Jeff Lavigne singled and Harris tripled them both home. Another run came in the fifth with the bases loaded when Harris scored on a fielder's choice.

In the sixth when Steve Martin singled home Lavigne, who walked. In the seventh, Spiers' tripie brought home Jim Hackett, who had singled.

The Sawyers blasted four triples, three of them run-producers, in collecting 14 hits.

Steinbrenner Sued

NEW YORK (UPI) — George M. Steinbrenner III, principal owner of the New York Yankees and board chairman of the American Ship Building Co., is being sued by the government for allegedly charging illegal campaign contributions to government contracts, according to published reports.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer said in a copyrighted story that the Justice Department will file suit in Washington today against American Ship to force abandonment of a $5.4 million suit brought by Steinbrenner in 1974 to recover cost overruns on a government contract.

Another big day for the Yankees. All the baseball is on 12.

The New York Daily News carried a similar story but did not specify a court date.

The cost overruns, government sources reportedly told the newspapers, included thousands of dollars in illegal campaign payments, which were hidden in the company's general and specific overhead expenses.

The Plain Dealer also said the Justice Department had learned Steinbrenner destroyed or ordered the destruction of financial records in April, 1973, pertaining to the alleged contributions.

In a statement released in New York, Steinbrenner said the government claims were "routine procedure."

Kornelia Settles for a Sentimental Journey

MONTREAL (UPI) — On a night when she could have become the greatest woman athlete in Olympic history, Kornelia Ender had to settle for a sentimental journey to the past.

It was supposed to be one of the great nights of her life; instead it was a day she will remember forever.

Kornelia, through no fault of her own, failed in her bid Sunday night to become the first female ever to win five gold medals in a single Olympics. But she did have a 50-minute meeting earlier in the day with her maternal grandmother, the first time they had seen each other since Rosalae Lehmann defected from East Germany in 1959 and came to the United States.

Mrs. Lehmann, accompanied by her second husband, gave Kornelia a bracelet and a necklace at their reunion and said later in a heavy accent, "Everything went very well. I said 'Guten tag, Kornelia,' and she hugged me and I hugged her. I cried and she had tears in her eyes, too."

Then the emotionally spent, 66-year-old, white-haired lady went to see the historic race.

"I wanted my granddaughter to win her race, to win the gold medal," she said from her seat in the swimming hall which had been obtained for her by Kornelia. "But I wanted the United States to win also."

The race was the 400-meter freestyle relay, the final event on the swimming program, and after winning 11 of the first 12 races, the East German women seemed to have a lock on this gold medal as well. Kornelia, swimming the first leg, did her part by taking the lead, but 15-year-old Jill Sterkel put the United States in front on the third leg and Shirley Babashoff protected the margin.

It was the only gold medal for the American women swimmers, who captured eight of the 14 at Munich in 1972, and gave Babashoff a gold to go with the four silver she won here. Their time was a world record of 3:44.82.

Mrs. Lehmann, wearing a carnation with a green bow on her white pants outfit, was not the least flustered by the bright light of a television crew a few feet in front of her face, and a big smile came on her face when the East German team marched to its starting position. When Kornelia swam, Mrs. Lehmann leaned forward in her seat and then stood up and leaned over a railing for the final 20 meters.

Mrs. Lehmann, who lives in Salina, Kan., waved several times at Kornelia, but her granddaughter didn't see her.

Ironically, on the same day as this touching reunion, there was a report that Russian sprinter Valery Borzov, who had failed to show for the 200-meter finals, had defected. But a Soviet spokesman shrugged this off by saying, "He was in the village this evening, having a drink with the boxing team."

The success of the East German women helped their small country—about the size of Ohio—take the gold medal lead with 26 to Russia's 25 and America's 21. The Russians lead in total medals with 70, followed by the U.S. with 56 and East Germany with 53.

While the American women could win only one swimming event, the U.S. men wound up the competition losing only one. They made it 12 gold medals in 13 events Sunday night with a pair of world record performances, Rod Strachan winning the 400-meter individual medley in 4:23.68 and Jim Montgomery taking the 100-meter freestyle in 49.99.

The men won 27 of a possible 35 total medals, finishing 1-2 in nine of the events.

Following a disastrous day on Saturday, when the Americans could take home only one of 28 gold medals at stake and were shut out in both the 100-meter dash and the shotput, the U.S. made a good recovery on Sunday with seven victories, three in swimming, two in track and two in equestrian.

The equestrian medals were a surprise, particularly that of Ted Coffin of Strafford, Vt. Riding a borrowed horse, Coffin became the first American ever to win the individual dressage, and the U.S. also took the team title.

The first American gold medals in track were earned by Edwin Moses with a world record time of 47.64 seconds in the 400-meter hurdles and by bearded Mac Wilkins with a throw of 221 feet, 5-½ inches in the discus.

There was one disappointment, however, as Rich Wohlhuter could do no better than third in the 800-meter run. Barrel-chested Alberto Juantorena of Cuba won the event with a world record time of 1:43.50, and he said later, "I dedicate this to our leader, Fidel Castro. He sets an example and we follow him faithfully."

Wilkins, though, who had some difficulty with the U.S. Olympic Committee last week when he moved out of the Olympic Village, gave all the credit for his victory to himself.

"I have to say this was an achievement for myself," said Wilkins, who holds the world record in the discus. "It was nice to have all the Americans here rooting for me, and I was worried I might let them down, but I'd still have to say I did this for myself."

Moses, who had failed to qualify for the NCAA championships in June and never before had competed in international competition, didn't even become a 400-meter hurdler until March.

Despite this sparse background, Moses said he was a little disappointed with his world record performance.

"I must have had the slowest start I've ever had," said Moses, a native of Dayton, Ohio, and an engineering student at Morehouse College in Atlanta, where he has a 3.5 grade point average. "I had to burn it down the backstretch."

Mike Shine of Youngsville, Pa., who earned the silver medal, agreed with the second part of the statement, commenting, "Ed turned on that afterburner and he was gone. I just couldn't believe he was going so fast.

"He went out so fast that I thought to myself 'he really wants it.' I thought if I could stay close until the top of the stretch I might have a chance.

"But when we got to the top of the stretch I knew the only thing I was running for was second place."

"I've been running track for seven years, and I guess it's about time something good happened," Moses said.

The United States qualified six boxers for the quarterfinals, the two latest being welterweight Clint Jackson, a 22-year-old deputy sheriff from Nashville, Tenn., and light welterweight Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md. On Sunday, Jackson knocked out Wesly Felix of Haiti in the first round and Leonard outpointed Clint McKenzie of Britain.

The men's basketball championship moves into the semifinal round today with the defending champion Soviet Union meeting Yugoslavia at 2 p.m. EDT and the U.S. engaging Canada at 10 p.m. The two winners meet for the championship Tuesday night.

Wilkins: I Won for Myself

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

MONTREAL (UPI) — One of the fringe benefits that goes with winning an Olympic gold medal is the chance to say anything you please, make a perfect fool of yourself if you want, and with a golden opportunity like that, Mac Wilkins wasn't going to let it slip away from him.

The whole world was waiting to hear what he had to say, wasn't it? Okay, then, Mac Wilkins, winner of the gold medal in the discus, would let everyone know exactly how he felt.

To begin with, the big, bearded 25-year-old Oregon native now living in San Jose wasn't especially impressed with his best throw of the day, 221 feet, 5-½ inches, or 67.50 meters, even if it did earn him the gold medal and the United States its first track and field victory Sunday. For him, Wilkins said, it was only a "mediocre day." He knew he could do better than that.

Nothing wrong there. A man has a right to be unhappy with his performance. He can say so if he wishes.

Wilkins even drew some applause from media members listening to him when he stuck a harpoon into the U.S. Olympic Committee by saying he was "extremely embarrassed to be associated with people like that." He said USOC officials had given him "an extremely difficult time" and threatened to throw him off the team because he had left the Olympic Village here the early part of last week to train in nearby Three Rivers where he found everything more quiet and less nerve-wracking.

Now somebody had a question for Wilkins.

For whom had he won the gold medal, his country or himself?

The question isn't a brand new one. It has been asked of other Olympic gold medal winners. The answers sometimes vary a bit. The longer the medalists explain, though, the more they reach the same general conclusion—they feel a sense of national pride but a personal one as well.

Not Mac Wilkins, though. He had been asked whom he felt he won his gold medal for and he'd tell them all right.

"Probably I'd say myself," he said.

That one went over like a worm in a punch bowl. Not so much because of what Wilkins said, but because of the off-hand way he said it. If Mac Wilkins was trying to convey the idea he was completely uninhibited, all he succeeded in doing was proving he is completely immature.

He had some other opinions as well.

"America is not a bad country," he conceded.

Nice of Mac Wilkins to say that, wasn't it?.

He wins an event at the Olympics, and suddenly he's an expert on the country.

Now there was another question.

This one was directed at John Powell of Cupertino, Calif., the third place finisher in the discus. Powell looked as if he had the silver medal wrapped up until Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany muscled him out of it on his final toss. Wilkins and Powell belong to the same track and field club in Long Beach, Calif., but they're not buddy-buddy at all. The truth is they can barely stand each other although they make a pass at doing so.

Supposedly, their feeling for each other, or lack of it, all stems from the keen competition which has existed between them for some time now, but it goes deeper than that.

John Powell, a San Jose cop, looks at everything much differently than Mac Wilkins. Powell is the arch conservative; Wilkins, the flaming liberal.

Powell readily admitted he was "jealous" of Wilkins when he realized some years back Wilkins had more potential for throwing the discuss farther. For his part, Wilkins, in turn, said he never realized he was capable of "hating" Powell as much as he had. Aren't unity and fraternity what the Olympics are supposed to be about? Oh, sure.

"Some people simply are not roommate material," Powell said, suppressing a laugh.

While Wilkins and Powell were proving how nicely two members of the same team can do without each other, another American pair, Ed Moses of Dayton, Ohio, and Mike Shine of Youngsville, Pa., were offering a look at the other side of the coin.

Moses and Shine finished 1-2 in the 400 meter hurdles, after which they embraced one another, then joined their hands and held them aloft as they jogged together once around the track.

The crowd loved it and gave them a great hand, and it's hardly even worth reporting Ed Moses is black and Mike Shine white.

Is Borzov Defecting?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Police said today they had checked reports that Soviet sprinter Valery Borzov had defected and were told by the Russian delegation at Olympic Village he was "still there and had no plans to defect."

"If he had defected we certainly would have had a request for protection or would have had a report about it," said a spokesman for the Montreal police department. "We have had no such request and no such report."

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation said Sunday there were unconfirmed reports Borzov had defected. There were later rumors the Russian was on the way to Ottawa, Canada, apparently to ask for political asylym.

But a reporter for Sovietsky Sport, the leading Soviet sports newspaper, told UPI the reported defection "is laughable. He had a drink with the boxing team in the Village tonight (Sunday) and when one of the boxers asked him why he was not taking vodka—he was sipping orange juice—Borzov replied, 'I still have the relay to run.'"

Borzov, 26, 100 and 200-meter sprints champion at Munich, placed third in the 100 meters Sunday and had been scheduled to compete in the 200 meters Monday but did not show up for the race, claiming he had been injured.

"All I can say is that the CBC must have jumped to conclusions because they hadn't seen him around," a police spokesman said. "We checked with the Russian delegation at the Village and they told us he was still there and had no plans to defect."

Borzov was scheduled to run in the 400-meter relay later this week, but before he can compete he must be examined by an official Olympic doctor to confirm he actually was injured when he dropped out of the 200 meters.

Yanks Add More Nostalgia to The Big Apple

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees are all for nostalgia.

With New York's "Great White Way" featuring shows such as "My Fair Lady" and "Guys and Dolls" and with "Howdy Doody" the hit of the college campuses, the Yankees have added a touch of nostalgia to the world of professional sports.

Making only slight modifications to the script that brought the club 14 American League pennants in the 16 years between 1949 and 1964, the Yankees are back in front, leading the second-place Baltimore Orioles by 14½ games.

New York beat the Boston Red Sox Sunday, 6-5 to sweep a three game series from the defending American League champions. And they used that patented Yankee power in the late innings to do it.

Chris Chambliss slammed a two-out, three-run homer in the ninth inning to lift New York to its come-from-behind victory. Pinch-hitter Elrod Hendricks led off the inning with a single and went to third on Mickey Rivers' double off the rightfield wall. Tom Murphy retired the next two batters before Tom House relieved. Chambliss hit House's first pitch for his 12th homer.

The win was New York's 17th in 24 games in the month of July.

Chambliss came out of the dugout five minutes after the game had ended to acknowledge the enormous ovation from the crowd of 49,723 fans.

"It was a very dramatic home run because it was in front of all those people," Chambliss said. "I wasn't trying to hit it out. A hit at that point ties the score."

Its just like old times at the Stadium, the "House that Ruth Built" but that Mayor John Lindsay renovated. And after a road show that in the past 12 years saw the AL flag make such stopovers as in Minnesota, Baltimore, Oakland and Boston, the New York Yankees are dedicated to returning the flag to the "Big Apple." And after an absence of 12 years, winning the pennant will no longer be routine but an event that all New York will be able to celebrate as it has done for so many years in the past.

In other games, Oakland drubbed Kansas City 9-2, Milwaukee beat Baltimore 3-1, California downed Texas 7-3 in 11 innings, Detroit swept a pair from Cleveland, 9-1 and 5-4, and Minnesota split two with Chicago, winning the opener 13-8 and dropping the nightcap 7-4.

A's 9, Royals 2

Phil Garner's two-run homer capped a seven-run first inning as Oakland routed Kansas City behind the combined eight-hit pitching of Mike Norris and Glenn Abbott. The victory was the A's second in their important three-game series against the Royals and moved them to within eight games of the AL West leaders.

Brewers 3, Orioles 1

Southpaw Bill Travers hurled a three-hitter to complete a four-game sweep of Baltimore. Travers, 12-7, struck out eight but surrendered a solo homer to Paul Blair. Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver was ejected for arguing in support of Lee May, who was protesting a ball-and-strike count. It was the eighth time this season Weaver has been thrown out.

Angels 7, Rangers 3

Lee Stanton slugged his first home run since last Sept. 4 with the bases loaded and two outs in the 11th inning to power California over the slumping Rangers, who have lost 16 of their last 18 games. It was new manager Norm Sherry's third win in as many games.

Tigers 9-5, Indians 1-4

Pedro Garcia, John Wockenfuss and Aurelio Rodriguez each drove in two runs to give Detroit a lopsided opening-game victory over Cleveland. In the second game, Mickey Stanley singled home two runs in a three-run third inning and Pedro Garcia tripled home a pair of runs in the fifth to spark the Tigers to a doubleheader sweep. John Hiller's ninth save preserved Dave Lemancyzk's second victory in four decisions.

Twins 13-4, White Sox 8-4

Pinch-hitter Rod Carew's bases-loaded triple highlighted a five-run sixth inning as Minnesota, which pulled off a triple play, won its fifth straight game in the opener. With runners on first and second, catcher Glenn Borgmann caught a short popup— intended as a sacrifice bunt—in front of home plate, fired to shortstop Luis Gomez, who stepped on second for the second out and then tagged the oncoming runner to complete the triple play.

In the nightcap, pinch-hitter Lamar Johnson's three-run homer in the seventh led Chicago over the Twins to salvage a split of their doubleheader.

Andre Can't Argue With Strategy

MONTREAL (UPI) — Being used only against left-handed pitchers doesn't please Montreal's Andre Thornton, but the strategy seems to be working.

Thornton's singled off the New York Mets' Jerry Koosman with none out in the ninth inning Sunday to score Ellis Valentine with the winning run in a 2-1 Expos' victory.

"I'm not too happy the way they leave me on the bench against right-handed pitchers," said Thornton. "But that's the way they play here and I'll just have to get adjusted to it."

Thornton, who came to Montreal in a May trade with Chicago, knocked the ball over the head of drawn-in Mets' centerfielder Pepe Mangual, traded to New York from Monreal last week.

"I knew I had to get the ball out their somewhere," said Thornton, who added that even though he was happy with the hit, he still isn't pleased about his less-than-inspiring over-all performance in Montreal.

"First I was traded in mid-season, then I broke my finger. When I returned I had to start all over again. But that's the way things go in baseball."

Right-hander Don Carrithers, 5-6, went the distance for Montreal, completing his second game of the season. Koosman absorbed his seventh loss in 18 decisions.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but a second-inning homer by Tim Foli knotted the score. There was no more scoring until Thornton's heroics in the ninth.

Valentine opened the inning with a double, then was sacrificed to third by Bombo Rivera. Koosman walked Larry Parrish and Jose Morales intentionally to load the bases, and Thornton delivered the winning blow.

***

The Philadelphia Phillies have reached a point where they probably could win the National League's Eastern Division title if they all went fishing and let their Reading, Pa., club play out the season for them.

The Phillies, now 13 games in front after a 13-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday, are threatening to stage a greater runaway than the Cincinnati Reds did when they won the Western title by 20 games in 1975. The Reds were "only" 10 1-2 games ahead at this point of the 1975 race and finished with a .667 won-lost record. The Phillies' current won-lost percentage is .685.

Baseball history warns that huge leads can be overcome — the best example being the 1951 New York Giants coming from 13 1-2 games behind on Aug. 11 to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers — but more often than not a team which builds such a big lead at this point of the season adds, rather than detracts, from it.

Reds 7, Braves 6

George Foster tied the score with his 20th homer and Johnny Bench scored the winning run on a short fly which Willie Montanez 'caught in short right field to give the Reds their victory at Atlanta after Jim Wynn's seventh-inning homer gave the Braves a 6-5 lead. Gary Nolan won his 100th major league game with the relief help of Rawly Eastwick who pitched the last two innings.

Dodgers 1, Padres 0

Bill Russell singled, stole second and scored the game's only run on Lee Lacy's double in the seventh inning giving Doug Rau his fourth straight win. It also was Rau's 10th victory against six losses while Dave Freisleben suffered his sixth straight defeat.

Cards 4, Cubs 3

Lynn McGlothen allowed four hits in 7 1-3 innings and Al Hrabosky finished a combined six-hitter for the Cardinals who scored two unearned runs in the seventh inning with the help of two errors by second baseman Manny Trillo. The victory squared McGlothen's record at 9-9 while Rich Reuschel lost his eighth game against nine wins.

Astros 1, Giants 0

Greg Gross' sacrifice fly with ne out in the 10th inning scored Wilbur Howard with the only run of the game as the Astros beat the Giants. Bo McLaughlin, called up from Memphis last week, allowed six hits to win his first major league game. Ed Halicki, now 9-13, was the loser.

Jerry Pate Reconfirms the Predictions

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI) — Just when it looked like Jerry Pate's win in the U.S. Open was a fluke, the 22-year-old rookie put it all together again and reconfirmed predictions that he's professional golf's budding superstar.

On Sunday, Pate became the golfing champion of North America when he shot a final round, course-record, seven-under-par 63 to finish at 13-under 267 and capture the $40,000 first prize in the Canadian Open by four shots over Jack Nicklaus.

For Nicklaus, who shot a closing round 65 that put him at nine-under 271, it marked the fourth time he had finished second in the only major national that has eluded him.

Shortly after earning his PGA player's card last fall, Pate gave a creditable showing of himself, finishing fourth in the Memorial Tournament in Dublin, Ohio at the end of May, and third the following week at the Philadelphia Classic.

Two weeks later, at the Atlanta Athletic Club, Pate fulfilled the promise those two tournaments indicated when he shocked the golfing world by becoming the first tour rookie since Nicklaus, in 1962, to win the U.S. Open.

In his next three starts, however, the Pensacola, Fla., native was unable to display the consistency of a true champion by failing to make the cuts at the Western and British Opens and the Westchester Classic.

But that consistency returned this past weekend as Pate shot successive rounds of 69-67-68 prior to the 63 Sunday in which he played as if he owned the par-70, 6,696-yard Essex Golf Club course here.

Pate made birdies at the first, third, fifth and ninth holes to make the turn in four-under-par 31. Two more birdies at 10 and 11 made it three in a row before he took his lone bogey of the round on the par-three, 187-yard 12th.

But he started his birdie barrage again with a three at the 364-yard 15th and added another at the 384-yard 16th. He closed his round with pars on the last two holes, a 221-yard, par-three 17th and the 428-yard 18th.

The $40,000 first prize pushed Pate's PGA earnings this year to $128,482, the most ever won by a tour rookie. Lanny Wadkins set the previous mark of $116,616 in 1972.

Clear Sailing for Susie Berning

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Susie Maxwell Berning said her new contact lenses played a big role in her winning the $50,000 Ladies Keystone Open Golf Tournament which she swept Sunday by firing a final round of even-par 72.

Berning, of Crystal Bay, Nev., who was fitted with new contact lenses late Saturday, birdied the final green for the third straight day to post a 54-hold total of one-under-par 215, three strokes better than Pat Bradley and Saznda Haynie who tied for second.

"The new contact lenses made a tremendous difference," said Berning who has had a vision problem for some time. "They gave me good depth perception and everything was much clearer."

After losing two shots to par with a 38 on the front nine, Berning birdied the 12th and 18th holes for a 2-under 35 on the closing side.

Bradley, three shots off the pace at the end of 45 holes, birdied the final two greens for a 72 while Haynie, the first day leader, shot a final round of a 73.

Deadlocked for fourth place were Laura Baugh and Debbie Austin, West Palm Beach, Fla., with 219. Baugh posted a 75, Austin a 73.

Judy Kimball, who was only one shot off the pace at the 36-hole mark, slipped to a final 77 to fall out of contention early.

Berning, winner of the 1973 Women's U.S. Open, held a slim one-stroke edge starting the final round.

"The 12th hole was the one that motivated me" she said. "I punched four-iron out of the rough and ran down about a 12-footer for the bird," she said.

In putting rounds of 72-71-72-- 215 her three best of the year — she three-putted only one green and didn't have a double bogie for the tournament.

Braves Home for Marlboro

KINGSTON—The Kingston Braves, who are leading the Hudson Valley Rookie League Northern Division with an 18-2 record, resume action tonight at 8 p.m. at Dietz Stadium against the Marlboro Jets.

Kingston leads the first round (10-1) and second round (8-1), followed by Poughkeepsie (6-2, 5-2, 11-4), Wappingers (8-3, 4-4, 12-7), New Paltz (6-6, 3-4, 9-10) and Marlboro (1-12, 1-7, 2-19).

New Windsor leads the Southern Division (8-4, 4-3, 12-7) and it is the only team to beat Kingston this season. The Newburgh Atoms are second (6-7, 6-3, 12-10), followed by Pine Bush (4-8, 4-6, 8-14), Monroe-Woodbury (5-7, 3-8, 8-15) and the Newburgh Nuclears (1-5, 2-1, 3-6).

Kingston's Tom Gallo is second in the league in hitting at .422, with Larry Panella fourth (.408), Bob Marz eleventh (.364) and Rick Koegel (.333) twelfth. Panella is second in RBIs with 17 and Gallo has 13.

Kingston also has league leaders in pitching with Tim Cole (4-0, no earned runs allowed in 21 innings), Bob Marz (4-0, 1.80 in 25 innings) and Kevin Coughlin (4-0, 2.84).

Dennis Cokley of New Windsor leads the league in hitting with a .467 average, followed by Gallo, Wes MacMillen (Wappingers, .412), and Joe Detz (Newburgh Atoms, .387). McMillen leads with seven homers and 21 RBI, and Detz has four homers and 21 RBIs. New Paltz' Bill Schiller has 14 RBI.

Other top pitchers include Dale Buff, New Windsor (5-0, 44 strikeouts), Jerry Seager, Poughkeepsie (4-1, 1.47), Ed Devine' Wappingers(4-1, 1.19, 49 K's), and Steve Arkabout, Newburgh 6-1, 1.32). Wappingers' Mark Esser leads with 59 K's.

Surgery for Bonds

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Angels' slugger Bobby Bonds, who injured his right hand a week before the season started, will undergo surgery to repair the hand Aug. 15 and will be lost to the club for the remainder of the season, the outfielder said.

Bonds, who damaged the bone and tendons around the knuckle of the index figure in a pre-season game, said he will play with the injury, which apparently did not heal properly, for three more weeks out of respect for California's new manager, Norm Sherry.

"We just got a new manager," said Bonds. "I feel I can play for a few more weeks and can help the club and still be ready to get off to a new start in the spring."

Nationals Advance In BR Tournament

KYSERIKE— The Kingston Nationals are in the running for the District 1 13-year-old All-Star Babe Ruth baseball tournament title being contested at Rondout Valley High School.

The Nationals won two games this weekend, beating the Kingston Americans 8-2 on Saturday and blanking Poughkeepsie 5-0 on Sunday. The Nationals were to have played Rondout Valley at 1:30 p.m. today, with Beacon meeting Poughkeepsie at 4:30.

Tuesday's schedule has the winner of today's second game meeting the loser of today's first game at 1:30 p.m., and the winner of today's first game meeting the winner of Tuesday's first game at 4:30 for the title in the double elimination tournament.

Billie Asch Dead at 65

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Billie Asch, who won an Olympic gold medal in 1932 and later that year was named Miss California, died Friday at the age of 65.

Before her marriage to San Francisco attorney Robert B. Asch, she competed under her maiden name, Wilhelmina (Billie) von Bremen at the 1932 Los Angeles Games and was a member of the United States' 400-meter relay team in track. In addition, she collected a bronze medal in the 100-meter dash.

•STEINBRENNER

"It involves American Ship Building Company making a claim and the federal government of making a counterclaim," the ball club owner asserted. He said he has filed his request for reimbursement of the cost overruns in the Cleveland Court of Claims.

The Plain Dealer said Judge Louis Spector in the Washington, D.C., Court of Claims will be asked to order the $5.4 million claim of the shipbuilding company forfeited under the False Claims Act.

The suit reportedly will also ask the court to award the government about $500,000 in damages, including the cost of litigation and a four-month investigation by the FBI, Maritime Administration, Commerce Department and Securities and Exchange Commission.

In August, 1974, Steinbrenner pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in Cleveland to arranging and covering up illegal contributions made from 1970 through 1973 to the campaign of former President Richard M. Nixon.

He also pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of intimidating employes whom he wanted to give false explanations to a grand jury about the illegal payments.

American Ship, which pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate federal election laws at the same time, was fined $20,000 and Steinbrenner fined $15,000 by Judge Leroy J. Contie Jr.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

The City of Kingston will receive bids for the Exterior Rehabilitation of the Midtown Neighborhood Center, 467 Broadway, Kingston, N.Y. until 3:00 P.M. on 16 August 1976, at the Office of Community Development, 97 Broadway, Kingston, N.Y., whereupon they will be opened and read aloud.

Bids are invited upon the several items and quantities of work as follows:

1. Masonry Paint Removal and Cleaning
2. Masonry Restoration
3. Exterior Painting and Glazing
4. Sealants

Contract Documents, including Drawings and Technical Specifications are on file at the Office of Community Development, 97 Broadway, Kingston, N.Y. Copies of the Contract Documents may be obtained by depositing $50.00 with the above office for each set of documents so obtained. Each such deposit will be refunded if the Drawings and Contract Documents are returned in good condition within 10 days after Bid Openings.

A certified check or bank draft, payable to the order of the City of Kingston, negotiable U.S. Government Bonds, (at par value), or a satisfactory Bid Bond executed by the Bidder and an acceptable surety, in an amount equal to ten per cent (10%) of the total of Bid shall be submitted.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish and pay for satisfactory performance and labor materials payment bond or bonds in the amount of not less than One Hundred Per Cent (100%) of the contract amount. An acceptable surety company is anyone included in the latest issue of the U.S. Treasury Department Circular 570 listings.

Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum salaries and wages as set forth in the Contract Documents must be paid on this project, and the Contrctor must insure that employees and applicants for employment are not discriminated against because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.

The City of Kingston reserves the right to reject any or all Bids or to waive any informalities in the bidding.

Bids may be held by the City of Kingston for a period not to exceed ninety (90) days from the date of the opening of Bid for the purpose of reviewing the Bids and investigating the qualifications of the bidders, prior to awarding of the Contract.

CITY OF KINGSTON
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the Common Council of the City of Kingston will, in accordance with the provisions of Section 507(2)(d) of the General Municipal Law of the State of New York, as amended, hold a public hearing on August 3, 1976, at 7:00 P.M., at the Common Council Chambers, City Hall, Kingston, New York, to consider the approval of a proposed disposition of Disposition Parcel 7 and the existing structure thereon (hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Property") in the Uptown Renewal Project, NY R-121 to Frank H. Reis, residing at 78 Plymouth Avenue, Kingston, New York. The Property is also known as 79-85 North Front Street, Kingston, New York.

Disposition Parcel 7 is to be used for retail commercial purposes in accordance with the Urban Renewal Plan for the Project. Frank H. Reis contemplates the restoration of the 1-story concrete block structure on Disposition Parcel 7.

Disposition Parcel 7 is a parcel of approximately 17,528.896 square feet in area generally located between Disposition Parcel 6 to the north, lands of the City of Kingston (Parking Lot) to the east, and North Front Street to the south, and is more fully described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the Northerly street line of North Front Street, said point of beginning being the Southwesterly corner of lands of the City of Kingston Parking Lot and the Southeasterly corner of the herein described premises and running:

(1) thence from said point of beginning along the Northerly street line of North Front Street South 86° 18' 35" West, 108.00 feet to a point;

(2) thence along the Easterly line of lands now or formerly of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency (Disposition Parcel No. 7-A) North 1° 43' 25" West, 175.28 feet to an iron pipe;

(3) thence along other lands now or formerly of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency (Disposition Parcel No. 6) the following courses and distances: North 82° 51' 05" East, 29.81 feet to a point;

(4) thence North 79° 08' 35" East, 52.85 feet to a point;

(5) thence along the Westerly line of lands of the City of Kingston Parking Lot, the following courses and distances: South 12° 17' 25" East, 109.00 feet to a point;

(6) thence South 10° 56' 25" East, 27.00 feet to a point;

(7) thence South 3° 47' 25" East, 49.00 feet to the place of beginning.

Frank H. Reis has previously been found by the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency to be qualified and financially responsible to purchase and restore the Property. The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency has, in accordance with its established rules and procedures duly designated Frank H. Reis as a qualified and eligible redeveloper of the Property, and the Common Council of the City of Kingston has approved Frank H. Reis as a qualified and eligible redeveloper.

The price to be paid by Frank H. Reis for the Property is $30,000.00.

The essential terms of the Disposition Agreement to be executed by and between the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency and Frank H. Reis are that Frank H. Reis is to deliver to the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency prior to or simultaneously with the execution of the Disposition Agreement a good faith deposit of $3,000.00 as security for the performance of his obligations under the Disposition Agreement; to pay $30,000.00 simultaneously with the delivery of xthe Deed; to submit Restoration Plans for the restoration of the Property with thirty (30) days from the date of the Disposition Agreement; to submit satisfactory evidence of equity capital and commitments for mortgage financing necessary for the restoration of the Property within thirty (30) days after the date of approval of the Restoration Plans; to take title to the Porperty within sixty (60) days after the date of approval of the Restoration Plans, or on September 1, 1976, whichever date is later; to commence restoration of the Property within thirty (30) days after the date of the Deed; and to complete restoration within four (4) months after the date of the Deed.

The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency proposes to enter into the Disposition Agreement with Frank H. Reis on or after August 3, 1976.

The Disposition Agreement will ber available for public examination at the office of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, 436 Broadway, Kingston, New York for a period of ten (10) days, commencing July 19, 1976 and terminating August 3, 1976, between the hours of 9:00 A.M. and 4:00 P.M., Monday through Friday.

The Uptown Renewal Project, NY R-121 is generally located between Esopus Creek and the New York Central Railroad (Mountain Division) to the north, Lucas Avenue and John Street to the south, and Joy's Lane to the west, in the City of Kingston.

NOTICE OF SALE
INDEX NO. 76-1000

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale entered in the above entitled action and bearing date the 1st day of July, 1976, I, the undersigned, the Referee named in the judgment, will sell at public auction at the Ulster County Court House, No. 285 Wall Street, Kingston New York on the 11th day of August, 1976, at 10:30 o'clock A.M. on that day, the premises described by the Judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate, lying and being in the Town of Shandaken, County of Ulster and State of New York, bounded as follows:

BEGINNING at an iron pin driven in the ground on the Westerly boundary of the main highway leading from Mt. Tremper to Phoenicia, at a point in the bounds of lands of Edward Hudler and E.J. Hasbrouck, and runs from thence South one hundred two feet along the said highway; thence West two hundred five feet along other lands of the said Hudler; thence one hundred two feet North along other lands of the said Hudler; thence in an Easterly direction two hundred five feet along lands of said E.J. Hasbrouck to the point or place of beginning. Being a parcel of land fronting one hundred two feet on the said highway and two hundred five feet deep. Being a part of the premises conveyed to the said Edward Hudler by Henry B. Hudler and wife by deed dated September 2, 1908, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office May 7, 1914, in Liber 447 of Deeds, at page 541.

The above described parcel is part of the lot of the grantor hereto known as the Orchard Lot.

Being the same premises conveyed to Reginald H. Every and Ruth A. Every, his wife, party of the first part hereto by Reginald H. Every, by deed dated February 28, 1970, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on March 2, 1970, in Liber 1240 of Deeds, at page 87.

ALSO, ALL THAT CERTAIN PIECE, PARCEL OR LOT OF LAND situate, lying and being in the Town of Shandaken, County of Ulster and State of New York, at or near a place called Mount Tremper formerly the Corner and more particularly bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point on the West side of the New York State Highway designated as Route 28, said point being marked by an iron axle driven in the ground and runs from thence along the bounds of said highway North 21° 13' West 16 feet to the Southeast corner of lands of Reginald H. Every, said corner being marked by an iron axle driven in the ground, thence along the bounds of said Reginald H. Every South 71° 52' West 205 feet to the Southwest corner of lands of aforesaid Reginald H. Every; thence North 21° 13' West 102 feet to the line of Seager and the Northwest corner of aforesaid Reginald H. Every, being an iron axle driven in the ground; thence South 71° 52' West 104.5 feet along the bounds of said Seager to a point marked by an iron axle driven in the ground under a fence; thence South 21° 13' East 118 feet along the bounds of Hudler to a point marked by an iron axle driven in the ground; thence still along the bounds of Hudler North 17° 52' East 309.5 feet to the point and place of beginning. Said parcel of land containing .357 acres of land, be the same more or less. All bearings are with reference to Astronomic North as determined by Astronocical Observations

Subject to any grants or easements of record.

Being the same premises conveyed to Reginald H. Every and Ruth A. Every, his wife, party of the first part hereto, by Reginald H. Every, by deed dated February 28, 1970, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on March 2, 1970, in Liber 1240 of Deeds, at page 89.

The said Reginald H. Every died on April 210, 1970, leaving him surviving his wife, Ruth A. Every, party of the first part hereto.

Being the same premises conveyed to Douglas R. Every and Eve Every, his wife, the mortgagors herein, by Ruth A. Every, the mortgagee herein, by deed intended to be recorded simultaneously herewith. This mortgage being given to secure the payment of a portion of the purchase price thereof.

DATED: July 8, 1976.

NEW YORK TELEPHONE COMPANY

PUBLIC NOTICE

STATE OF NEW YORK
PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION
ALBANY

CASE 26991—In the matter of the Complaint of the Citizens Advisory Council against New York Telephone Company as to the policies and practices in publishing the Yellow Pages Directories.

July 16, 1976

NOTICE is hereby given that an initial public hearing will be held in the above matter before Examiner David Schechter at the State Office Building A, Second Floor, Veterans Memorial Highway, Hauppauge, Suffolk County, New York, on Tuesday, August 3, 1976 at 1:00 p.m. to be continued, if necessary, the next day, August 4, 1976 at 10:00 a.m. The hearing on August 3, 1976 will continue until 5:30 p.m. Any one arriving before 5:30 p.m. or by appointment with the Examiner before 6:00 p.m. will be given an opportunity to be heard.

The Commission is conducting a general investigation to determine whether or not advertising in the classified directories (Yellow Pages) published by or for the New York Telephone Company is solicited and implemented in an unjustly discriminatory or unduly preferential manner and whether or not the advertising contained in such classified directories unduly interferes with the use of ordinary listings.

The initial hearing is being held primarily for the purpose of receiving oral statements from members of the public with regard to the company's present classified advertising practices. Additional hearings for such purpose may be held in other locations within the New York Telephone Company's operating territory if there is sufficient public participatory interest to warrant the conduct of hearings at locations other than the Commission's offices in Albany or New York City.

Persons wishing to offer testimony or to be heard in this regard should communicate with Staff Counsel Frank Robinson at Agency Building 3, Empire State Plaza, Albany, NY 12223 (518-474-6517), or with Mr. Eugene Connell, a member of the Commission Staff, at Agency Building 3, Empire State Plaza, Albany, NY 12223 (518-474-3184).

Upon completion of such initial phase of the investigation, additional public hearings will be held for the purpose of receiving testimony from the company followed by the testimony and recommendations of the Commission Staff and intervenors, if any.

Any party to this proceeding may, in lieu of a personal appearance, file a written position statement relating to the subject matter of this proceeding with the Secretary of the Commission at Agency Building 3, Empire State Plaza, Albany, NY 12223. Such a statement will receive the same consideration as an unsworn statement made at a hearing.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

FIGHT: (Q.) My girl friend and I are both pretty and have good figures. We are enemies because we are fighting over a boy and he will not make up his mind which one of us he likes.

The other girl is really popular in bad places. I am not. She takes drugs and smokes, and I do not. The boy does not know about the drugs and smoking, and behind his back she goes with other boys.

I am 14. She is 14. He is 15. Who do you think deserves him? —Asking in Wisconsin.

(A.) The other girl is not your friend. You are not her friend. You say, specifically, that you are enemies.

The boy would be unfortunate to choose her if she is as you describe her.

He would be unfortunate, also, to choose you, because a person who cuts one person to pieces is capable of cutting another person to pieces.

When you learn that it is better to be kind than cruel, forgiving than condemning, positive than negative, you will be happier, and you won't have to fight to attract a worthwhile boy.

REPLACED: (Q.) I really liked Jim. And he liked me too. Then my girl friend started hanging around with me when I talked to Jim on the telephone. Sometimes she would talk to him. She would also follow me when I met him some place. Now he likes her. What can I do? —15 in Indiana.

(A.) Watch out when your girl friend starts getting interested in your boy friend.

Generosity is great. So is sharing. But they don't work well with boy friends. You were too generous. You shared too much. Now you have nothing to share. Jim is gone.

But there will be another boy. You will know then there is one thing not to share with girl friends.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JULY 27

Your birthday today: Opens an era of consistent striving, active prosperity in which you can cultivate higher skills. The main factor is how strongly motivated you are, how willing to disentangle yourself from the past and its limiting habits. Relationships take care of themselves if you have basic commitments. Today's natives have great potential for theatrical presentation, go in for specialties involving physical disciplines.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Clear up the fallout from recent events. Your quietly discreet suggestions are likely to be adopted, but in forms you never thought about.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Now that tensions have abated, go ahead as though nothing happened. Pursue the obvious. Family discussion brings practical arrangements. Watch expenses.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): By starting early enough, you can get your career back on its proper tracks. If bought today, additions to your wardrobe promise to be good bargains.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Brighten up! You have it made with just a little effort. Earning powers improve little by little. Look around for extra outlets for your work.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): This is your day to shine, so cheerfully speak for yourself. Claim what is due you. Help somebody else if you can. Select good company and celebrate!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Set up appointments, but as yet it's not time to display your work. Share enthusiasm of your achievements with the one who appreciates them and you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Regular business offers a chance for advancement. Consider a change if you seem stuck where you are. Perhaps you soon will have choices to make.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put aside all grievances, go on with the current situation. Decisions made now are more readily accepted. Let intuition guide you for the best timing.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look forward, treating the past as a completed lesson. Put matters to rights briskly; not even hinting that you are correcting errors. Travel is favored.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check on insurance, safety of premises, etc. Make everything as near perfect as you can. Tonight you deserve a party, but break it up early.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stay on the optimistic side, see the bright promise in inherent local events. Pitch in to exploit advantages. Others offer advice that tips the balance.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Relax, let nature and people take their courses. Personal affairs move along at a lively pace, provide the morale needed for successful pursuit of career.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "If the bidding of today's hand looks peculiar it is taken from a book on the game of bridge which was succeeded by auction and then by contract."

Jim: "In contract, North and South would bid and make four hearts. In auction when declarer got credit for everything made they would play two hearts and make four. In bridge the dealer either made trump or said 'I bridge it' whereupon his partner had to make trump."

Oswald: "Once South made it notrump North could not go to hearts. West made the book lead (book of 1905) of the deuce of clubs. East's queen lost to South's ace and three notrump wrapped up. Actually, the hand was given as an example of great card reading by South. You led your longest suit against notrump and if you had two suits of equal length you led from the stronger one."

Jim: "I see what the writer was driving at. West had led fourth best from a suit headed by nothing. Hence, he held three cards in each other suit. South played his ace of hearts, finessed against West's queen and wound up making twelve tricks. KIDNAP VANS

UPI photo

Two of the vans believed to have been used in the Chowchilla, Calif., kidnaping of 26 children and their school bus driver await transport late Sunday to Alameda County sheriff's facility. The two vans, plus a third van and a mysterious black Cadillac were found in a warehouse in San Jose Thursday.

Middle-Aged 'Masterminds' Are Sought in Bus Kidnaping Plot

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Two middle-aged "masterminds" with a $5 million motive and a preplanned escape route may have headed the abduction of 26 central California school children and their bus driver, authorities said Sunday.

"We're definitely pursuing the possibility that there are other suspects in the case," said one investigator. "These others quite conceivably might be the brains behind the whole thing."

In Madera County, Sheriff Ed Bates said that although only three young men were officially suspects, "my conjecture is that maybe there are more people involved in this."

Composites put together by the children and bus driver Frank Ray after they dug themselves out of an underground prison in a Livermore, Calif., quarry July 16 included pictures of two men about ages 45 and 50, one gray-haired.

A coast-to-coast search has been launched for two suspects, Frederick Woods, 24, son of a prominent Atherton, Calif., podiatrist, and James Schoenfeld, also 24. Schoenfeld's younger brother, James, 22, surrendered to Alameda County District Attorney Lowell Jensen Friday night after being named in a warrant.

Sheriff Bates said a trail of clues were left by the abductors, who "apparently were not planning on anything going awry." He added, however, that there was obviously some "preplanning" for an escape if something went wrong.

"There were clues all over," he said, referring to the tracing of the three vans used in the kidnaping and other evidence gathered at the quarry and at the homes of the suspects.

A rough draft of a $5 million ransom note was one item found on Woods' 100-acre family estate on the San Francisco peninsula.

The FBI said there have been reported sightings of Woods and Schoenfeld in Tennessee, Oklahoma and Illinois, among other places.

A stakeout was made in Martha's Vineyard, an island resort off Massachusetts, because the Woods' family own a 500-acre estate there.

The younger Schoenfeld was visited by his father and mother in the Alameda County Jail Sunday, but his parents made no remarks to reporters. Schoenfeld's attorney, William Gagen, had his client moved from an isolation cell to an area with other prisoners.

Gagen said he would attempt to keep Schoenfeld from going to Madera County for arraignment and court proceedings because "we fear for his safety" in Chowchilla, Calif., the farming town where the children were abducted on their way home from a school swimming outing.

Ancient Ape Fossils Are Unearthed

HONG KONG (UPI) — Ancient ape and other mammalian fossils, believed 3 million to 12 million years old, have been unearthed in southwest China's Yunnan province, the new China News Agency reported today.

"The recent discovery, consisting of over 100 ancient ape teeth fossils, a fairly complete lower jaw bone and fragments of a deformed upper jawbone, augments China's fossil data on the origin of man," NCNA said.

The agency said the Chinese Academy of Sciences and the Yunnan provincial museum discovered the fossils in lignite seams in Lufeng county.

"Preliminary analysis dates the beds of the recent discovery to the pliocene period, 3 million to 12 million years ago," NCNA said.

League Vows to Stop Violence

Fighting Heavy in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy fighting raged across Beirut today but the head of the Arab League peacekeeping force vowed his men would set up a disengagement line despite the new violence and an attack on his troops Sunday.

As shooting erupted in hotspots around the capital, the U.S. Embassy registered more Americans and other foreign nationals for a U.S. Navy evacuation Tuesday. Embassy officials said they had received Palestinian assurances of security for the operation.

Arab League envoy Hassan Sabry Kholy told reporters Sunday night that "parties bent on sabotaging the restoration of security" were responsible for the attack on a contingent of peacekeeping troops who tried to take up positions in the noman's land between eastern Christian and western Moslem Beirut.

He did not mention the "parties" by name but it was an obvious reference to Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, whose "Tigers" militia claimed responsibility for the mortar and machine gun attack on the Arab troops.

Rightist radio reported two members of the Saudi Arabian and Sudanese force were killed and two others wounded.

"Our party did not sign the truce agreement and we had orders to prevent the Arab League troops from coming in," the militia commander said.

The ultrarightist Chamoun is the only major leader in the war who still refuses to sign the cease-fire and Kholy said he would meet with him today to try to win him over.

But he also said this "will not stop us from our purpose or our timetable in completing our work (to set up the disengagement line)."

Meanwhile, heavy fighting flared overnight and this morning in downtown Beirut and in the suburbs, where the Palestinian camp of Tal Zaatar has been under siege for more than a month.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said registration had been reopened for Tuesday's sea evacuation and that "a few more Americans had registered but that our total figure is still around 435."

He urged all those who have not signed up to "do so now because this will be the last such organized evacuation of foreigners from Beirut."

Leaders of Coup Effort Are Executed In Ethiopia

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A coup attempt against Ethiopia's military rulers has been crushed and its ringleaders executed, Ethiopia Radio said. It was the second plot against the military government uncovered in two weeks.

The radio broadcast monitored Sunday in Nairobi said the latest coup attempt was engineered by officers of the 26th Brigade of the 1st Division, the former imperial bodyguard of the late Emperor Haile Selassie.

But the ringleaders — identified as brigade commander Lt. Col. Berhanu Haile and a Lt. Haile Mariam Hassen — were executed by their own men Sunday morning, the radio said.

The report did not give an exact date for either coup attempt.

However, the government announced July 13 that 18 persons went before a firing squad after unsuccessfully trying to overthrow the government.

Brig. Gen. Getachew Nadew, martial law administrator in the troubled province of Eritrea, was killed in a gunbattle at his home the same day while resisting arrest.

The radio, labeling the general a traitor, accused him of planning both coup attempts — the second apparently to be carried out after his death. It did not elaborate.

The military in the last two weeks has executed 23 persons — soldiers and civilians — for various crimes against the state.

The government grabbed power from Selassie two years ago but has been facing increasing opposition both from civilians and within its own ranks as it follows an increasingly Communist course in traditionally feudalistic Ethiopia.

Nude Miss Is Chosen

HAMILTON, Canada (UPI) — A 28-year-old California woman has been named Miss Nude World 1976.

Nona Montague, of San Diego, won the title during a day-long pageant here Sunday. The winner, a 5-foot-5, 112pound blonde, said she was "thrilled and proud" to win the title. Her measurements are 3623-36.

Named first runner-up was Cindy Youngman, 18, of Davie, Fla., who is 5-foot-3, 105-pounds and 34-23-34.

Second runner-up was Suzette Teft, 32, of Hamilton, Canada. She is 5-foot-2, 100-pounds and 35-24-34.

One Third Of Civil Servants Are Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women still hold less than 3 per cent of top-paid "supergrade" civil service positions, but accounted for nearly 80 per cent of the increase in whitecollar federal jobs last year.

A Civil Service Commission survey said Sunday there actually was a decrease in the number of women employed at some lower levels of the 18grade federal pay system, but the percentage of females in all other ranks increased.

Slightly more than 35 per cent of all full time, government white-collar jobs were held by women last year, the commission said, for a 0.4 per cent rise over the previous year and for 80 per cent of the total increase.

Midde-Aged Men Sought in Kidnaping

OAKLAND, Calif. — Police now say they believe two older men were the masterminds behind the plot to kidnap 26 children and their school bus driver in Chowchilla. Investigators also believe the group planned to demand a ransom of $5 million for the children's return. Composite pictures assembled from the children's descriptions show two men about ages 45 and 50, one with gray hair, police say.

Meanwhile, a coast-to-coast search for two young suspects, Frederick Woods, 24, son of a prominent California podiatrist, and James Schoenfeld, 24, continues.

Fighting Is Worse In Lebanon War

BEIRUT — Despite heavy fighting and a new attack on his troops Sunday, the head of the Arab League peacekeeping force said he is determined to set up a disengagement line.

As the shooting in the capital worsened during the weekend, more and more Americans and other foreigners registered with the U.S. Embassy for a Navy evacuation scheduled for Tuesday. The Palestine rebels reportedly have promised once again to guarantee the security of the naval evacuation operation and safe passaage for those who consent to leave.

Man Shot at White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A cab driver climbed a fence at the White House Sunday night and was shot to death by a police guard as he ran toward the executive mansion with a steel pipe in his hand.

President and Mrs. Ford were in the family quarters of the White House at the time and were informed of the incident shortly after it occurred.

The intruder, identifed as Chester Plummer Jr., 30, was shot shortly after 9:30 p.m. He died in emergency surgery at George Washington University Hospital an hour and a half later at 11:05.

Officials said the man climbed over the spiked sixfoot-high iron fence at the northeast corner of the White House grounds on Pennsylvania Avenue and moved some 60 feet toward the residence, carrying a steel pipe three or four feet long.

It was the first time an intruder had been shot, although sources said "jumpers," as the Secret Service refers to them, attempt to scale the fence at least once a week.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said the intruder approached Executive Protective Service officer Pvt. Charles A. Garland, who repeatedly ordered him to halt.

"I understand he had the pipe over his head as he advanced toward the officer. The officer was between the man and the White House," Warner said.

He said Garland fired one shot, hitting him in the chest.

EPS guards saw Plummer earlier in the evening on the sidewalk in front of the White House, but a Secret Service spokesman said he "did not make any overt attempt at that time" to enter the grounds.

He returned later and scaled the black wrought iron fence.

The pipe was examined for explosives but, Warner said, "I understand it was just a plain pipe."

Warner, asked if there was any indication of motive, replied "none."

A police investigator said Plummer, who was not married, had shown his family "no signs of animosity against the President."

Sgt. Robert Sharkey of the D.C. police gave this account of the incident:

"At 9:34 p.m. Chester M. Plummer Jr., black male, 30, no fixed address, climbed over north fence of the White House, entered the grounds with a pipe in his hand. He was ordered to stop ... He refused to do so. When the police officer attempted to stop him, he attempted to assault the police officer and the officer fired one shot, which took effect."

He said Garland, 25, had been a member of the EPS since January, and now is on administrative leave pending investigation.

Plummer was identified at the hospital by his father, Chester Plummer. The intruder's last-known address was 5031 H St. S.E., but police described him as a drifter. There was no money in his wallet.

MARKET BASKET

City Food Prices Up Again

KINGSTON — Food prices in Kingston rose last week for the third time this month, according to figures released by the Ulster County Consumer Information Service.

The cost of feeding a family of four rose .4 per cent bringing the monthly increase to 1.8 per cent.

The 41-item market basket cost $66.74 for the week ending July 23. The same foods were priced at $66.46 the week before.

Of the five areas in the county sampled, Kingston was the third most expensive followed by Saugerties-Woodstock where the same items cost $68.02 (up 2 per cent) and the Marlboro-Lloyd dsitrict totaling $68.12 (up 2 per cent).

The cheapest place to buy food in the county was the New Paltz-Rosendale-Port Ewen area. Warwarsing and Ellenville market basket came in next, at $66.73.

The market basket price index is based on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Moderate Cost Family Food Plane which lists the various amounts of food which should be consumed in order to provide a nutritious diet for a family of four.

On an overall countywide level, the average market basket costs for the week were up .3 per cent over the July 16 figures.

Catskill Water Bill May Get Carey Veto

BINGHAMTON (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey indicated today he was considering vetoing legislation that would regulate the discharge of water from New York City's reservoirs in the Catskills.

Carey said, "I'm still awaiting some reports" before making a final decision on the bills. He said his decision would come in the next few days.

However, the governor said, a compromise on the discharge of waters into Catskill streams and rivers was possible without legislation.

Carey made the comments at a news conference at the Broome County Airport as he began a day-long tour of the Southern Tier. He was greeted by local officials and a a halfdozen Right-to-Life demonstrators.

Later, he met the staff and patients at the Broome County Developmental Center, where he pledged that the state would have "the best mental hygiene system in the nation" within five years.

He also announced the appointment of Mrs. Jean Kennedy Smith, sister of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as chairman of the newly created state Council for Mental Hygiene Planning, which will formulate statewide goals for the treatment of mentally disabled persons.

The legislature passed the water discharge bill after supporters charged New York City officials were unwilling to compromise on a discharge plan.

Catskill residents have complained that the city arbitrarily damaged the ecology of Catskill streams by letting them run dry or discharging so much water they flooded.

New York City opposed the bill, claiming it infringed on the city's sovereignty.

However, Carey said, "I have already secured agreement from the mayor (Abraham Beame) that he will cooperate extensively with the Environmental Conservation Department" to work out a waterrelease timetable.

"There is no inconsistency between an adequate water supply for Southeastern New York" and a release-schedule which would protect the Catskill streams, Carey said.

He added that, "We've had a complication. The watershed serves an interstate region." He said federal officials have "threatened litigation if this bill is signed."

Elderly Man Dies After Lying Injured 10 Days

WALLKILL — A 72-year-old Wallkill man died this morning in St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, after police crashed through the door of his 12-room house Saturday afternoon and found him lying injured and unconcious in a pool of blood, guarded by his German ahepherd dog.

Richard Grabiel, who apparently had fallen and broken his leg, may have been lying in his living room as long as 10 days, police said. A newspaper dated 10 days ago was found under his body.

Shawangunk police officer Jerry Doolittle and Ulster County Sergeant Richard Bockleman broke down the front door of the house in Wallkill after neighbors reported they hadn't seen Mr. Grabiel for three weeks.

The officers found him unconcious and severely dehydrated but still alive. His German shepherd, a K-9 Corps veteran, at first refused to let the officers near her master and refused food until Mr. Grabiel was taken away in an ambulance.

"We thought we'd saved him," commented one saddened police official this morning after hearing of Mr. Grabiel's death.

Drive to Stop Kingston Arterial Is Swelling

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — The proposed Kingston north-south arterial, a 2.4-mile downtown bypass dubbed as the road that "starts nowhere and goes nowhere," all at a $35 million cost, has driven itself into the minds of at least 1,000 people now as an idea that should be stopped.

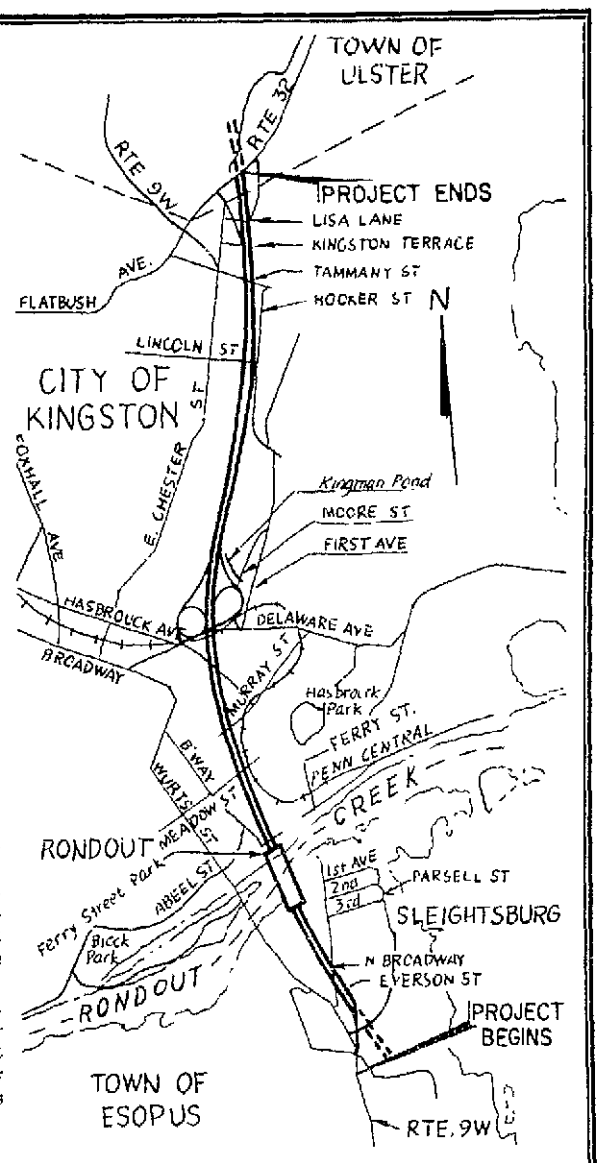
Despite the 1,000 signatures on a sheaf of petitions, however, no one in the latest anti-arterial crusade knows how to stop a plan so long in the works. After nearly two decades it seems to have a life of its own.

The "bypass" lives on, in fact, even though it appears that whatever new road it was to have carried through Kingston has long since died. The arterial has become a a bypass to and from nowhere.

"This is silliness. I'm not signing off my house. I'm going to wait for the bulldozer," said Elizabeth D. Heitzman, chairman of the group of bypass opponents whose latest name is Citizens Concerned with Total Impact of Kingston North-South Arterial (CCTI).

Mrs. Heitzman's house, bordered with trees, flowers and a white picket fence, is one of a number of Moore Street properties that sit where federal and state engineers want to put a cloverleaf intersection midway along the four-lane arterial.

Some $2.4 million in other properties — 97 parcels in all, including 60 residences and four commercial buildings — also will have to be taken for the arterial, originally part of a much larger plan for a new road from Rockland County to Albany. Little has been heard in recent years about plans for the sections of this road outside Kingston.



Clyde D. Realyea, his wife, and CCTI chairman Elizabeth D. Heitzman don't want a four-lane cloverleaf where they're standing.

The Kingston arterial would start in the Town of Esopus near Rt. 9W at North Broadway, cross the Rondout Creek into Kingston via a new $6 million bridge only a few hundred yards downstream of the present bridge, pass new city hall and the downtown urban renewal area, cross Delaware Avenue into the new cloverleaf, then head north through more residences before winding up on Rt. 32 in the Town of Ulster, a dog-leg turn and about 1,000 feet east of Rt 9W again.

Even without any new roadway on either end, the arterial has picked up official support over the years and is now being promoted for two main reasons — reduced traffic congestion downtown and a federally funded shot in the arm for sagging area construction trades

"Yes, we do need employment," Mrs Heitzman said, "but if it has to be roadwork, there are plenty of other projects that need help — rebuilding Rt. 209, for example."

Because so much property must be taken from the tax rolls for the arterial, the CCTI, whose predecessors were mostly residents to be uprooted and those concerned about the environment, has gained some important allies from the fiscally conservative side of the political spectrum.

It was William A. Jackson, county chairman of the Conservative Party, who in a May 17 letter to State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-40, coined the phrase about "a 2.48-mile road starting nowhere and going nowhere with the adverse effect on the tax rolls of the City of Kingston and the displacing of residents from their homes."

Reduction in the city's tax base also has brought support to CCTI from the We've Had It Taxpayers Association (WHITA)

Not to mention the Sierra Club, worried about the loss of "irreplaceable" wetlands at Kingman Pond, and local small-fry sports fans, whose Little League field at Kingman Park would be bulldozed for the cloverleaf.

CCTI member Clyde D. Realyea, whose Tammany Street home also would go, said he "could live with" an arterial built east of the proposed route, perhaps through the acres of Hudson Cement Co. woodlands he can view from his front yard.

Union Challenger Wants In Too

KINGSTON — The Service Employees International Union (SEIU), embroiled in a battle for representation of the county's 900 civil service employes who now belong to the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA), wants to be included in pre-contract bargaining talks between the county and CSEA.

In an early morning press conference at the county office building front door, SEIU organizers released a letter sent to Legislature Chiarman Peter J. Savago demanding that he set up a meeting to go over "ground rules and timetables for negotiations" on the new contract which ordinarily wouldn't be discussed until after results of the August election are in.

CSEA chapter presidents Thomas Phillips called the move another attempt to put on a veneer of acceptability that just doesn't exist

"They have no right to do anything of the sort until after the election and I'm quite certain that the county won't sit down with anyone until then," he said.

SEIU field representative Carmine Ruberto insisted the request was being made "in the interest of county employes.

"Similar negotiations are dragging around the state and we feel that it would be to the benefit of the employes to get this preliminary work out of the way early."

The challenging union, an AFL-CIO affiliate, will also be holding a "secret on-site ballot" this week to determine whether or not the employes approve of their recommended $5 per month dues with no initiation fee.

"The whole thing is just a show," commented Phillips "They keep trying to hoodwink the people into believing they are already accepted and all that's left is a vote on dues."

Phillips said that he feels the vast majority of employes won't vote on the issue because they are already members of CSEA.

SEIU Chapter head James Whelan, a social services department worker, says all his union is trying to do is make the elections "more democratic".

"We want to show the workers that they can get local representation...and that they're money will stay here and not be sent up-state to Albany (base of the statewide CSEA)."

Both sides also expressed regret that and "unfortunately bitter mood" has developed within the campaign, with literature from the two camps "flinging personal and unfounded" attacks against the opposition.

Ballots for the mail-in election will go out July 31. Final count will be released August 13.

SEIU has recently lost two similar elections — one in Sullivan County and another for representation of the New York State Thruway workers

Flood Control Opponents Meet

ULSTER — Opponents of the Army Corps of Engineers' plans to build levees and dikes along the Kingston side of the Espous Creek have been invited to a strategy planning meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Ulster Town Hall.

Local legislator Richard D. Nace and town supervisor Carmine Sabino have organized the meeting in protest to the recently announced Espous Flood Control Project that would build more than 1,500 feet of levees and flood walls along only one side of the Creek.

"Any resident who lives along the Ulster side of the Creek and who has been affected by flooding is invited" said Nace.

He added that the purpose of the protest in not to stop the project completely, but to "get equal protection for everyone on both sides of the Creek."

The two will also meet today with an attorney to examine the possibility of seeking a court injunction to halt the program until they can negotiate further with the federal agencies involved in the project.

The Sierra Club has proposed another alternate route, also east of the present one.

The Ulster County Planning Board, while agreeing generally with the concept of the arterial, also said it should be pushed eastward through less populous areas.

However, the chief local support for the arterial as planned comes from Mayor Francis R. Koenig and the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency (KURA), who point to the fact that the entire downtown urban renewal project was built around the supposition that the arterial would go through it.

"The whole downtown plan was designed to bring commercial development there. In fact, the arterial was supposed to have been completed before we even started urban renewal construction," Koenig said.

He said the city is "definitely locked into" the present arterial plan, the loss of which would have "very serious economic impact" in an urban renewal area that now has only subsidized housing and municipal construction, neither producing much tax revenue.

"If they put the arterial in," countered retired teacher Mary Kelly, facing the loss of her Hasbrouck Avenue home of 50 years, "they won't have any room for commercial development."

The city government should have let Grand Union build a supermarket there two years ago and forgotten about the arterial, Mrs. Kelly said.

A preliminary study on the arterial project cited the "continuing trend toward development of rural lands surrounding urban areas and subsequently greater traffic volumes" toward the country as a major reason the arterial and the larger Rockland-to-Albany plan were needed.

Realyea pointed to businesses now for sale along Rt. 9W as evidence that Kingston's traffic is diminishing, not increasing.

On a more general level, the CCTI petition calls for shifting new highway money to a "sounder national, regional and local transportation policy, replacing inordinate reliance on private cars and trucks with that of rail and mass transportation."

"Yes, but look at it this way," said Patrick J. Moloney, State Department of Transportation project manager for the arterial. "If they ran buses from where you live in Kingston right to the door of the Daily Freeman, you'd still take your car to work."

"That's what the American public wants, and that's what we're trying to deal with," Moloney said.

Moloney still expected contracts on the arterial to be awarded next spring and the project completed in late 1979.

She Tops Listing

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Chicago woman with nearly $1,000 in summonses is at the top of the latest list of scofflaws issued by the city's Bureau of Parking Violations.

According to the bureau, Sharon L. Annes owes the city $990 for 24 summonses she received.

Transportation Administrator Alexander J. Mautner said Saturday the Chicago woman is among 2,128 parking violators in 18 states who will be receiving $1,128,930 worth of bills mailed out by the bureau.

"We are cracking down to the full extent of the law on out-ofstate motorists who persistently and outrageously abuse our parking regulations," Mautner said.

Harry W. Voccola, acting director of the bureau, said his agency intended to "enter civil judgements and use various other methods to collect" on the unpaid fines and penalties.

"We anticipate a good rate of debt recovery," he said.

Death Plot To Collect Insurance

TOKYO (UPI) — Nobuko Sato, 51, committed suicide and arranged with her son to make it look like murder, so her children could collect $400,000 in insurance, police reported Sunday.

The death of Mrs. Sato, president of a fish products company, had been under police investigation since discovery of her body in her apartment June 18.

Police quoted Mrs. Sato's son, Yasuke, 29, as saying his mother strangled herself with a cord, and that he later moved the body to make the death look like murder. Police said Mrs. Sato's apartment had been ransacked to make it look like a burglary.

Mrs. Sato took out the insurance policy last November naming her family as beneficiaries. Police said at the time of her death she owed about $66,000.

Police also said about three weeks before her death Mrs. Sato visited another son, gave him some of her insurance papers, and told him she did not expect to live long.

Mormon Pageant Continues

PALMYRA, N.Y. (UPI) — Another 70,000 spectators are expected to watch the final five performances of the annual Hill Cumorah Pageant of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints this week.

About 30,000 persons watched the first two performances, of the religious spectacular on a hill outside Rochester Friday and Saturday nights. Performances continue Tuesday through Saturday.

A 10-minute Bicentennial salute by the cast of 600 volunteers highlights this year's pageant depicting the history of the Mormon church.

The extravaganza has been described as "the nation's most elaborate religious spectacle."

License Deadline Extended

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — All drivers' licenses and vehicle registrations which are due to expire July 31 are extended until midnight Monday, Aug. 2, Motor Vehicle Commissioner James P. Melton announced Sunday.

Such an extension is automatic when a month ends on a weekend or holiday, he said.

Melton urged all motorists to check the expiration dates of both their drivers' licenses and vehicle registrations. A motorist who finds that one or both is due to expire July 31 should renew immediately at the most convenient motor vehicle issuing office, he said.

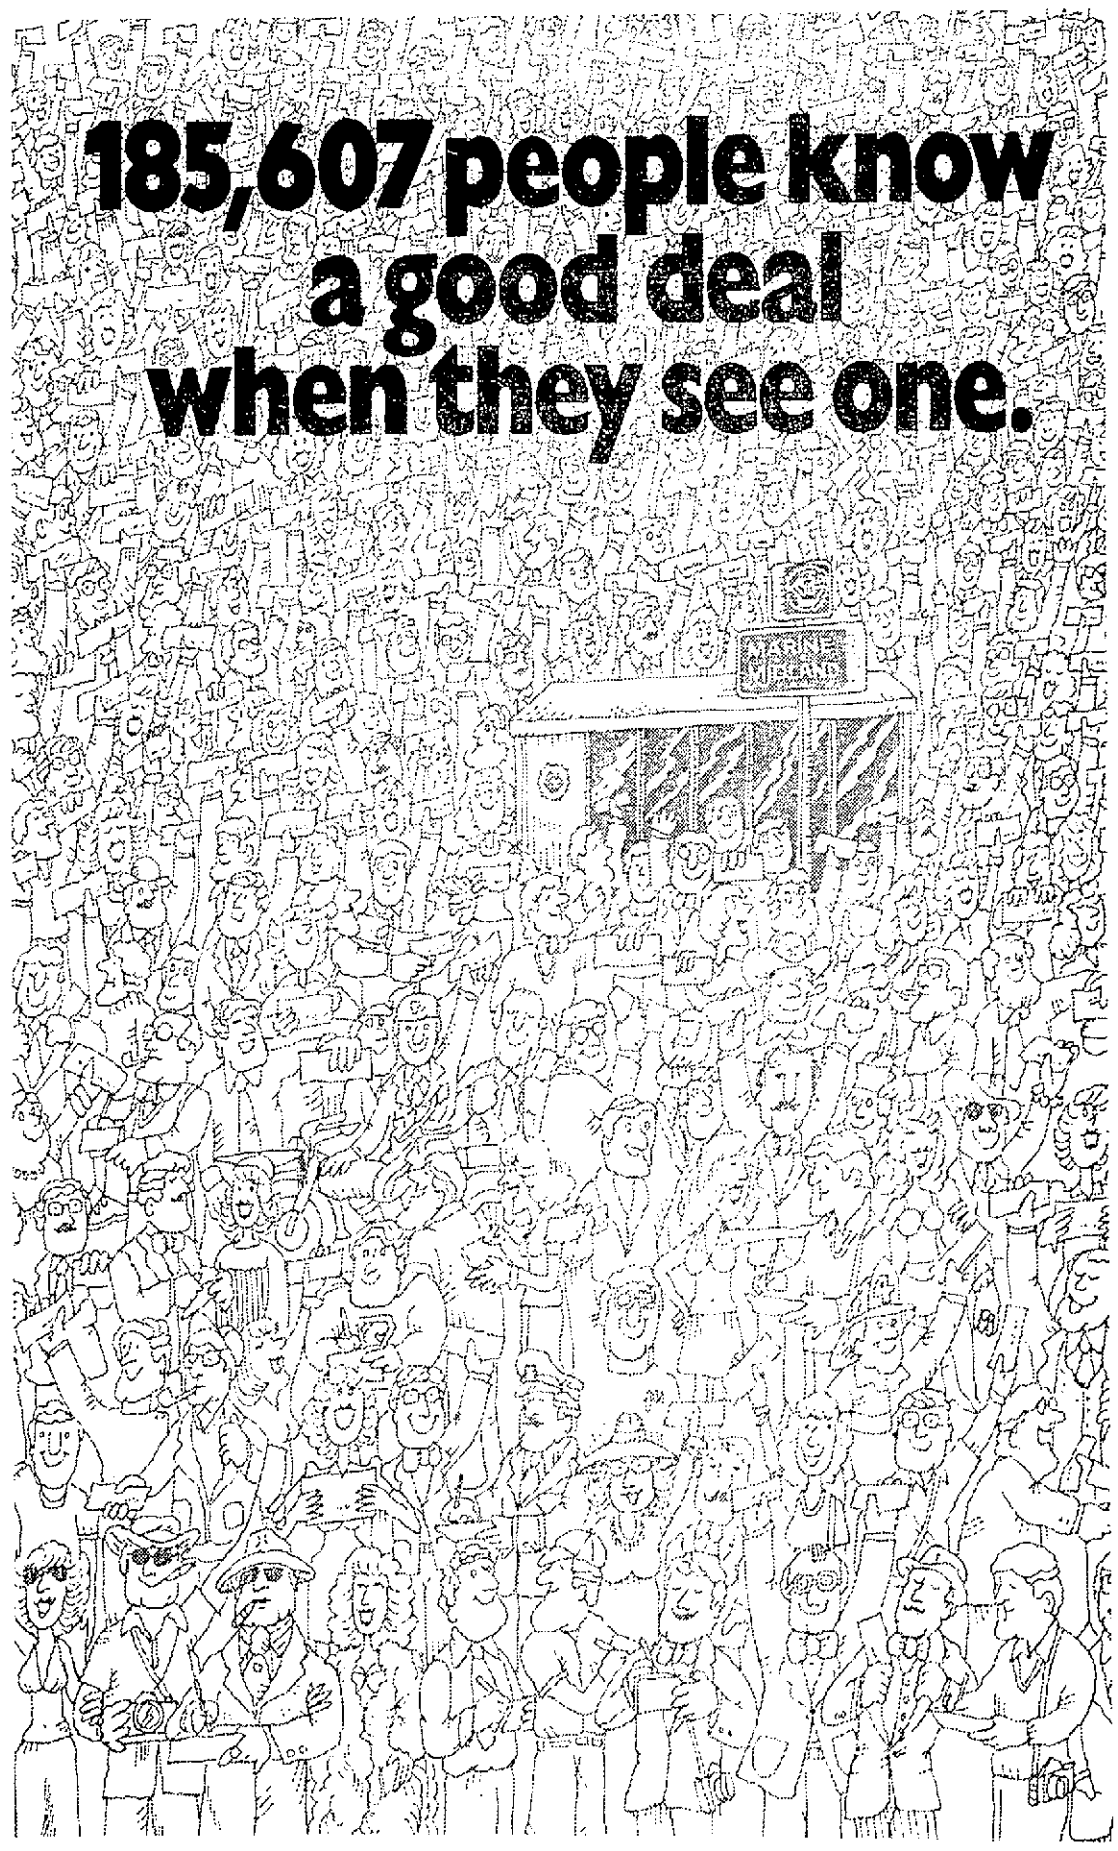
185,607 people know a good deal when they see one.



Good Deal Checking is working.

From the day we started Good Deal Checking, people stopped paying monthly maintenance charges. They also stopped paying a charge for each check they used. No matter how many checks they wrote. That's a good deal.

To get that, people keep at least $200 in their checking account. Or $700 in a savings account, which earns the highest interest allowable. That's a good deal, too.

When you get right down to it, people keep switching to Marine Midland because Good Deal Checking is a good deal.

Kenya Urges Its Nationals To Flee Uganda for Lives

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Kenya has urged its citizens to flee for their lives from neighboring Uganda following another threat by President Idi Amin to launch a major war in East Africa.

Amin coupled his warning against Kenya Sunday with an appeal both to the United Nations and the 48-nation Organization of African Unity, to intervene because the situation was a danger to world peace.

The Uganda leader said an economic blockade by Kenya has left his landlocked country with less than a week's supply of gasoline reserves. The Nairobi government denies it has imposed a blockade.

For the second time in as many days Amin threatened to attack Kenya. He said the deteriorating situation "may force Uganda to resort to desperate action."

In a related development, a Kenya newspaper said today Amin narrowly escaped a weekend assassination attempt by soldiers who burst into his command post firing their weapons. It said he has been in hiding since then.

As the dispute between Nairobi and Kampala worsened, Kenya urged its citizens in Uganda — believed to still number several thousand — to flee for their lives "and not wait to be butchered by Uganda troops."

The plea came from Kenyan Provincial Commissioner John Mburu, who said the government was working around the clock "trying to save as many Kenyans still subjected to brutal murder in Uganda through every possible means."

Kenyan sources claim nearly 300 Kenyans in Uganda already have been killed by rampaging troops.

Amin sent telegrams Sunday to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and OAU Secretary General William Eteki saying: "I call upon the U.N. and the OAU to verify the alarming situation which is threatening world peace and order by urgently sending fact-finding missions to Uganda and Kenya."

Kenya Foreign Minister Munyua Waiyaki said Amin was "just looking for an excuse" to go to war and warned:

"If he attacks Kenya, Kenya will be bound to use all her energies to defend herself."

Amin accused Kenya of illegally halting more than 300 oil trucks bound for Uganda. Already most international flights have been cancelled, industry has halted and private motoring has been banned although the army is believed to still have some gasoline reserves.

POLICE BEAT

Probe Stabbing in Woodstock

WOODSTOCK—The Detective Division of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department is investigating a stabbing in the Town of Woodstock.

Police say George Cannata, a Woodstock artist, was allegedly stabbed in the chest with a steak knife early Sunday morning following an argument at his Mead Mountain residence. He was reportedly transported by friends to Kingston Hospital's emergency room where he was treated and released.

Deputy Christopher Jones conducted the initial investigation and turned the matter over to the detective division.

Rock Throwers Arrested

A CB Marine call to the Ulster County Sheriff's Department resulted in the arrest of three area teenagers who were allegedly throwing rocks at boats in the Rondout Creek from the 1903 railroad bridge.

Police say the call came around 6 p.m. Sunday. Town of Esopus Police were notified and came to one end of the bridge while sheriff's deputies covered the other. Conrail investigators also assisted in the arrest.

Arrested were Ronald Mendock, 16, and David Foster, also 16, and a 14-year-old girl from the Town of Ulster. The three were brought before Esopus Justice Andrew Aurigemma. Mendock was charged with criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree and violation of probation. He was remanded to the Ulster County jail for an appearance August 2. Foster was released in the custody of his parents and the girl was turned over the the Ulster County Juvenile Aid Bureau.

Sheriff Thomas Mayone praised the cooperation of the Town of Esopus Police and the Conrail investigators.

Two Robbers Sought

New Paltz Police are looking for two men who broke in to a New Paltz residence and attempted to rob a 69-year-old woman who was living there alone.

Police say two men smashed through the screen door of the residence and forced the woman to the floor. One of the men then tied her hands and feet and gagged her with a pillowcase. Police say the men then used another pillowcase to collect pewter, silver, and jewelry. The woman reportedly heard the men leaving through the front door, but heard no vehicle. Both men wore ski masks and leather gloves with knitted fabric between the fingers. The pillow case with the items in it was recovered inside the house.

Store Fire Investigated

Saugerties Town Police are investigating the cause of a fire which destroyed the inside of the Quarryville Grocery Store early Monday morning.

The 35 fire fighters of the Saxton-Katsbaan Fire Department brought the blaze under control within 15 minutes, according to Fire Chief Richard Balk who reported that the damage was confined to the inside of the store and a plate glass window at the front of the store which was cracked by the heat.

★★★

Marbletown Accident

State Police report a personal injury auto accident in the Town of Marbletown Saturday evening.

Police say Jack Goldberg, 47, Long Beach, slowed his vehicle to avoid an unknown car making a left turn into a gas station on Route 209 in Marbletown and was struck from behind by a car driven by Lyndon Vannornan, 20, High Falls.

Injured were David Warren, 10, and Andrew Warren, 8, passengers in Vannornan's car. David suffered a lacerated knee and Andrew suffered a laceration to the forehead. Both were taken to Kingston Hospital by the Marbletown Rescue Squad where they were treated and released.

★★★

Spots Bogus Bill

An alert pari-mutuel ticket salesman at the Monticello Raceway spotted a counterfeit hundred dollar bill and alerted Ferndale State Police who arrested the man who had attempted to pass the bill.

Police say Angelo Ferrugia, 31, Rockville Center, was taken before Acting Justice Gerald Briggs and charged with possession of a forged instrument. Several other bogus bills were found in the suspect's car.

Anyone with information about the counterfeit hundreds is requested to call the Ferndale State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

★★★

Burglary in Ulster

Town of Ulster Police report a burglary at the Sunset Gardens apartment complex sometime over the weekend.

Police say the residence of Steven Snyder was burglarized while Snyder was away over the weekend. The burglars reportedly entered the apartment by forcing the sliding doors in the rear. A total of $900 worth of stereo equipment, watches and jewelry are reported missing.

★★★

Issues Alert on Siphoning

Ulster County Sheriff Thomas Mayone has cautioned residents of Ulster County about a rash of illegal gas siphoning.

The latest of a series of gasoline thefts occurred Sunday night when a gas tank of a private car was emptied while it was parked outside a residence in Port Ewen.

Prostitution Arrests

City detectives Saturday night arrested two women for prostitution and one man for patronizing a prostitute. Detectives also arrested four men at the same address on drug charges.

Kingston Detectives James Riggins, Joseph Feraca and Charles McCullough raided a residence at 143 Pine St. at 10 p.m. Saturday night and arrested Carolyn Galante, 22, and Jill-Roni Sutton for prostitution and Edward Taxter, 53, 17 Dubois Road, New Paltz, for patronizing a prostitute. Both women gave their addresses as 143 Pine St.

Detectives also arrested four men for criminal possession of a hypodermic needle, criminal possession of drug paraphernalia, and criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree. They were: John A. Walker, 23, Route 2, Box 296A, Saugerties; Stephen M. DeChirico, 17, 1844 Coney Island Ave., Brooklyn; Robert Friscia, 23, 2394 Pine Tree Lane, Saugerties; and Lance A. Budesa, 19, 1198 Ocean Ave., Brooklyn.

All seven were scheduled to appear in City Court this morning

Documents Show MacArthur Lenient Toward Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese leaders met secretly with General Douglas MacArthur in the days following World War II and persuaded him to abandon plans to assume direct military rule over the defeated nation, according to secret documents declassified Sunday.

The 40,000 pages of documents released by the Japanese Foreign Ministry revealed meetings between MacArthur and high Japanese officials never disclosed to newsmen covering the seven-year Allied occupation after Japan's surrender in 1945.

They contrast sharply with the American history book image of MacArthur as the "Yankee Emperor of Japan" during his tour as high commissioner of the Allied occupation forces.

The papers said the late Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu met with MacArthur in Yokohama 17 days after the end of the war and persuaded him to drop a plan to put Japan under direct American military rule.

MacArthur agreed to rule through the existing Japanese government after winning a promise that Japanese officials would carry out his orders.

Among the papers was a draft of the proclamation MacArthur never issued. It would have abolished the Japanese government, put the country under Allied military rule and established English as the official language.

The newly declassified documents also showed that the famous visit of Emperor Hirohito to MacArthur six weeks after the war ended was suggested to MacArthur by another Japanese, Shigeru Yoshida, who had replaced Shigemitsu as foreign minister.

At a meeting with MacArthur on Sept. 20, 1945, Yoshida found MacArthur perplexed about how to deal with Emperor Hirohito, then regarded by the Japanese public as a divinity.

He warned MacArthur that removal of the Emperor might spur resistance to the occupation.

Yoshida suggested that the Emperor call on MacArthur when the general arrived in Tokyo. MacArthur had a friendly meeting with Hirohito a week later and allowed him to stay on the throne as a constitutional monarch.

Yoshida also argued successfuly that introduction of democracy in Japan should be delayed until the country started to get back on its feet. A new constitution making Japan a parliamentary democracy did not go into effect until almost two years later.

MacArthur was in charge of the Allied occupation of Japan from the war's end until he was dismissed by President Harry S. Truman in April 1951.

Pill Safer Than Pregnancy

CHICAGO (UPI) — Despite an increased risk of blood clots and heart attacks in women using birth control pills, the death rate from the pill is lower than pregnancy itself, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists says.

The organization's recent technical bulletin, distributed to more than 18,000 obstetricians and gynecologists, said despite some recent controversy, the benefits of oral contraception far outweigh its possible risks.

One of the main points in favor of the pill, the bulletin says, is that the death rate from the pill is lower than from pregnancy itself.

"No known contraceptive at the present time has a death rate comparable to that of pregnancy," the bulletin said.

The bulletin, a comprehensive compilation of the latest thinking on oral contraceptives, includes information on the pill's side effects, major complications and risk-benefit ratio. It also includes advice to physicians on matters like choice of dosage and patient counseling.

The bulletin reports that an increased risk of thromboembolic diseases — blood clots — has been established with the use of the pill. Also, recent studies have shown an apparent increase in the risk of myocardial infarction, or heart attacks, in women taking the pill.

The bulletin also warns that possible risks of birth defects may be increased in babies born to women who became pregnant shortly after discontinuing use of the pill. It advises that women change to a different type of birth control after going off the pill, await the time when the regular menstrual cycle is re-established and then try to become pregnant.

Women over 40 years old are especially susceptible to the possible dangers of pill use because of the increased risk of heart attacks at that age. However, such women are also more susceptible to complications in pregnancy, the bulletin said.

The conclusions drawn in the bulletin earlier were submitted to the Food and Drug Administration, which is drafting new labeling for oral contraceptives.

The college is the largest national spokesman for obstetricians and gynecologists and is headquartered in Chicago.

FAA Favors Tower Light

KINGSTON — The Federal Aviation Administration is in "complete agreement" that a proposed 150-foot telephone tower off Broadway should be topped with an aircraft warning light, Alderman Titus B. Sims, R-13th Ward, confirmed today.

Sims and the Kingston Zoning Board of Appeals were notified of the FAA position by letter Saturday from the New York Telephone Co., which had taken the matter to the federal agency after Sims brought up the light when the tower proposal was discussed with the ZBA last week.

Sims noted that the tower, to be erected atop the phone company building, could endanger helicopters using the emergency landing pad at nearby Benedictine Hospital.

Viking Set for Life Search

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1's crucial soil sampling arm has been repaired to start the long-awaited quest for life but officials today all but wrote off the robot's locked $2 million seismometer.

The spacecraft began its day today with orders to take a color picture of the American flag painted on it.

Project director James Martin said there was some objection from scientists, who would rather use the time for another scientific picture, "but I'm pretty proud to have an American flag on Mars and it just dosn't look the same in black and white."

Martin said new commands will be radioed to Viking 1 Tuesday morning in a "long shot" attempt to release electronic locks keeping the marsquake meter from operating, but he said he was pessimistic.

"I don't believe that will be successful and we are, in fact, planning now on how to use the data allocation that had been assigned to the seismometer," Martin said. Engineers believe a broken wire caused the problem.

The instrument was designed to magnify ground vibrations 1 million times to detect marsquakes. Scientists hoped the device would have given them an idea whether Mars is an active or dying planet internally.

Also coming up Tuesday is the final course correction maneuver for Viking 2, which carries an identical seismometer. It will swing into Mars orbit Aug. 7 and land in early September.

Martin said scientists have calculated that Viking 1 landed only 22.5 miles from its Martian bullseye after a curving, 440million mile journey from Earth.

Viking 1's life search begins Wednesday when the gold-colored digger will reach out 85 inches, plow into the red Martian soil, scoop up a total of two ounces of dirt and deliver it to the open hopper of Viking's three life detection instruments.

Acting in methodical slow motion, the robot then will extend its reach another five inches and pick up a handful of soil for an instrument designed to look for organic molecules. Still another scoop of soil will go into an inorganic chemistry analyzer.

Engineers had to wait until afternoon before pictures came back from the spacecraft confirming that it indeed had been repaired. It showed not only that it had been done, but one shot showed the pin half buried in the Martian soil where it had fallen.

"We all are very pleased," Martin said. "The boom appears to be working just exactly as it should. I've very happy."

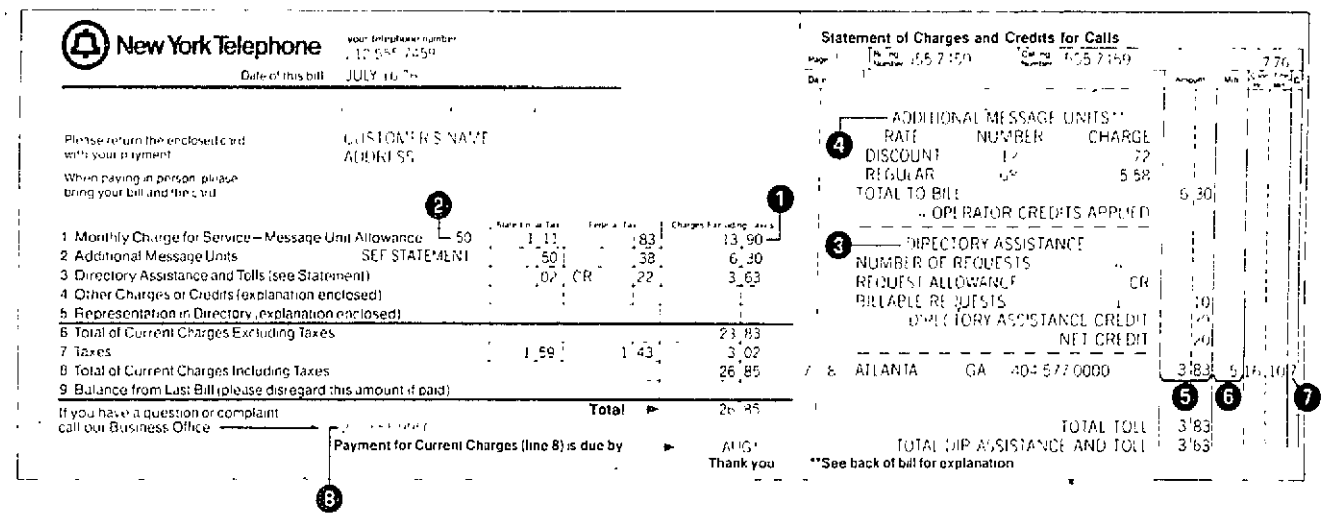
Three separate biology experiments will search the Martian soil for evidence of metabolic and photosynthetic processes of micro-organisms.

One instrument introduces carbon dioxide and carbon monoxide and incubates the sample under artificial sunlight. Another will add a nutrient-rich "chicken soup" solution. The third uses a simpler nutrient to see if anything releases carbon dioxide.

Coast-to-Coast
NEWSPAPERS SELL THE MOST!

The more you know about this month's phone bill, the more you can control next month's phone bill.

Your phone bill is full of information about your service and how you use it. Why not take a minute to study it? You may just discover ways to save money, or to get more for what you spend. It pays to know.



1 Combined total of the charges for basic monthly service and any equipment you may have (extensions, etc.). In this case, the basic service charge is $7.34, and the customer has one extension ($1.68), and 2 Trimline® phones ($4.88), which comes to $13.90. An itemization of the charges on line 1 is included with your bill once each year.

2 The number of message units included in your basic service charge—50—if you have message rate service. There is no message unit allowance if you have Basic Budget Service or flat rate service. If you have Basic Budget or flat rate service you are billed for all message units on line 2.

3 Directory Assistance Charges are explained here and on the back of your bill. If you don't make more than 3 requests for the month—and most customers don't—you get a 30¢ credit. In this case, the customer made a net of four billable requests, and the credit dropped to 20¢.

4 If there are additional message unit charges on your bill (line 2), they are explained here. The Discount price (6¢) applies between 9 PM and 9 AM on weekdays, and all day on weekends, Christmas, New Year's, July 4, Labor Day and Thanksgiving. That's a saving of 27% a unit over the Regular rate of 8.2¢. (For message rate customers, the saving applies after you exceed your 50-message unit allowance each month.) We have a free folder to help you keep track of your message units. Just fill in the coupon and mail it to us.

5 This is the cost of a 5-minute daytime, weekday person-to-person call to Atlanta. Person-to-person calls always cost more than station-to-station calls you dial direct without operator assistance. If the same call had been dialed direct, the cost would have been $1.86. We also have a 20¢ rate for direct dialed calls to Atlanta, but that's for only 1 minute, and between 11 PM and 8 AM on weekdays, or on weekends before 5 PM Sunday. Why not take our "Short Course in Long Distance." It's yours for the asking. Just fill in the coupon and mail it to us.

6 The length of each long distance call appears in this column. If you want to keep track of how long you talk, keep a timer near the telephone. Also, know what you want to talk about and you'll cover more in less time.

7 The numbers in Column "C" are explained on the back of the bill. They tell you how you made your long distance call, and the rate in effect at the time. Keeping an eye on Column "C" should remind you that night and weekend rates are lowest.

8 Your business office number appears in this space. Please call us if you have any questions about your bill.

Carey Signs Streamlined Welfare-Medicaid Package

By UPI

A package of bills aimed at modernizing and centralizing the state's welfare and Medicaid programs has gained Gov. Hugh Carey's signature, it was announced today.

The most far-reaching of the measures authorizes and appropriates $1.9 million for the development of a computerized "welfare management system", for storing data on eligibility of applicants for social service aid.

Funding for the system was included in the recently passed supplemental budget, with implementation scheduled for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The central system is to cooperate with, and provide information to, computers operated by local social service districts throughout the state. Bill sponsors claimed it would reduce mismanagement and help detect fraudulent aid applications

The new law prohibits the distribution of any information to unauthorized sources, to protect the confidentiality of information gathered by a local district and stored in the central computer bank.

A similar measure, recommended by the Temporary State Commission to Revise the Social Services Law, authorizes and appropriates $1.85 million for a Medicaid Management Payment System, to centralize processing of medical assistance payments.

Funds for developing the system in the 1976-77 fiscal year were also included in the supplemental budget.

The bill requires the state to make direct payment to Medicaid providers, such as doctors and hospitals. Local social services districts, which had made such payments in the past, would continue to determine an individual's eligibility for Medicaid.

The measure's sponsors argued a statewide set-up for reviewing Medicaid applications and payments was necessary to better control Medicaid costs and reduce administrative error and payment duplications.

Another bill requires the Social Services department to disregard federal income tax refunds to "working poor" families in determining eligibility for public assistance.

Included in the welfare package was a bill authorizing local social service officials to contract out the operation of work relief programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 (CETA). It was argued many counties were not equipped to develop work slots and screen applicants.

Other measures signed into law would:

— Authorize the use of a publicly or privately owned snowmobile by peace officers on official duty, including for civil defense purposes.

— Require that private proprietary homes for adults provide 30 days notice of increased rates due to higher maintenance and operation costs.

— Require the Board of Social Welfare, in considering an application for an adult proprietary home, to weigh public need for the facility against relative concentration of such homes in the area to be served.

— Prohibit discrimination in the granting of credit. Creditors would be barred from determining credit worthiness by making inquiries regarding race, creed, color, national origin, sex, marital status or disability. The liklihood of a woman becoming pregnant is also ruled out as a legal credit consideration.

— Authorize state savings and loan associations to pool together in writing a high-rish mortgage, to encourage investments in run-down inner city and rural areas — so-called redlined districts which have in recent years been unable to attract capital for rehabilitation.

— Require the refund of unearned interest or unused credit insurance premiums upon the default or death of the borrower.

More Money Possible

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An audit released Sunday reports that pari mutuel tax revenues from on track betting are being effectively monitored by the state, but that if taxes were submitted more promptly and immediately invested, the state could earn an estimated $1.5 million more in interest annually

The report from the State Department of Audit and Control said that tracks operated by the New York Racing Association (Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga) were permitted to defer paying pari-mutuel taxes 35 days after they were due, to help NYRA maintain its cash needs.

However, this practice has deprived the state of an estimated $800,000 in interest in 1973 and 1974, according to the report Auditors recommended any tax deferral requests be carefully evaluated and monitored.

The report also said a delay in transferring funds from a non interest bearing Department of Taxation account to the state's General Fund resulted in a potential loss to the state of $700,000 annually The audit report said the Department had corrected this problem

The report criticized Taxation Department examiners for spending "an inordinate amount of time" verifying that racing associations were submitted the proper tax and recommended the department spend more time following up on off-track betting operations

"In contrast to the on-track examinations, the pari-mutuel revenue unit has done only very limited auditing to verify that the State is receiving its proper share of the betting pools in the off-track area," the report said.

The pari mutuel tax, levied on all amounts wagered on horse races, in 1974 produced $158.9 million and the racing admissions tax raised $811,000 In that year, off-track corporations remitted $14.2 million — or 9 per cent of the revenue produced by on-track sources.

Crime Strikes Home

FREEPORT, Ill. (UPI) — Sherry King, 21, news director at a local radio station, may find it uupsetting to give another editorial on the increasing rate of theft and vandalism.

She delivered an editorial on radio station WFRO about the increasing crime rate early Sunday and then returned home to find that someone had broken into her house and had taken about $700 in stereo equipment.

Mayor Beame Still Undecided on Second Term

NEW YORK (UPI) — Close associates of Mayor Abraham Beame insist that the mayor, despite reports to the contrary, has not yet decided whether to seek a second term in office.

The official response from the mayor's press office to queries about Beame's political plans is that he has not yet made a decision. Beame himself has said he has been too busy in recent months to give the matter serious thought. Highly reliable sources close to Beame insist that this is so.

However, sources close to the local leadership of the Democratic party report that Beame, while technically not yet a candidate, has embarked on a program of campaign-like activities designed to leave the option open to him or strengthen the chances of his personal choice as a successor.

That choice, the sources say, is Manhattan Borough President Percy Sutton, who has shaved his goatee, divested his interest in a Harlem newspaper and begun making a political and social circuit in an effort to boost his visibility

Sutton, if he runs and is elected, would be the city's first black mayor. He has said he won't be a candidate if Beame elects to run again.

"Whether he's running or not, he looks like a candidate," says one city councilman. And that, according to the party sources, is exactly the plan.

They say the timetable calls for Beame to keep up the appearance of running, at least until next summer, when he will either declare or choose Sutton.

Beame, who is 70, is now in his third year as mayor. If he were to seek re-election, he would face a primary in the fall of 1977.

Party sources say Beame's pleasure at being mayor has increased dramatically in recent weeks with the easing off of the fiscal crisis and the success of the Democratic convention, Operation Sail and other city-related summer activities.

He also is said to be enthusiastic about his active role locally in the Jimmy Carter presidential campaign.

On the other hand, Beame's family — and particularly his wife, Mary — are reported not too happy with the prospect of another four years in Gracie Mansion. Too fresh is the memory of too many nights of three hours sleep or less last fall as the city nudged official bankruptcy.

Cubans Caught with Bomb

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three Cubans believed to be members of a militant anti-Castro group have been caught planting a powerful pipe bomb outside a Manhattan theater where a proCastro musical festival was scheduled.

Authorities said the three suspects, all aliens living in New Jersey, were believed to be members of Omega 7, a right-wing group opposed to the Castro regime.

The organization previously claimed responsibility for bombing the Cuban mission to the United Nations last month, and the Venezuelan U.N. mission on Feb. 1, 1975, authorities said.

Police said officers arrested the trio Saturday morning, just as they were attempting to light the fuse of a pipe bomb near the box office of the Academy of Music

The Academy was scheduled to host a Saturday night musical and dance program, "In Concert with Cuba: Break the Blockade," sponsored by the July 26 Committee, a pro-Castro group.

Police described the bomb as an eight-inch long, galvanized pipe containing one pound and five ounces of C 4, a high order explosive "It would have blown out the whole front of the theater," a department spokesman said

Police said the suspects were spotted by officers of the department's Intelligence Division and the Arson and Explosion Squad who were staking out the theater in anticipation of trouble on July 26, the commemorative date of the Cuban revolution.

The department spokesman added police had "established surveillance on several locations as possible targets of pro-Castro or anti-Castro groups."

A spokeswoman for the July 26 Committee said, "Tonight's show will go on in spite of any form of terrorism." Police would not say whether they had any plans to beef up security but only that "adequate protection would be provided."

The bombing suspects were identified as George Gomez, 28, of Union City, N.J.; Armand Santana, 25, of West New York, N.J., and Alfredo Chumanceiro, 22, of Union City.

A loaded, 9-mm automatic pistol was found tucked in the waist of Santana's trousers, the spokesman said, and it was learned that the men had driven to New York in a stolen car with a New Jersey registration.

The three were charged with attempted arson, reckless endangerment, criminal possession of a dangerous weapon and possession of a stolen car.

Jobless Fund Minus

MONTPELIER, Vt., (UPI) — Vermont Employment Security Commissioner Madelyn Davidson says the state's jobless compensation fund is now about $36 million in the red

Mrs Davidson noted Saturday the unemployment compensation tax paid last year by the state averaged almost $265 per covered worker. She said the average tax paid by employers for each covered worker was about $94.

"Obviously, you can't keep this cost benefit ratio going for long without being deeply in debt," she said.

Mrs Davidson also noted the smallest gain in average weekly wages from 1972 to 1975 was recorded by state employes

According to figures released by her office, the average wage for state workers climbed only 8.3 per cent during that threeyear period.

It rose from about $144 in 1972 to about $156 in 1975, increasing wages an average of $4 a year

The largest percentage increase occurred in the agriculture and forestry services industries The average pay in those two industries climbed from $94 a week to $131 a week over the three year period covered by the survey.

Workers in the retail and trade industries received the lowest average weekly pay last year. They received an average of almost $123 a week That was an increase of about $17 a week compared to their average pay in 1972.

Favors Israeli-Palestinian Cooperation

A strong sense of justice inherent in his Jewish faith leads Rabbi Jerome W. Groilman to believe Israel should help the Palestinians set up their own state in the Middle East. "I cannot deny to another what I ask for myself," he says. He looks back at the obstacles Zionists had to overcome to establish Israel, and he thinks Israel should work with the Palestinians including the PLO if necessary.

U.S. Scenario of Death for North Koreans

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The United States last year scripted a saber-rattling scenario for quick victory should the Indochina debacle tempt Communist North Korea to invade South Korea.

The scenario, given wide press coverage 13 months ago at the time of the 25th anniversary of the start of the Korean War, was made public for a dual purpose.

The United States wanted to warn North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung against military adventurism and, at the same time, reassure South Korea of America's military support if the Communists from the north invaded.

Some of the top American military brass here warned that the invaders could be crushed by massive air and artillery strikes in just nine days.

The main killing zone, according to the scenario, would be in North Korea, where hordes of Communist troops presumably would be massed for the push toward this capital city, just 24 miles south of the Demilitarized Zone, which separates the two Koreas.

Once the invaders hit the DMZ, the American strategists said, all hell would break loose and the fate of the Communist aggressors would be sealed.

Lt. Gen. James F. Hollingsworth, then commander of I Corps, boasted that it would take just five days to repulse and cripple the invasion force. The tough-talking Texan said another four days would be needed to "tidy up" the battlefield.

There were even dark hints from Washington, if not threats, of the possible use of the tactical nuclear weaponry the United States has deployed in South Korea.

The United States now considers that it has successfully imparted the message to both Koreas, so it has toned down its war rhetoric.

However, it also believes that the basic threat from the north remains, so it does not want to withdraw its 42,000 troops based in South Korea.

But retaining U.S. forces in South Korea has been complicated by increasing criticism here and in the United States of the authoritarian rule of President Park Chung Hee.

In recent week more than a dozen church leaders have been arrested causing fear among Western diplomats that the detentions may signal an all-out government crackdown on the clergy under Park's tough anti-Communist laws.

The clergymen arrested had been ministering to slum dwellers.

The government, which already has put down student opposition, is known to fear an uprising among the poor.

There is no question that the South Korean economy has boomed and the nation appears ready for an industrial takeoff. But clergymen who oppose Park contend that despite the boom the economic gap between the rich and the poor has widened

The government maintains that acts which foment social disorder must be dealt with forcefully in the face of threats of aggression from North Korea and to protect the rights of the majority.

There is evidence that the United States is officially displeased with South Korea, where even to criticize the government is an illegal act.

The United States has this to say for the record: "Our unhappiness with the human rights situation has been stated publicly and privately to the Korean government."

That, say critics of the Park regime, is a Milquetoast position.

Some of them hope to see Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential hopeful, in the White House.

Their reasoning is that Carter, a man who has spent a lot of time in Sunday school, would take a dim view of a government that evidently has a penchant for jailing preachers

Queen Goes Home

MONTREAL (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth departed for home early Monday, concluding a 13day visit to Canada, which included presiding over opening ceremonies of the XXI Olympic Games.

The Queen and her two youngest sons, Andrew, 16, and Edward, 12, left Dorval Airport at 12:20 a.m. EDT aboard a Canadian Armed Forces Boeing 707 jet for London.

The royal party arrived in Canada July 13 after a twoweek tour of the United States to participate in several American Bicentennial celebrations.

While here, the Queen attended several Olympic events, including each day her daughter, Princess Anne, competed as part of Great Britain's equestrian team in the three-day event.

The team failed to place, two of its four horses being forced to pull out due to injuries. Anne was 24th in the final individual rankings.

Boosts Rabin

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Israeli rescue raid at Entebbe, Uganda, has boosted Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's political fortunes, but the question is for how long.

Rabin's stock had been falling before the raid and his colleagues in the Labor party were questioning his leadership and chances for survival. The airborne commando rescue of more than 100 hijacked persons in Uganda seems to have changed all that.

Rabin's associates report the 54-year-old prime minister has been loudly cheered on entering public functions. But political observers say his new popularity may not be enough for him to overcome Israel's domestic and international problems.

"It's a long way to the 1977 national elections," commented one veteran observer

Sadat Again?

CAIRO (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat will almost certainly be nominated to succeed himself when parliament meets Aug 17, despite previous statements by him that he will not run for another six-year term.

What's more, Arab diplomats said they fully expect Sadat will accept the nomination The nominee of parliament will be endorsed by the people in a nationwide vote Oct. 2, and new parliamentary elections will follow Oct. 25

Sadat, who succeeded the late Gamal Abdel Nasser, will complete his first term in October.

Defensive Pact?

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — The joint defense pact which Egypt and the Sudan concluded July 15 is directed against Libya. What remains to be seen is whether the pact is purely defensive, or whether the two countries will resort to the same tactics they accuse Libya of trying against them

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry signed the pact after accusing Libyan ruler Moammar Khadafy of organizing an abortive coup against Numeiry July 2. They also blame him for a series of bombing incidents in the Egyptian cities of Alexandria and Mersa Matrouh.

Egypt formally committed itself in the pact to rush to Numeiry's assistance should he face trouble again. But Arab diplomats are now waiting to see if the pact means more than this — specifically whether the two countries decide to borrow a leaf from Khadafy's own book and organize trouble for him at home.

Good Timing

BEIRUT (UPI) — Arab League officials insist the current illness of league Secretary General Mahmoud Riad is not diplomatic. Nonetheless it came at a fortunate time for him.

Riad went to Zurich for treatment of an eye disease right after an Arab foreign ministers conference had called on him to implement a cease-fire in the Lebanese civil war, reconcile the Palestinians and Syrians and get peace talks started

Riad's plea to the conference -- "do not overburden me" -- went unheeded. The former Egyptian foreign minister, who had twice before visited Lebanon but failed to end the civil war, felt his distinguished career might be threatened by another failure

His illness has enabled him to postpone a mission he never wanted to undertake.

May Broaden

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel's "good fence" policy with Lebanon may conceivably develop into an open bridges policy such as exists with Jordan

In the last four months, Israeli medical teams have treated 3,000 Christian and Moslem Lebanese patients at two border stations. Now Lebanese are being allowed to buy fuel, food and water inside Israel.

Although southern Lebanon has served as a base for Arab guerrilla strikes into Israel, relations with the villagers have been good over the years Israel may now want to solidify that relationship should the time become right for an Israeli move into that part of Lebanon

...AFE'S CHANCE

Hurray for Zena Store

A number of Zena residents are dismayed at the general store and restaurant proposed for construction across from the Zena Elementary School. They seem to be convinced there is no need for commercial development in the area.

As a ten-year Zena resident, I welcome the new market. Although the stores on Route 28 and in West Hurley may be close enough for some of my neighbors, others, like me for instance, would enjoy being able to walk to buy our household goods.

The existing establishments are not within practical walking distance for most area residents. It would be a real time-saver if parents could send the kids out for a quart of milk despite the fact that they are under driving age. Families could chase the spiders away from their bicycles and pedal to the local deli.

Let's have a neighborhood general store! I hope it's ready to open as soon as possible.

Our America of 1976 is in distress, suffering from unemployment, recession, depression, and bankruptcy. We are suffering, let the big sharks suffer also.

I came here not to plead for mercy, but to accuse. I regard the commissioner not as a public servant, but as a proven tool of the corporations. We cannot recognize the commissioner as our protector, but as a hangman.

As for hunting, there are people in this area who depend on hunting to supply meat for their families in the winter months. There are, and will always be, people who abuse any facet of life.

Please explain one thing — how can anyone so adamantly condemn the hunting of animals and so valiantly applaud the murder of babies?

Another Moral President: Hayes

WASHINGTON - A governor, a man almost wholly unknown outside his own state before his nomination, a non-Washington, anti-Eastern Establishment candidate: Rutherford B. Hayes. It will be 100 years this autumn that Hayes was elected the 19th President of the United States.

It would be deceptive to push the comparison too far, but the similarities between the man from Freemont, Ohio, and the man from Plains, Georgia, are close enough so that the past may give us a small insight into the present.

Carter and Hayes were nominated for much the same reasons. The major figures in their parties who wanted the designation were either too closely associated with the mess in Washington or were too divisively controversial. An unknown of impeccable probity, a person absolutely unconnected with scandals involving both the White House and the Congress, a man free of the taint of "Grantism" was what the Republican Party and the nation needed. Hayes was to do for the presidency what Carter is offering to try to do, restore respect for it.

So here we have that much-spoken-of individual, the honest man trying to function as such in politics. Here we have a test of the proposition that the moral man can be a restorative to the body politic. It is a fair test because Hayes' virtues weren't cooked up by his press agents. By the standards of his age or ours, Rutherford B. Hayes was a good man.

He was a good man in a bad situation. The 1876 campaign was by all odds the crookedest, most violent, most dishonest, most venal election in our history. By comparison the sins of Watergate are trifling. So many votes were stolen that Hayes' election by the margin of one electoral vote could not be decided until the challenged results from four states were determined by a special commission composed of five senators, five congressmen and five Supreme Court justices.

Hayes had no part in this massive dishonesty - presidential candidates often had little control over their campaigns in that era - but he was the beneficiary of it. "Rutherfraud B. Hayes," his enemies called him, but what does the good man do in these circumstances? He could have retired from politics or he had to suffer being connected with some of the worst blackguards in our history.

The good man also had to be fuzzy on many of the issues, including the most important one, the question of continuing to have Federal troops occupy the states of Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana. We know from Hayes' diaries that he always intended to put the Civil War behind us, and when he actually entered office he appointed a Southern Democrat to his cabinet. But if he was perhaps the first president to appoint a member of the opposite party in the modern sense to a cabinet position, he would have lost the election had he said what he was going to do before taking the oath of office. Is this duplicity or does Hayes' example tell us that, past a certain point, you can't demand specificity of a campaigning politician if he is to practice his trade?

How did Hayes show people the kind of man he was? He didn't do it by a public religiosity. He supported churches the way he supported the Odd Fellows, his fraternal lodge, but never pretended he was a Christian. The Episcopal Bishop of Ohio once wrote him saying, "While I am sure that in your private thoughts you bow submissively to God... is there not the highest of all reasons that your allegiance should be openly made known?" (As quoted from "Rutherford B. Hayes and his America," by Harry Barnard, Bobbs-Merrill, Indianapolis, 1954.) Hayes thought not.

He made few specific promises, but those he kept. Having run on a platform of civil service reform and ending the patronage spoils system, he made good on his word. When powerful members of his own party would come into his office demanding appointments for people in their political organizations, Hayes would pull a copy of the Republican Party platform out and read it to them. This caused one miffed Senator to walk out and exclaim, "He thinks he's George Washington!" The rumor got around, however, that there might be an honest man camping out in the White House.

But honesty can appear to be nothing more than a device for ambition. That sort of dishonest honesty can percolate through the public facade and produce a feeling of uneasiness whereby people feel uncomfortable with a politician but can't exactly put their finger on why. This may be a problem for Jimmy Carter but it wasn't for Hayes, who had an immense and thoughtful but not visionary concern for the people of this land.

It wasn't a feigned thing to be put off after having attained office, as his diaries attest. While in office he had favored such measures as federal aid to local public schools, and out of office his continuing concern moved him to write things that none of the three current presidential contenders would probably care to say into a TV camera: "We ought not to allow a permanent aristocracy of inherited wealth to grow up on our country... Vast accumulations of wealth in a few hands are hostile to labor. Their tendency is to break down fair competition, to build up monoply, to corrupt politics, to bribe conventions, legislative bodies, courts and juries, to debauch society; and churches are not beyond the reach of their baneful influence."

Not bad, Rutherford, and better yet is that this founder of the Republican Party promised in his campaign that if elected he'd never run again. He kept that promise too.

Execute Murderers in Public

He was young and fair. He glanced shyly at the principal keeper and the P.K. nodded. He sat in the awkward oaken chair and closed his eyes and sighed as two men whirled the straps. He was dead in three minutes, a mass of swollen, bursting flesh and smoking hands.

The name is pointless. The young man was the first of a dozen and a half men whose deaths I was assigned to cover. I recall his face when I don't want to remember.

Now the legal killing is about to start again. The Supreme Court said that capital punishment "is an expression of society's moral outrage at particularly offensive conduct... an extreme sanction suitable to the most extreme crimes."

There are 592 condemned prisoners on death row. Of these, 310 are black, 12 are women. Some will die. Some will win new trials. Some will win commutations to life imprisonment.

No one knows which or why. All are doing a bit of dying each night when the lights go out. They deserve no sympathy. You snuff a life; you get snuffed.

I fought against capital punishment. No more. This nation is drenched with violence. If we cannot stop it, the least we can do is make crime expensive.

My quarrel with the law is its hypocrisy. Our prosecutors ask juries to believe that capital punishment is a deterrent to others. The Supreme Court said that this has never been proved.

How can it stop future murders when the killer is executed in secrecy? Kill him in public. Come one, come all - watch a man fry. Let everyone see what can happen if you take a life.

As a first step, we should make five-minute color movies of each execution. Copies should be sent to all federal, state and county jails.

Show it in the mess halls. All prisoners should be forced to watch it. In the main, these are the future killers. Give them a closeup of what the end of the road looks like.

My suspicion is that while the execution of a murderer is no longer regarded as "cruel and unusual punishment," the movie would be called cruel and unusual punishment.

And there, my friend, is the heart of the hypocrisy. We want the right to kill, but we don't want to be caught bragging about it. Newspaper stories about executions, as deterrents, cannot hope to match the impact of watching the law exact the final price for crime.

I do not cry for blood. Our prison system smells. Our parole boards are not competent to judge which felon is rehabilitated, and which one is not. If a convict is sentenced to 10 years, the judge is part of the deceit if he knows the prisoner will be out in seven.

The reason we have law is to protect the citizenry from its criminal element. It is obvious to everyone but the lawyers that we do not get sufficient protection.

One who is convicted of a premeditated crime of violence should be as easily identified as the biblical leper who wore a bell. Tattoo a red circle on the tip of his nose and the backs of both hands.

When he gets out of jail, he will carry his warning red light wherever he goes. Is this too "cruel and unusual"? Hardly. The menace to society is the violent person. It is cruel, I feel, not to give law-abiding people an opportunity to identify him on sight.

You've heard the word recidivist. It means repeater. Our recidivism rate is 35 per cent. Put the tattoo marks on all of them. It will make it difficult for them to find work, but they don't want work anyway. Most of them are certain that crime does pay.

I sound callous. And yet, after many years of covering trials, I am convinced that the law must punish swiftly and relentlessly, or movd backward to the submissive suspended sentence syndrome. Find him guilty and give him free psychiatric treatment. He didn't commit a crime; society did it to him.

We cannot move halfway. A police captain said, "I'm glad I'm a cop today. Somewhere out there is a nut with a gun. I have a gun. This gives me a little edge over the rest of you."

Think about it.

FTC Bows To Big Oil Interests

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission is supposed to protect the public from rigged prices. Yet it has dropped a case that its staff says would have brought down the prices of automobile accessories.

The staff developed evidence that Amoco, Exxon, Sohio, and Standard Oil of California were restraining competition. The four oil giants jointly own the Atlas Supply Co., which sells tires, batteries and accessories.

Through Atlas, the oil companies allegedly were able to manipulate prices. They accomplished this, according to confidential FTC memos, by restricting the distribution of Atlas accessories and keeping them out of the hands of discounters.

The FTC staff wanted to break the tight hold of the four oil companies on Atlas products. This would have increased competition, resulting in "lower prices to comsumers on the two largest volume products, tires and batteries," states one confidential memo.

Yet the FTC, despite the strong objections of staff investigators, refused to take the four oil companies to court. Instead, the FTC filed a "Part II" complaint against the quartet. This was a cozy backroom procedure which permitted the companies to conduct secret negotiations and to seek an out-of-court settlement without painful publicity.

The closed-door negotiations dragged on for several months, but the FTC staff was unable to bring the oil companies to terms. One FTC proposal would have made Atlas products available to independent wholesalers, who could then compete with the four oil giants for the business of retail dealers.

Another proposal would have barred the four companies from assigning their chief marketing officials to serve together on the Atlas board. The board is now dominated by the Big Four's marketing specialists, who have developed and implemented anticompetitive practices.

But the oil barons, in the secrecy of the FTC backrooms, refused to cooperate. A confidential memo, summarizing the negotiations, reported bluntly: "The respondents' final settlement offer includes only token concessions ... and would fail to prevent Atlas from continuing to be a medium for collusion."

Frustrated over the oilmen's unwillingness to compromise, the FTC staff broke off negotiations. A sharply worded memo, signed by several high-level staff members, recommended that the FTC file a formal complaint in court to break up Atlas.

"On any scale," declares the memo, "the anticompetitive aspects inherent in this combination outweigh any possible benefits ... Divestiture is an essential remedy."

But the FTC, like other regulatory agencies, is overrun by the lawyers and lobbyists of the corporations that are supposed to be regulated. The commissioners, their actions hidden from the public, refused to file suit against the four oil giants.

This made the staff so angry that it recommended dropping the whole matter and the FTC voted to close the file on the case.

Footnote: An FTC spokesman said he couldn't comment. A spokemman from Atlas also refused to comment because of the case's confidential matter.

ARMY VS. INDIANS: Classified Army documents describe an attempt by the Army brass to take 757 acres from the Nisqually Indians.

Ironically, the leader of this landgrab, Maj. Gen. Volney Warner, was a leading participant in the 1973 Wounded Knee crisis.

There is an even deeper irony. The land Warner wants is the former hunting ground of the famed Nisqually hero, Chief Leschi. He led the gallant Nisqually tribe in its last uprising against the Army in 1850. For his heroic but futile stand, Leschi was hanged by the Army.

Subsequently, the tribe was confined to a 4,700-acre reservation in Washington state. All but the 757 acres were grabbed by the Army in 1918. Now the Army wants the remaining Nisqually land for a training area and firing range.

The classified documents show the Army wanted to expropriate the acreage in 1972 and 1973. The move was postponed, however, "in view of the Wounded Knee controversy." The memo, signed by Maj. Gen. John Henlon, then commander of Fort Lewis, Wash., suggested: "We should await a more propitious time."

Again this year, the Army Engineers in another classified memo cited the "controversial nature" of the takeover and postponed it "at this time."

But Gen. Warner of Wounded Knee fame has now assumed command of Fort Lewis. He not only wants to confiscate the Indian acreage but he wants to negotiate with federal officials rather than talk directly with the Nisquallys.

The Indians have complained to us that they are being harassed, meanwhile, by the Army. They charge the Army has lobbed live artillery shells over their reservation, has buzzed Nisqually fishermen with helicopters and has invaded the reservation in tanks and trucks.

Footnote: Gen. Warner confirmed to us that he wants the land but says the Indians' protests mean he probably will fail. He swears he has cut off artillery firing over the reservation. His tanks and trucks crossed Indian land only once, he said, during an emergency. He denies completely that his helicopters have buzzed the Indians.

Former Interior Boss Strong Advocate of Pipeline

Hickel has no retirement plans in sight

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — A consummate business man astute politico and articulate spokesman on energy and the environment, Walter Hickel is a one man microcosm of the key issues besetting the 49th state

As Secretary of the Interior from 1969 to 1970, Hickel built a nationwide reputation as a conservationist Most Alaskans however, know him as a millionaire developer

One of many drawn to the last frontier" for its wide open spaces and wilderness, Hickel stayed on to make a fortune developing that land

He arrived in Anchorage in 1941 with 37 cents and a firm belief in the free enterprise system Today, he commands Hickel Investment Company, an empire of hotels, motels, shoppping centers and real estate

Despite his longtime residence, some 'sourdoughs' view Hickel as an interloper out to further his fortune at the expense of the landscape They cite his enthusiastic support of the trans Alaska pipeline a project that has brought people congestion — and dollars — to Anchorage

While Hickel is concerned about Alaska's unique environment he parts from some conservationists in his support of the pipeline He doesn't think sound conservation and good business are mutually exclusive Copies of "National Wildlife" magazine vie with "Alaska Industry" on Hickel's coffee table

"They should build three more pipelines," he says "The pipeline is notjust good for Alaska It's a necessity for America

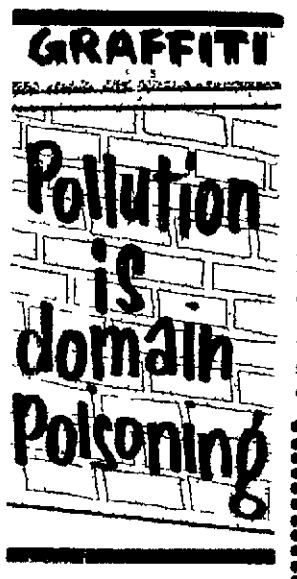
"We can depend on other countries for TV sets and watches' he says, "but when you're talking about energy you re talking about the one nation in the world that must maintain its freedom'

Oil played a big part in Hickel's two year stint as Secretary of the Interior when an oil drilling platform blew out in the Santa Barbara Channel in 1969 Offshore drilling regulations were tightened as a result

Looking back Hickel says his proudest accomplishments in the Interior post was 'not anything I did for the environment but clearing up the relationship between government and big business

The governor of Alaska from 1966 to 1969 Hickel says the principles of business can be applied to government 'although government s role is different It doesn't have to make a profit — although it does have to be managed well"

Two years ago Hickel made a second bid for the governorship but lost the Republican nomination to the unorthodox Jay Hammomd



The bearded former hunting guide, a study in contrast to Hickel, was elected

Does Hickel — a prolific speech maker who sends copies of his script to the media — -have further political aspirations?

"None that are apparent to me," he hedges "Nothing clear"

Yet, he admits he "thought about running for president in 1976, but we have a presidential candidate" Hickel will be a Ford delegate at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City

In his mid 50s, Hickel has no plans to retire soon "It's not any fun,' he says, wide eyed at the suggestion "To retire without doing anything couldn't fit my temperament"

Hickel spends his days now meeting whqt he calls "my social political and financial obligations"

He likes "the movement of travel," but gets restless in one place Cruising his boat in Prince William Sound with his wife, Ermalee, is a favorite pastime

A self-described homebody, Hickel enjoys working in his yard and visiting with any combination of his six sons who are in and out

But surprises still pop up in the orderly existence of Walter Hickel When he resigned as Secretary of the Interior in 1970, Hickel criticized the White House staff that blocked his access to Richard Nixon Last week 'out of the blue' he received a novel autographed by it's author The inscription read 'With warm affection John Ehrlichman

Solitary Union Man Seeking Profit Sharing

DETROIT (UPI) — Jack Stariha is persistent but patient Most of all he s frugal

The 77 year old retired auto worker has been a strong union man for the better part of his life Since 1945, he s been trying to convince the United Auto Workers and the auto companies that workers should share in company profits

In that whole time he s used the same sign — first fashioned in the year World War 2 ended

It reads Hey Leonard — A just share of the profits for the auto worker"

The sign used to read Hey Walter — A just share of the profits for the auto worker

The Walter mentioned in the sign was Walter Reuther the fiery labor leader killed in a plane crash in 1970 He was succeeded by Leonard Woodcock

Rather than printing a new sign Stariha simply stapled a piece of paper reading Leonard over Walter

Whenever Leonard Woodcock president of the 1 4 million member union shows up Stariha shows up too

Often he s a solitary figure

DEAR ABBY

Mother Has Been on Both Sides of Adoption Table

DEAR ABBY: Many parents are disturbed because in some states it is now possible for adult adopted children to "unseal" their records and find out who their biological parents are.

This is an answer to my prayers because somewhere in the world is a 21-year-old girl I gave up for adoption because I was an unwed mother who wanted my child to have a better life than I could give her at the time.

I hope my daughter wants to know her "real" mother. I want her to know that I have no desire to replace the woman who raised her. I just want my daughter to accept me as her "other mother." I wonder if she realizes that I could have done what many other girls in my position have done—had an abortion. Instead I chose to risk my own life in childbirth in order to give her life.

Perhaps my daughter would like to meet me just to say, "Thank you."—HER OTHER MOTHER.

DEAR OTHER: Please read on for a letter from a mother who has been on both sides of the adoption table. DEAR ABBY: When I was 17 I had a baby girl out of wedlock. I gave her up for adoption because her father couldn't marry me. (He was married.)

I became a registered nurse and subsequently married a very fine physician. We seemed unable to have children, so we adopted a baby girl. Within a year I gave birth to a baby girl. Two more children followed.

I have never forgotten the baby I gave away, but I hope with all my heart she does not seek me out. The woman who adopted her and raised her from infancy is the only mother she's ever known and is her "real" mother in every sense of the word.

I know, because I am also the mother of an adopted child whom I love every bit as much as my biological children. If my adopted daughter were to seek out her biological mother, deep down I would be crushed.

If my biological daughter were to suddenly locate me, I can see nothing but problems for her, my family and the parents who adopted her.

I realize that all adopted children are curious about their biological parents, but in satisfying their curiosity, they are bound to open up a lot of wounds and create many problems.

I think one set of parents is enough for any child. What do you think, Abby?—BOTH SIDES.

DEAR BOTH: I agree.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "INFORMATION, PLEASE" IN RENO: It is not necessary to sign your name or include an address to have your letter appear in my column. And yes, all letters are held in the strictest of confidence. A personal reply will be sent to those who enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. My address: P.O. Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

PREPARATIONS ARE UNDERWAY for Heritage Day in New Paltz August 7. Gathering at the old French Church are colonial garbed troops and womenfolk. The New York Second Regiment will be encamped at the end of Huguenot Street and will drill throughout the day. Heritage Day honoring Huguenot Street, the oldest street in America, circa 1678, and the French ancestors will be part of Red Carpet Week activities in New Paltz.

Dr. Joseph Eulie, professor of Education, will speak on the education of the gifted child.

Dr. Joseph Castellano, chairman Department of Educational Studies, will speak on education as a rehabilitative measure.

Discussion with the audience will be featured following brief opening presentations by the panelists.

The public is invited Luncheon reservations may be made by calling Dr. Ray, Snider, Department of Secondary Education, SUNY at New Paltz

Dr. Stephen Pauker Writes on Heart Surgery

BOSTON — The physician's role as a decision-maker in weighing the benefits of coronary bypass surgery against conservative medical therapy is critically examined by Tufts cardiologist Dr. Stephen Pauker in the July issue of the "Annals of Internal Medicine." Dr. Pauker is the son of Mr and Mrs Carl Pauker, 17A Stony Run, Kingston

He notes that simple, straight forward decisions by the physician are appropriate in clinical situations such as appendicitis. In that case surgical risks are low, potential benefits are high, and the optimum decision is determined largely by the medical facts

"Unfortunately," Dr Pauker points out, "such is not the case with coronary artery surgery, where pain relief (at least in the short run) is highly likely, but where operative risks are significant and where long-term benefits on life expectancy and pain relief remain unproven. Thus, in an individual patient, the selection of optimal therapy is not straight forward; consequently, both the skill of the prospective surgeon and the preferences of the individual patient strongly influence the choice of therapy."

Truly informed consent, contends Dr Pauker, requires that the patient has all options explained to him in a format he can both comprehend and use. Using his experience with patients with well-documented coronary artery disease at New England Medical Center Hospital, Dr. Pauker analyzed several factors which influence the decision to operate or not to operate

The major factors are: The extent of the coronary artery disease, the patient's attitudes about life expectancy and chronic disability; the past results of surgery at the physician's hospital on similar patients

Using a "decision-tree," Dr Pauker is able to tailor the surgical decision by providing and explaining — the possible outcomes to the patient. The basic principle of decision analysis is to break apart a complicated decision into a series of simple decisions, and then to recombine them in an ordered way to derive a logical answer

"Informed consent," in the Tufts cardiologist's opinion, "does not come cheaply. It requires the physician to spend more time with the patient and requires the patient to answer several soul-searching questions On the other hand, the patient's attitudes toward the procedure are very positive since they are actually participating in the choice of therapy."

In each case, the decision to operate or not to operate is reached by consideration of the medical facts, the prospective surgical results of the prospective surgeon, and the patient's own values

Special Courses Are Open at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ—Enrollment is still open for several courses in the innovative Studies Department at the State University at New Paltz.

Colonial cooking, taught by Cathryn Baskin, will meet at the Homestead Site of Ashokan Field Campus, Thursdays, Aug. 12, 19, 26 and Sept. 2. Using fireplaces, hearth and dutch ovens and colonial utensils, students will prepare traditional recipes. Ingredients for the meals are included in the $27.50 fee. An added aspect of the course will include review of the proper techniques for preserving foods.

Also open for enrollment at the Homestead Site is Homesteading Skills, which will meet from noon to 3 p.m., Saturdays, July 31, Aug. 7, 14 and 21. Included among the skills to be taught are animal care, vegetable gardening and methods of preserving food. The course will cover foraging of edible plants and medicinal herbs. Basic woodworking skills also will be explored.

Instructors will be Cathryn Baskin and Howard Schechtor.

Students enrolled in either of these courses must provide their own transportation.

'Bribe-a-Bride' Blonde Sought

LONDON (UPI) — Police today sought an oft-wed blonde who made $9,000 in seven months "marrying" 50 illegal immigrants in a "bribe-abride" racket that was supposed to guarantee the men permanent residence in Britain.

Police said the woman, described as slim and in her early 40s, used false names and addresses when she "married" the immigrants in civil weddings at various registrar offices in the London area.

Checks at a number of registrar offices showed the "bride" walked away without another glance at her "groom," who believed he was legally married to a British wife and had evaded the immigration laws.

The "husbands" included Turks, Cypriots, Egyptians, Indians and Pakistanis. Police said some of the 50 have been located and now face explusion from Britain.

It was believed to be the biggest bigamy case in British history.

Police said the woman received $180 after each ceremony and another $450 was paid to the gang that arranged the "weddings."

She was believed to be only one of several dozen women being used by a gang to extract money from illegal immigrants.

"I suspect this lady is not the only one engaged in this kind of racket," said Conservative Member of Parliament Mrs. Jill Knight. "There is obviously a bribe-a-bride racket going on."

A sharp-eyed Scotland Yard detective uncovered the racket while making a routine check of letters from women applying for their foreign husbands to be allowed to live and work in Britain.

He noticed a number of letters had similar handwriting and experts confirmed that the letters, although with different names and addresses, had been written by the same person.

Immigrant leaders are concerned that the revelations about marriages of convenience will provide propaganda for right-wing groups opposed to immigrants entering the country.

"This will prejudice the whole case of immigrants, and the government should suppress this sort of racket mercilessly," said Vishnu Sharma, general secretary of the Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants.

Moves to a Cave To Beat the Bills

ARMINGTON, Ill. (UPI) — Andrew Davis, fed up with the high cost of utility bills, has decided to move his family into a cave.

Davis, a 47-year-old electrician in this central Illinois town of some 400 persons, said he first started thinking about living in a cave two years ago. He decided to go ahead with plans to build one last winter when he got a $167 heating bill one month and heard of the construction of a nuclear power plant nearby.

"I just decided to go underground to get away from all that," he said.

Davis, who has a wife and five of nine children living at home, bought two lots against a hillside a few blocks from his present home and began digging last spring.

The cave house, which has attracted hundreds of spectators, is 12 feet underground and consists of a large living room with fireplace, kitchen, three bedrooms, a den and two baths — one with a sauna.

"I'm constructing it out of concrete and rocks," Davis said. "About the middle of October I'll be done. In my opinion, I think it's the only way to go with the way the fuel bills are anymore."

He said the cave will remain a constant 58 degrees.

"As far as heating and cooling, that's no problem," he said. "I'm going to have a fireplace and a circulating fan and I'll circulate the heat through the rest of the rooms through the fireplace. That's going to be the only heating cost. I'll get my fresh air from a double-lined flue in the fireplace.

"In the summer if the house gets stale, I can turn the fan on and pull fresh air down from the top."

Davis said he plans to use electricity only for the lighting in the cave. He estimated his utility bills would be about $15 a month.

As far as the interior goes, he said, "everything's going to be natural." The kitchen appliances have been recessed into the walls and covered with imitation leopard and zebra hides and the countertop is made of stone. Cattle rib bones and antelope horns will be used for bookshelves and faucets.

Davis set the total cost for the 2,000 square feet of living space at $30,000.

"There will be absolutely no maintenance," he said. "The only maintenance I can foresee is mowing my roof."

Mystery in Lion Country

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Investigators said today they were puzzled about what events preceded the death of a 20-year -old "Lion Country Safari" park ranger, who apparently left his protected jeep and was mauled by lions Saturday.

"We have to assume he was attacked by the lions," said Dan Aylward of Kings Island amusement park, where the 1,000-acre animal preserve is located. "These lions are wild and if given a chance, they probably would take advantage of a human."

"But," Aylward added, "we don't know why he left his jeep, which was protected by iron bars. We're investigating, but we may never know."

Dead was John McCann of nearby Morrow, Ohio, who had worked at the park 14 months.

McCann's body was found at 1:15 p.m. Saturday about 20 feet from his jeep in a 14-acre section of the preserve that is roamed by 50 lions and no other animals. Several of the 350 -pound lions were within a few feet of the body when searchers arrived and chased them away.

TooFat, Too Old To Talk?

TOKYO (UPI) — The Nippon Television Network has been ordered to put Setsuko Murakami back on the air, despite TV officials contention she is too old and too plump for the job.

Miss Murakami, 39, won an injunction in Tokyo District Court against her employer, which hired her as an announcer 17 years ago when she was younger and lighter.

Murakami sued for an injunction, contending that her employment contract as an announcer did not mention weight, age or personal appearance.

The court upheld her contention.

Ben Webster steers Oil Burner, right, home ahead of Atashy, Del Insko in the bike

Field Opened Up for Oil Burner

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman Staff

MONTICELLO—Ben Webster may have been the most surprised person of all at Monticello Raceway Sunday afternoon when his colt, pre-race betting favorite Oil Burner, lived up to his billing and captured the second running of the $300,000 Monticello New York City-OTB Classic in 1:59.1.

Webster found himself where he didn't want to be,about three-deep from the rail, for much of the race. "I was in desperate trouble,"he said as he visited the press box after a television interview. "It was only because of the misfortune of someone else that I won."

That misfortune almost caused a major collision. At the three-eighths mark, the horse who earned the most vocal support of the 9,895 fans, Wolf Pack, broke stride at the rail and caused Speedy Romeo and Crafty Rival to go off stride. Crafty Rival also hit Webster's sulky.

"He hit my left wheel and bent it, and I finished the race that way. But I got a break when Wolf Pack broke. It opened up the field for me."

At the time just before the break, Webster was trying to manuever Oil Burner behind Mandate, the leader for most of the race. Oil Burner finally caught him at the seven-eighths pole and barreled down the stretch to beat Atashy by two lengths. Webster, who never before hit his colt, tapped Oil Burner twice and stung him once down the stretch.

Oil Burner paid $3.60, $3.20 and $2.60. Atashy (Del Insko) finished in 1:59.2 and paid $7.60 and $4.60, and Mandate (Merit Dokey) paid $4.20. Behind the leaders were: Precious Fella (Del Cameron), Speedy Romeo (Bill Haughton)' Wolf Pack (Eldon Harner), Scuba Diver (George Sholty), Fulla Spark (Rick Kuebler), Crafty Rival (Marvin Maker) and Armbro Roger (Joe O'Brien).

The victory, which did not approach Silk Stockings' then-world record of 1:57.3 in the first edition of the MR-OTB Classic, was worth $118,125 to Oil Burner's owner, William Brooks of Wilmington, Del. Ironically, the top nominating prize of $23,125 went to Stanley Dancer, celebrating his forty-ninth birthday. It was Dancer, dissatisfied with the performance of Oil Burner, who sold him and a second horse to Brooks in May for $80,000

"Stanley didn't think the colt was aggressive enough," said Webster. "He hasn't got a good lick from the gate. That's why I was three deep most of the race. I tried to get behind Atashy but I couldn't, and I was really worried. Then Eldon's horse broke, and it turned out to be a break for me."

Still, Oil Burner had to run down Mandate. "My horse can grind and grind and grind. When we got to the backstretch, I knew I had it."

The bump from Crafty Rival bent the left wheel of Webster's sulky. "I was up out of my seat pretty well after the hit," he said "I almost had him in my sulky with me"

How did it feel to win the world's richest harness race?

"Fantastic," said Ben. "No question about it, this was my biggest thrill."

The total purse was $262,500 with the raceway contributing $100,979 and another $15,941 from its share of the OTB handle. When money from the eliminations ($22,500) and consolations ($15,000), added in, the grand total of $300,000 was reached. The rest of the money came from eligibility payments.

The previous richest harness races were the 1975 Hambletonian ($232,192), the 1975 classic($230,521), the Prix d' Amerique 1976 ($223,723.65) and the Prix d'Amerique 1975 ($233,000).

The classic was the seventh of a 10-race card. The fifth race, the classic consolation, was won by Boehm's Eagle (Bill Haughton) in 2:00, the horse's best time, with Pastabyrd second and Stephen O. third.

Sawyers Take Legion Series To Game Three

KINGSTON—There will be a third game for the Ulster County American Legion baseball championship after all.

Kingston Post 150 had a chance to wrap it up Sunday at Dietz Stadium after winning the series opener 3-2 Saturday at Cantine field in Saugerties.

But the Sawyers jumped all over starting pitcher Jay Foust, who was relieved by Kevin Jordan after allowing three runs and leaving the bases loaded in the second inning, and went on to romp, 11-2, evening the best-of-three set at a game apiece.

Saugerties erupted for six runs in that inning, all it would need, as Kingston could respond with only two in the same inning. The Sawyers added two in the third and solo runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh to lengthen the margin of victory.

The third and deciding game will be contested tonight beginning 6 p.m. at Dietz Stadium.

Winning pitcher Nick Malgieri, who left the mound with an injured finger in the fourth inning, opened the Saugerties second with a triple. Marc Becker walked and John Spiers singled home Maligeri. Barry Mayday's single scored Becket and Spiers. Jay Harris, the leadoff batter, singled and Steve Martin walked to load the bases and it brought Jordan to relieve Foust.

Tim Cole's single brought home Mayday and Harris, and Martin also scored when the throw home went wild. Karl Lezette's groundout ended Kingston's misery.

Kingston responded with two runs in the second when Dave Loeffler singled and Joe Kelderhouse tripled to bring home Loeffler. Kelderhouse later stole home on the front end of a double steal.

The Sawyers added two in the third when Spiers got on via a fielder's choice, Jeff Lavigne singled and Harris tripled them both home Another run came in the fifth with the bases loaded when Harris scored on a fielder's choice.

In the sixth when Steve Martin singled home Lavigne, who walked. In the seventh, Spiers' tripie brought home Jim Hackett, who had singled.

The Sawyers blasted four triples, three of them run-producers, in collecting 14 hits.

Steinbrenner Sued

NEW YORK (UPI) — George M. Steinbrenner III, principal owner of the New York Yankees and board chairman of the American Ship Building Co., is being sued by the government for allegedly charging illegal campaign contributions to government contracts, according to published reports.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer said in a copyrighted story that the Justice Department will file suit in Washington today against American Ship to force abandonment of a $5.4 million suit brought by Steinbrenner in 1974 to recover cost overruns on a government contract.

Another big day for the Yankees. All the baseball is on 12.

The New York Daily News carried a similar story but did not specify a court date.

The cost overruns, government sources reportedly told the newspapers, included thousands of dollars in illegal campaign payments, which were hidden in the company's general and specific overhead expenses.

The Plain Dealer also said the Justice Department had learned Steinbrenner destroyed or ordered the destruction of financial records in April, 1973, pertaining to the alleged contributions

In a statement released in New York, Steinbrenner said the government claims were "routine procedure."

Kornelia Settles for a Sentimental Journey

MONTREAL (UPI) — On a night when she could have become the greatest woman athlete in Olympic history, Kornelia Ender had to settle for a sentimental journey to the past.

It was supposed to be one of the great nights of her life; instead it was a day she will remember forever.

Kornelia, through no fault of her own, failed in her bid Sunday night to become the first female ever to win five gold medals in a single Olympics. But she did have a 50-minute meeting earlier in the day with her maternal grandmother, the first time they had seen each other since Rosalse Lehmann defected from East Germany in 1959 and came to the United States.

Mrs. Lehmann, accompanied by her second husband, gave Kornelia a bracelet and a necklace at their reunion and said later in a heavy accent, "Everything went very well. I said 'Guten tag, Kornelia,' and she hugged me and I hugged her. I cried and she had tears in her eyes, too."

Then the emotionally spent, 66-year-old, white-haired lady went to see the historic race.

"I wanted my granddaughter to win her race, to win the gold medal," she said from her seat in the swimming hall which had been obtained for her by Kornelia. "But I wanted the United States to win also."

The race was the 400-meter freestyle relay, the final event on the swimming program, and after winning 11 of the first 12 races, the East German women seemed to have a lock on this gold medal as well. Kornelia, swimming the first leg, did her part by taking the lead, but 15-year-old Jill Sterkel put the United States in front on the third leg and Shirley Babashoff protected the margin.

It was the only gold medal for the American women swimmers, who captured eight of the 14 at Munich in 1972, and gave Babashoff a gold to go with the four silver she won here. Their time was a world record of 3:44.82.

Mrs. Lehmann, wearing a carnation with a green bow on her white pants outfit, was not the least flustered by the bright light of a television crew a few feet in front of her face, and a big smile came on her face when the East German team marched to its starting position. When Kornelia swam, Mrs. Lehmann leaned forward in her seat and then stood up and leaned over a railing for the final 20 meters.

Mrs. Lehmann, who lives in Salina, Kan., waved several times at Kornelia, but her granddaughter didn't see her.

Ironically, on the same day as this touching reunion, there was a report that Russian sprinter Valery Borzov, who had failed to show for the 200-meter finals, had defected. But a Soviet spokesman shrugged this off by saying, "He was in the village this evening, having a drink with the boxing team."

The success of the East German women helped their small country—about the size of Ohio—take the gold medal lead with 26 to Russia's 25 and America's 21. The Russians lead in total medals with 70, followed by the U.S. with 56 and East Germany with 53.

While the American women could win only one swimming event, the U.S. men wound up the competition losing only one. They made it 12 gold medals in 13 events Sunday night with a pair of world record performances, Rod Strachan winning the 400-meter individual medley in 4:23.68 and Jim Montgomery taking the 100-meter freestyle in 49.99.

The men won 27 of a possible 35 total medals, finishing 1-2 in nine of the events.

Following a disastrous day on Saturday, when the Americans could take home only one of 28 gold medals at stake and were shut out in both the 100-meter dash and the shotput, the U.S. made a good recovery on Sunday with seven victories, three in swimming, two in track and two in equestrian.

The equestrian medals were a surprise, particularly that of Ted Coffin of Strafford, Vt. Riding a borrowed horse, Coffin became the first American ever to win the individual dressage, and the U.S. also took the team title.

The first American gold medals in track were earned by Edwin Moses with a world record time of 47.64 seconds in the 400-meter hurdles and by bearded Mac Wilkins with a throw of 221 feet, 5-½ inches in the discus.

There was one disappointment, however, as Rich Wohlhuter could do no better than third in the 800-meter run. Barrel-chested Alberto Juantorena of Cuba won the event with a world record time of 1:43.50, and he said later, "I dedicate this to our leader, Fidel Castro. He sets an example and we follow him faithfully."

Wilkins, though, who had some difficulty with the U.S. Olympic Committee last week when he moved out of the Olympic Village, gave all the credit for his victory to himself.

"I have to say this was an achievement for myself," said Wilkins, who holds the world record in the discus. "It was nice to have all the Americans here rooting for me, and I was worried I might let them down, but I'd still have to say I did this for myself."

Moses, who had failed to qualify for the NCAA championships in June and never before had competed in international competition, didn't even become a 400-meter hurdler until March.

Despite this sparse background, Moses said he was a little disappointed with his world record performance.

"I must have had the slowest start I've ever had," said Moses, a native of Dayton, Ohio, and an engineering student at Morehouse College in Atlanta, where he has a 3.5 grade point average. "I had to burn it down the backstretch."

Mike Shine of Youngsville, Pa., who earned the silver medal, agreed with the second part of the statement, commenting, "Ed turned on that afterburner and he was gone. I just couldn't believe he was going so fast.

"He went out so fast that I thought to myself 'he really wants it.' I thought if I could stay close until the top of the stretch I might have a chance.

"But when we got to the top of the stretch I knew the only thing I was running for was second place."

"I've been running track for seven years, and I guess it's about time something good happened," Moses said.

The United States qualified six boxers for the quarterfinals, the two latest being welterweight Clint Jackson, a 22-year-old deputy sheriff from Nashville, Tenn., and light welterweight Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md. On Sunday, Jackson knocked out Wesly Felix of Haiti in the first round and Leonard outpointed Clint McKenzie of Britain.

The men's basketball championship moves into the semifinal round today with the defending champion Soviet Union meeting Yugoslavia at 2 p.m. EDT and the U.S. engaging Canada at 10 p.m. The two winners meet for the championship Tuesday night.

Wilkins: I Won for Myself

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

MONTREAL (UPI) — One of the fringe benefits that goes with winning an Olympic gold medal is the chance to say anything you please, make a perfect fool of yourself if you want, and with a golden opportunity like that, Mac Wilkins wasn't going to let it slip away from him.

The whole world was waiting to hear what he had to say, wasn't it? Okay, then, Mac Wilkins, winner of the gold medal in the discus, would let everyone know exactly how he felt.

To begin with, the big, bearded 25-year-old Oregon native now living in San Jose wasn't especially impressed with his best throw of the day, 221 feet, 5-½ inches, or 67.50 meters, even if it did earn him the gold medal and the United States its first track and field victory Sunday. For him, Wilkins said, it was only a "mediocre day." He knew he could do better than that.

Nothing wrong there. A man has a right to be unhappy with his performance. He can say so if he wishes.

Wilkins even drew some applause from media members listening to him when he stuck a harpoon into the U.S. Olympic Committee by saying he was "extremely embarrassed to be associated with people like that." He said USOC officials had given him "an extremely difficult time" and threatened to throw him off the team because he had left the Olympic Village here the early part of last week to train in nearby Three Rivers where he found everything more quiet and less nerve-wracking.

Now somebody had a question for Wilkins.

For whom had he won the gold medal, his country or himself?

The question isn't a brand new one. It has been asked of other Olympic gold medal winners. The answers sometimes vary a bit. The longer the medalists explain, though, the more they reach the same general conclusion—they feel a sense of national pride but a personal one as well.

Not Mac Wilkins, though. He had been asked whom he felt he won his gold medal for and he'd tell them all right.

"Probably I'd say myself," he said.

That one went over like a worm in a punch bowl Not so much because of what Wilkins said, but because of the off-hand way he said it. If Mac Wilkins was trying to convey the idea he was completely uninhibited, all he succeeded in doing was proving he is completely immature.

He had some other opinions as well.

"America is not a bad country," he conceded.

Nice of Mac Wilkins to say that, wasn't it?.

He wins an event at the Olympics, and suddenly he's an expert on the country.

Now there was another question.

This one was directed at John Powell of Cupertino, Calif., the third place finisher in the discus. Powell looked as if he had the silver medal wrapped up until Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany muscled him out of it on his final toss. Wilkins and Powell belong to the same track and field club in Long Beach, Calif., but they're not buddy-buddy at all. The truth is they can barely stand each other although they make a pass at doing so.

Supposedly, their feeling for each other, or lack of it, all stems from the keen competition which has existed between them for some time now, but it goes deeper than that.

John Powell, a San Jose cop, looks at everything much differently than Mac Wilkins. Powell is the arch conservative; Wilkins, the flaming liberal.

Powell readily admitted he was "jealous" of Wilkins when he realized some years back Wilkins had more potential for throwing the discuss farther. For his part, Wilkins, in turn, said he never realized he was capable of "hating" Powell as much as he had. Aren't unity and fraternity what the Olympics are supposed to be about? Oh, sure.

"Some people simply are not roommate material," Powell said, suppressing a laugh.

While Wilkins and Powell were proving how nicely two members of the same team can do without each other, another American pair, Ed Moses of Dayton, Ohio, and Mike Shine of Youngsville, Pa., were offering a look at the other side of the coin.

Moses and Shine finished 1-2 in the 400 meter hurdles, after which they embraced one another, then joined their hands and held them aloft as they jogged together once around the track.

The crowd loved it and gave them a great hand, and it's hardly even worth reporting Ed Moses is black and Mike Shine white.

Is Borzov Defecting?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Police said today they had checked reports that Soviet sprinter Valery Borzov had defected and were told by the Russian delegation at Olympic Village he was "still there and had no plans to defect."

"If he had defected we certainly would have had a request for protection or would have had a report about it," said a spokesman for the Montreal police department. "We have had no such request and no such report."

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation said Sunday there were unconfirmed reports Borzov had defected. There were later rumors the Russian was on the way to Ottawa, Canada, apparently to ask for political asylym.

But a reporter for Sovietsky Sport, the leading Soviet sports newspaper, told UPI the reported defection "is laughable. He had a drink with the boxing team in the Village tonight (Sunday) and when one of the boxers asked him why he was not taking vodka—he was sipping orange juice—Borzov replied, 'I still have the relay to run.'"

Borzov, 26, 100 and 200-meter sprints champion at Munich, placed third in the 100 meters Sunday and had been scheduled to compete in the 200 meters Monday but did not show up for the race, claiming he had been injured.

"All I can say is that the CBC must have jumped to conclusions because they hadn't seen him around," a police spokesman said. "We checked with the Russian delegation at the Village and they told us he was still there and had no plans to defect."

Borzov was scheduled to run in the 400-meter relay later this week, but before he can compete he must be examined by an official Olympic doctor to confirm he actually was injured when he dropped out of the 200 meters.

Yanks Add More Nostalgia to The Big Apple

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees are all for nostalgia

With New York's "Great White Way" featuring shows such as "My Fair Lady" and "Guys and Dolls" and with Howdy Doody the hit of the college campuses, the Yankees have added a touch of nostalgia to the world of professional sports

Making only slight modifications to the script that brought the club 14 American League pennants in the 16 years between 1949 and 1964, the Yankees are back in front, leading the second-place Baltimore Orioles by 14½ games

New York beat the Boston Red Sox Sunday, 6-5 to sweep a three game series from the defending American League champions And they used that patented Yankee power in the late innings to do it

Chris Chambliss slammed a two out, three-run homer in the ninth inning to lift New York to its come-from-behind victory Pinch hitter Elrod Hendricks led off the inning with a single and went to third on Mickey Rivers' double off the rightfield wall Tom Murphy retired the next two batters before Tom House relieved Chambliss hit House's first pitch for his 12th homer

The win was New York's 17th in 24 games in the month of July

Chambliss came out of the dugout five minutes after the game had ended to acknowledge the enormous ovation from the crowd of 49,723 fans

"It was a very dramatic home run because it was in front of all those people," Chambliss said "I wasn't trying to hit it out A hit at that point ties the score"

Its just like old times at the Stadium, the "House that Ruth Built" but that Mayor John Lindsay renovated And after a road show that in the past 12 years saw the AL flag make such stopovers as in Minnesota Baltimore Oakland and Boston the New York Yankees are dedicated to returning the flag to the Big Apple' And after an absence of 12 years, winning the pennant will no longer be routine but an event that all New York will be able to celebrate as it has done for so many years in the past

In other games Oakland drubbed Kansas City 9 2, Milwaukee beat Baltimore 3 1 California downed Texas 7-3 in 11 innings Detroit swept a pair from Cleveland 9 1 and 5 4 and Minnesota split two with Chicago winning the opener 13 8 and dropping the nightcap 7 4

Phil Garner's two run homer capped a seven run first inning as Oakland routed Kansas City behind the combined eight hit pitching of Mike Norris and Glenn Abbott The victory was the A's second in their important three game series against the Royals and moved them to within eight games of the AL West leaders

Brewers 3, Orioles 1

Southpaw Bill Travers hurled a three hitter to complete a four game sweep of Baltimore Travers 12 7 struck out eight but surrendered a solo homer to Paul Blair Orioles Manager Earl Weaver was ejected for arguing in support of Lee May who was protesting a ball and strike count It was the eighth time this season Weaver has been thrown out

Angels 7 Rangers 3

Lee Stanton slugged his first home run since last Sept 4 with the bases loaded and two outs in the 11th inning to power California over the slumping Rangers who have lost 16 of their last 18 games It was new manager Norm Sherry's third win in as many games

Tigers 9 5 Indians 1-4

Pedro Garcia John Wockenfuss and Aurelio Rodriguez each drove in two runs to give Detroit a lopsided opening game victory over Cleveland In the second game Mickey Stanley singled home two runs in a three run third inning and Pedro Garcia tripled home a pair of runs in the fifth to spark the Tigers to a doubleheader sweep John Hiller's ninth save preserved Dave Lemanczyk's second victory in four decisions

Twins 13-4 White Sox 8-4

Pinch hitter Rod Carew's bases loaded triple highlighted a five run sixth inning as Minnesota which pulled off a triple play won its fifth straight game in the opener With runners on first and second catcher Glenn Borgmann caught a short popup— intended as a sacrifice bunt— in front of home plate fired to shortstop Luis Gomez who stepped on second for the second out and then tagged the oncoming runner to complete the triple play

In the nightcap pinch hitter Lamar Johnson's three run homer in the seventh led Chicago over the Twins to salvage a split of their doubleheader

Andre Can't Argue With Strategy

MONTREAL (UPI) — Being used only against left handed pitchers doesn't please Montreal's Andre Thornton but the strategy seems to be working

Thornton's singled off the New York Mets Jerry Koosman with none out in the ninth inning Sunday to score Ellis Valentine with the winning run in a 2 1 Expos victory

"I'm not too happy the way they leave me on the bench against right handed pitchers" said Thornton "But that's the way they play and I'll just have to get used to it"

Thornton who came to Montreal in a May trade with Chicago knocked the ball over the head of drawn in Mets centerfielder Pepe Mangual, traded to New York from Monreal last week

"I knew I had to get the ball out their somewhere," said Thornton, who added that even though he was happy with the hit, he still isn't pleased about his less than inspiring over all performance in Montreal

"First I was traded in mid season then I broke my finger When I returned I had to start all over again But that's the way things go in baseball"

Right-hander Don Carrithers 5 6 went the distance for Montreal, completing his second game of the season Koosman absorbed his seventh loss in 18 decisions

The Mets took a 1 0 lead in the first inning but a second inning homer by Tim Foli knotted the score There was no more scoring until Thornton's heroics in the ninth

Valentine opened the inning with a double, then was sacrificed to third by Bombo Rivera Koosman walked Larry Parrish and Jose Morales intentionally to load the bases, and Thornton delivered the winning blow

★★★

The Philadelphia Phillies have reached a point where they probably could win the National League's Eastern Division title if they all went fishing and let their Reading, Pa club play out the season for them

The Phillies, now 13 games in front after a 13 7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday, are threatening to stage a greater runaway than the Cincinnati Reds did when they won the Western title by 20 games in 1975 The Reds were only' 10 1 2 games ahead at this point of the 1975 race and finished with a 667 won lost record The Phillies' current won-lost percentage is 685

Baseball history warns that huge leads can be overcome — the best example being the 1951 New York Giants coming from 13 1 2 games behind on Aug 11 to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers — but more often than not a team which builds such a big lead at this point of the season adds, rather than detracts from it

George Foster tied the score with his 20th homer and Johnny Bench scored the winning run on a short fly which Willie Montanez caught in short right field to give the Reds their victory at Atlanta after Jim Wynn's seventh inning homer gave the Braves a 6 5 lead Gary Nolan won his 100th major league game with the relief help of Rawly Eastwick who pitched the last two innings

Dodgers 1, Padres 0

Bill Russell singled stole second and scored the game's only run on Lee Lacy's double in the seventh inning giving Doug Rau his fourth straight win It also was Rau's 10th victory against six losses while Dave Freisleben suffered his sixth straight defeat

Cards 4, Cubs 3

Lynn McGlothen allowed four hits in 7 1 3 innings and Al Hrabosky finished a combined six hitter for the Cardinals who scored two unearned runs in the seventh inning with the help of two errors by second baseman Manny Trillo The victory squared McGlothen's record at 9 9 while Rich Reuschel lost his eighth game against nine wins

Astros 1, Giants 0

Greg Gross sacrifice fly with one out in the 10th inning scored Wilbur Howard with the only run of the game as the Astros beat the Giants Bo McLaughlin called up from Memphis last week allowed six hits to win his first major league game Ed Halicki now 9 13 was the loser

Jerry Pate Reconfirms the Predictions

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI) — Just when it looked like Jerry Pate's win in the U.S. Open was a fluke, the 22-year-old rookie put it all together again and reconfirmed predictions that he's professional golf's budding superstar

On Sunday, Pate became the golfing champion of North America when he shot a final round, course-record, seven-under-par 63 to finish at 13-under 267 and capture the $40,000 first prize in the Canadian Open by four shots over Jack Nicklaus.

For Nicklaus, who shot a closing round 65 that put him at nine-under 271, it marked the fourth time he had finished second in the only major national that has eluded him.

Shortly after earning his PGA player's card last fall, Pate gave a creditable showing of himself, finishing fourth in the Memorial Tournament in Dublin, Ohio at the end of May, and third the following week at the Philadelphia Classic.

Two weeks later, at the Atlanta Athletic Club, Pate fulfilled the promise those two tournaments indicated when he shocked the golfing world by becoming the first tour rookie since Nicklaus, in 1962, to win the U.S. Open.

In his next three starts, however, the Pensacola, Fla., native was unable to display the consistency of a true champion by failing to make the cuts at the Western and British Opens and the Westchester Classic.

But that consistency returned this past weekend as Pate shot successive rounds of 69-67-68 prior to the 63 Sunday in which he played as if he owned the par-70, 6,696-yard Essex Golf Club course here.

Pate made birdies at the first, third, fifth and ninth holes to make the turn in four-under-par 31. Two more birdies at 10 and 11 made it three in a row before he took his lone bogey of the round on the par-three, 187-yard 12th.

But he started his birdie barrage again with a three at the 364-yard 15th and added another at the 384-yard 16th. He closed his round with pars on the last two holes, a 221-yard, par-three 17th and the 428-yard 18th.

The $40,000 first prize pushed Pate's PGA earnings this year to $128,482, the most ever won by a tour rookie. Lanny Wadkins set the previous mark of $116,616 in 1972.

Clear Sailing for Susie Berning

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Susie Maxwell Berning said her new contact lenses played a big role in her winning the $50,000 Ladies Keystone Open Golf Tournament which she swept Sunday by firing a final round of even-par 72.

Berning, of Crystal Bay, Nev., who was fitted with new contact lenses late Saturday, birdied the final green for the third straight day to post a 54-hold total of one-under-par 215, three strokes better than Pat Bradley and Saxndra Haynie who tied for second.

"The new contact lenses made a tremendous difference," said Berning who has had a vision problem for some time. "They gave me good depth perception and everything was much clearer."

After losing two shots to par with a 38 on the front nine, Berning birdied the 12th and 18th holes for a 2-under 35 on the closing side.

Bradley, three shots off the pace at the end of 45 holes, birdied the final two greens for a 72 while Haynie, the first day leader, shot a final round of a 73.

Deadlocked for fourth place were Laura Baugh and Debbie Austin, West Palm Beach, Fla., with 219. Baugh posted a 75, Austin a 73.

Judy Kimball, who was only one shot off the pace at the 36-hole mark, slipped to a final 77 to fall out of contention early.

Berning, winner of the 1973 Women's U.S. Open, held a slim one-stroke edge starting the final round.

"The 12th hole was the one that motivated me" she said. "I punched four-iron out of the rough and ran down about a 12-footer for the bird," she said.

In putting rounds of 72-71-72-- 215 her three best of the year — she three-putted only one green and didn't have a double bogie for the tournament.

Braves Home for Marlboro

KINGSTON—The Kingston Braves, who are leading the Hudson Valley Rookie League Northern Division with an 18-2 record, resume action tonight at 8 p.m. at Dietz Stadium against the Marlboro Jets

Kingston leads the first round (10-1) and second round (8-1), followed by Poughkeepsie (6-2, 5-2, 11-4), Wappingers (8-3, 4-4, 12-7), New Paltz (6-6, 3-4, 9-10) and Marlboro (1-12, 1-7, 2-19).

New Windsor leads the Southern Division (8-4, 4-3, 12-7) and it is the only team to beat Kingston this season. The Newburgh Atoms are second (6-7, 6-3, 12-10), followed by Pine Bush (4-8, 4-6, 8-14), Monroe-Woodbury (5-7, 3-8, 8-15) and the Newburgh Nuclears (1-5, 2-1, 3-6).

Kingston's Tom Gallo is second in the league in hitting at 422, with Larry Panella fourth (408), Bob Marz eleventh (364) and Rick Koegel (333) twelfth Panella is second in RBIs with 17 and Gallo has 13.

Kingston also has league leaders in pitching with Tim Cole (4-0, no earned runs allowed in 21 innings), Bob Marz (4-0, 1 80 in 25 innings) and Kevin Coughlin (4-0, 2 84)

Dennis Cokley of New Windsor leads the league in hitting with a .467 average, followed by Gallo, Wes MacMillen (Wappingers, 412), and Joe Detz (Newburgh Atoms, .387). McMillen leads with seven homers and 21 RBI, and Detz has four homers and 21 RBIs. New Paltz' Bill Schiller has 14 RBI

Other top pitchers include Dale Buff, New Windsor (5-0, 44 strikeouts), Jerry Seager, Poughkeepsie (4-1, 1.47), Ed Devine' Wappingers(4-1, 1.19, 49 K's), and Steve Arkabout, Newburgh 6-1, 1.32). Wappingers' Mark Esser leads with 59 K's

Surgery for Bonds

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Angels' slugger Bobby Bonds, who injured his right hand a week before the season started, will undergo surgery to repair the hand Aug 15 and will be lost to the club for the remainder of the season, the outfielder said.

Bonds, who damaged the bone and tendons around the knuckle of the index figure in a pre-season game, said he will play with the injury, which apparently did not heal properly, for three more weeks out of respect for California's new manager, Norm Sherry.

"We just got a new manager," said Bonds. "I feel I can play for a few more weeks and can help the club and still be ready to get off to a new start in the spring"

Nationals Advance In BR Tournament

KYSERIKE— The Kingston Nationals are in the running for the District 1 13-year-old All-Star Babe Ruth baseball tournament title being contested at Rondout Valley High School.

The Nationals won two games this weekend, beating the Kingston Americans 8-2 on Saturday and blanking Poughkeepsie 5-0 on Sunday. The Nationals were to have played Rondout Valley at 1:30 p.m. today, with Beacon meeting Poughkeepsie at 4:30.

Tuesday's schedule has the winner of today's second game meeting the loser of today's first game at 1:30 p.m., and the winner of today's first game meeting the winner of Tuesday's first game at 4:30 for the title in the double elimination tournament

•STEINBRENNER

"It involves American Ship Building Company making a claim and the federal government of making a counterclaim," the ball club owner asserted He said he has filed his request for reimbursement of the cost overruns in the Cleveland Court of Claims.

The Plain Dealer said Judge Louis Spector in the Washington, D.C., Court of Claims will be asked to order the $5.4 million claim of the shipbuilding company forfeited under the False Claims Act.

The suit reportedly will also ask the court to award the government about $500,000 in damages, including the cost of litigation and a four-month investigation by the FBI, Maritime Administration, Commerce Department and Securities and Exchange Commission

In August, 1974, Steinbrenner pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in Cleveland to arranging and covering up illegal contributions made from 1970 through 1973 to the campaign of former President Richard M. Nixon.

He also pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of intimidating employes whom he wanted to give false explanations to a grand jury about the illegal payments.

American Ship, which pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate federal election laws at the same time, was fined $20,000 and Steinbrenner fined $15,000 by Judge Leroy J. Contie Jr.

PUBLIC NOTICE

STATE OF NEW YORK
ALBANY

CASE 26991—In the matter of the Complaint of the Citizens Advisory Council against New York Telephone Company as to the policies and practices in publishing the Yellow Pages Directories.

July 16, 1976

NOTICE is hereby given that an initial public hearing will be held in the above matter before Examiner David Schechter at the State Office Building A, Second Floor, Veterans Memorial Highway, Hauppauge, Suffolk County, New York, on Tuesday, August 3, 1976 at 1:00 p.m. to be continued, if necessary, the next day, August 4, 1976 at 10:00 a.m. The hearing on August 3, 1976 will continue until 5:30 p.m. Any one arriving before 5:30 p.m. or by appointment with the Examiner before 6:00 p.m. will be given an opportunity to be heard.

The Commission is conducting a general investigation to determine whether or not advertising in the classified directories (Yellow Pages) published by or for the New York Telephone Company is solicited and implemented in an unjustly discriminatory or unduly preferential manner and whether or not the advertising contained in such classified directories unduly interferes with the use of ordinary listings.

The initial hearing is being held primarily for the purpose of receiving oral statements from members of the public with regard to the company's present classified advertising practices. Additional hearings for such purpose may be held in other locations within the New York Telephone Company's operating territory if there is sufficient public participatory interest to warrant the conduct of hearings at locations other than the Commission's offices in Albany or New York City.

Persons wishing to offer testimony or to be heard in this regard should communicate with Staff Counsel Frank Robinson at Agency Building 3, Empire State Plaza, Albany, NY 12223 (518-474-6517), or with Mr. Eugene Connell, a member of the Commission Staff, at Agency Building 3, Empire State Plaza, Albany, NY 12223 (518-474-3184).

Upon completion of such initial phase of the investigation, additional public hearings will be held for the purpose of receiving testimony from the company followed by the testimony and recommendations of the Commission Staff and intervenors, if any.

Any party to this proceeding may, in lieu of a personal appearance, file a written position statement relating to the subject matter of this proceeding with the Secretary of the Commission at Agency Building 3, Empire State Plaza, Albany, NY 12223. Such a statement will receive the same consideration as an unsworn statement made at a hearing.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

FIGHT: (Q.) My girl friend and I are both pretty and have good figures. We are enemies because we are fighting over a boy and he will not make up his mind which one of us he likes.

The other girl is really popular in bad places. I am not. She takes drugs and smokes, and I do not. The boy does not know about the drugs and smoking, and behind his back she goes with other boys.

I am 14. She is 14. He is 15. Who do you think deserves him? —Asking in Wisconsin.

(A.) The other girl is not your friend. You are not her friend. You say, specifically, that you are enemies.

The boy would be unfortunate to choose her if she is as you describe her.

He would be unfortunate, also, to choose you, because a person who cuts one person to pieces is capable of cutting another person to pieces.

When you learn that it is better to be kind than cruel, forgiving than condemning, positive than negative, you will be happier, and you won't have to fight to attract a worthwhile boy.

REPLACED: (Q.) I really liked Jim. And he liked me too. Then my girl friend started hanging around with me when I talked to Jim on the telephone. Sometimes she would talk to him. She would also follow me when I met him some place. Now he likes her. What can I do? —15 in Indiana.

(A.) Watch out when your girl friend starts getting interested in your boy friend.

Generosity is great. So is sharing. But they don't work well with boy friends. You were too generous. You shared too much. Now you have nothing to share. Jim is gone.

But there will be another boy. You will know then there is one thing not to share with girl friends.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JULY 27

Your birthday today: Opens an era of consistent striving, active prosperity in which you can cultivate higher skills. The main factor is how strongly motivated you are, how willing to disentangle yourself from the past and its limiting habits. Relationships take care of themselves if you have basic commitments. Today's natives have great potential for theatrical presentation, go in for specialties involving physical disciplines.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Clear up the fallout from recent events. Your quietly discreet suggestions are likely to be adopted, but in forms you never thought about.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Now that tensions have abated, go ahead as though nothing happened. Pursue the obvious. Family discussion brings practical arrangements. Watch expenses.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): By starting early enough, you can get your career back on its proper tracks. If bought today, additions to your wardrobe promise to be good bargains.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Brighten up! You have it made with just a little effort. Earning powers improve little by little. Look around for extra outlets for your work.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): This is your day to shine, so cheerfully speak for yourself. Claim what is due you. Help somebody else if you can. Select good company and celebrate!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Set up appointments, but as yet it's not time to display your work. Share enthusiasm of your achievements with the one who appreciates them and you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Regular business offers a chance for advancement. Consider a change if you seem stuck where you are. Perhaps you soon will have choices to make.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put aside all grievances, go on with the current situation. Decisions made now are more readily accepted. Let intuition guide you for the best timing.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look forward, treating the past as a completed lesson. Put matters to rights briskly; not even hinting that you are correcting errors. Travel is favored.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check on insurance, safety of premises, etc. Make everything as near perfect as you can. Tonight you deserve a party, but break it up early.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stay on the optimistic side, see the bright promise in inherent local events. Pitch in to exploit advantages. Others offer advice that tips the balance.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Relax, let nature and people take their courses. Personal affairs move along at a lively pace, provide the morale needed for successful pursuit of career.

Oswald: "If the bidding of today's hand looks peculiar it is taken from a book on the game of bridge which was succeeded by auction and then by contract."

Jim: "In contract, North and South would bid and make four hearts. In auction when declarer got credit for everything made they would play two hearts and make four. In bridge the dealer either made trump or said 'I bridge it' whereupon his partner had to make trump."

Oswald: "Once South made it notrump North could not go to hearts. West made the book lead (book of 1905) of the deuce of clubs. East's queen lost to South's ace and three notrump wrapped up. Actually, the hand was given as an example of great card reading by South. You led your longest suit against notrump and if you had two suits of equal length you led from the stronger one."

Jim: "I see what the writer was driving at. West had led fourth best from a suit headed by nothing. Hence, he held three cards in each other suit. South played his ace of hearts, finessed against West's queen and wound up making twelve tricks. The author never pointed out that maybe a queen of spades lead from that collection of trash in the West hand would have been far better."

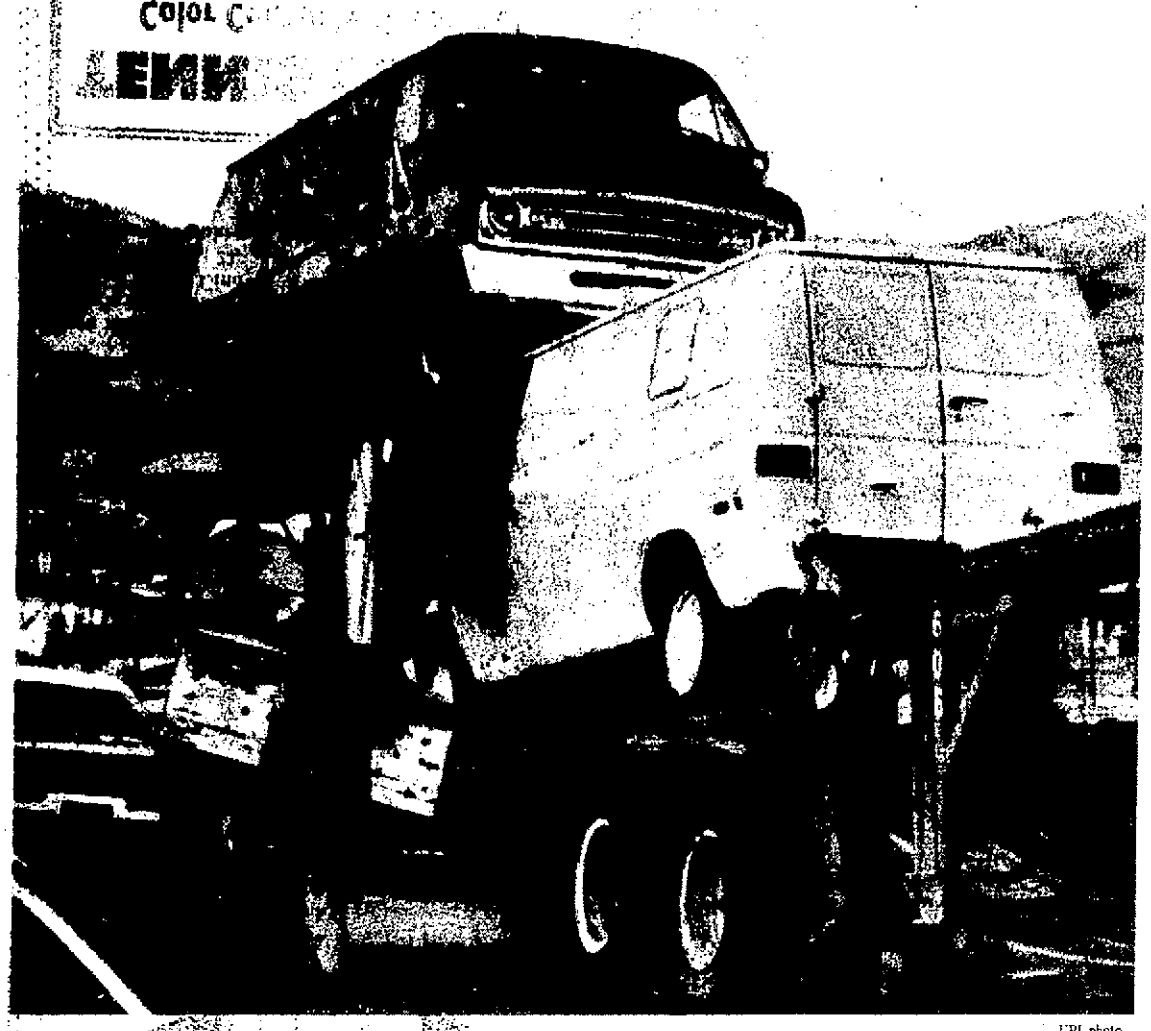
KIDNAP VANS



UPI photo

Two of the vans believed to have been used in the Chowchilla, Calif., kidnaping of 26 children and their school bus driver await transport late Sunday to Alameda County sheriff's facility. The two vans, plus a third van and a mysterious black Cadillac were found in a warehouse in San Jose Thursday.

Middle-Aged 'Masterminds' Are Sought in Bus Kidnaping Plot

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Two middle-aged "masterminds" with a $5 million motive and a preplanned escape route may have headed the abduction of 26 central California school children and their bus driver, authorities said Sunday.

"We're definitely pursuing the possibility that there are other suspects in the case," said one investigator. "These others quite conceivably might be the brains behind the whole thing."

In Madera County, Sheriff Ed Bates said that although only three young men were officially suspects, "my conjecture is that maybe there are more people involved in this."

Composites put together by the children and bus driver Frank Ray after they dug themselves out of an underground prison in a Livermore, Calif., quarry July 16 included pictures of two men about ages 45 and 50, one gray-haired.

A coast-to-coast search has been launched for two suspects, Frederick Woods, 24, son of a prominent Atherton, Calif., podiatrist, and James Schoenfeld, also 24. Schoenfeld's younger brother, James, 22, surrendered to Alameda County District Attorney Lowell Jensen Friday night after being named in a warrant.

Sheriff Bates said a trail of clues were left by the abductors, who "apparently were not planning on anything going awry." He added, however, that there was obviously some "preplanning" for an escape if something went wrong.

"There were clues all over," he said, referring to the tracing of the three vans used in the kidnaping and other evidence gathered at the quarry and at the homes of the suspects.

A rough draft of a $5 million ransom note was one item found on Woods' 100-acre family estate on the San Francisco peninsula.

The FBI said there have been reported sightings of Woods and Schoenfeld in Tennessee, Oklahoma and Illinois, among other places.

A stakeout was made in Martha's Vineyard, an island resort off Massachusetts, because the Woods' family own a 500-acre estate there.

The younger Schoenfeld was visited by his father and mother in the Alameda County Jail Sunday, but his parents made no remarks to reporters. Schoenfeld's attorney, William Gagen, had his client moved from an isolation cell to an area with other prisoners.

Gagen said he would attempt to keep Schoenfeld from going to Madera County for arraignment and court proceedings because "we fear for his safety" in Chowchilla, Calif., the farming town where the children were abducted on their way home from a school swimming outing.

Ancient Ape Fossils Are Unearthed

HONG KONG (UPI) — Ancient ape and other mammalian fossils, believed 3 million to 12 million years old, have been unearthed in southwest China's Yunnan province, the new China News Agency reported today.

"The recent discovery, consisting of over 100 ancient ape teeth fossils, a fairly complete lower jaw bone and fragments of a deformed upper jawbone, augments China's fossil data on the origin of man," NCNA said.

The agency said the Chinese Academy of Sciences and the Yunnan provincial museum discovered the fossils in lignite seams in Lufeng county.

"Preliminary analysis dates the beds of the recent discovery to the pliocene period, 3 million to 12 million years ago," NCNA said.

League Vows to Stop Violence

Fighting Heavy in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy fighting raged across Beirut today but the head of the Arab League peacekeeping force vowed his men would set up a disengagement line despite the new violence and an attack on his troops Sunday.

As shooting erupted in hotspots around the capital, the U.S. Embassy registered more Americans and other foreign nationals for a U.S. Navy evacuation Tuesday. Embassy officials said they had received Palestinian assurances of security for the operation.

Arab League envoy Hassan Sabry Kholy told reporters Sunday night that "parties bent on sabotaging the restoration of security" were responsible for the attack on a contingent of peacekeeping troops who tried to take up positions in the noman's land between eastern Christian and western Moslem Beirut.

He did not mention the "parties" by name but it was an obvious reference to Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, whose "Tigers" militia claimed responsibility for the mortar and machine gun attack on the Arab troops.

Rightist radio reported two members of the Saudi Arabian and Sudanese force were killed and two others wounded.

"Our party did not sign the truce agreement and we had orders to prevent the Arab League troops from coming in," the militia commander said.

The ultrarightist Chamoun is the only major leader in the war who still refuses to sign the cease-fire and Kholy said he would meet with him today to try to win him over.

But he also said this "will not stop us from our purpose or our timetable in completing our work (to set up the disengagement line)."

Meanwhile, heavy fighting flared overnight and this morning in downtown Beirut and in the suburbs, where the Palestinian camp of Tal Zaatar has been under siege for more than a month.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said registration had been reopened for Tuesday's sea evacuation and that "a few more Americans had registered but that our total figure is still around 435."

He urged all those who have not signed up to "do so now because this will be the last such organized evacuation of foreigners from Beirut."

Leaders of Coup Effort Are Executed In Ethiopia

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A coup attempt against Ethiopia's military rulers has been crushed and its ringleaders executed, Ethiopia Radio said. It was the second plot against the military government uncovered in two weeks.

The radio broadcast monitored Sunday in Nairobi said the latest coup attempt was engineered by officers of the 26th Brigade of the 1st Division, the former imperial bodyguard of the late Emperor Haile Selassie.

But the ringleaders — identified as brigade commander Lt. Col. Berhanu Haile and a Lt. Haile Mariam Hassen — were executed by their own men Sunday morning, the radio said.

The report did not give an exact date for either coup attempt.

However, the government announced July 13 that 18 persons went before a firing squad after unsuccessfully trying to overthrow the government.

Brig. Gen. Getachew Nadew, martial law administrator in the troubled province of Eritrea, was killed in a gunbattle at his home the same day while resisting arrest.

The radio, labeling the general a traitor, accused him of planning both coup attempts — the second apparently to be carried out after his death. It did not elaborate.

The military in the last two weeks has executed 23 persons — soldiers and civilians — for various crimes against the state.

The government grabbed power from Selassie two years ago but has been facing increasing opposition both from civilians and within its own ranks as it follows an increasingly Communist course in traditionally feudalistic Ethiopia.

Nude Miss Is Chosen

Even nudists feel the cold sometimes as these two contestants in the Miss Nude World Pageant show. While waiting to go on stage, Cindy Youngman, 18, left, Davie, Fla., and Dawne Everett, 23, Havelock, Ontario, right, huddle together in a blanket in the cool shade.

HAMILTON, Canada (UPI) — A 28-year-old California woman has been named Miss Nude World 1976.

Nona Montague, of San Diego, won the title during a day-long pageant here Sunday. The winner, a 5-foot-5, 112pound blonde, said she was "thrilled and proud" to win the title. Her measurements are 3623-36.

Named first runner-up was Cindy Youngman, 18, of Davie, Fla., who is 5-foot-3, 105-pounds and 34-23-34.

Second runner-up was Suzette Teft, 32, of Hamilton, Canada. She is 5-foot-2, 100-pounds and 35-24-34.

In From The Cold

One Third Of Civil Servants Are Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women still hold less than 3 per cent of top-paid "supergrade" civil service positions, but accounted for nearly 80 per cent of the increase in whitecollar federal jobs last year.

A Civil Service Commission survey said Sunday there actually was a decrease in the number of women employed at some lower levels of the 18grade federal pay system, but the percentage of females in all other ranks increased.

Slightly more than 35 per cent of all full time, government white-collar jobs were held by women last year, the commission said, for a 0.4 per cent rise over the previous year and for 80 per cent of the total increase.
